Plush New Movie Theater Is Being Built in Springs

By RAY HERST
Gazette Telegraph City Editor

A half-million motion picture theatre, equipped to handle all of the latest projection systems and designed as a showplace for road-show movies, is being built in Colorado Springs.

L. A. Starsmore, president of Westland Theatres Inc., announced that his organization has already started construction of the theatre in northeast Colorado Springs.

To be known as Cinema 70, the plush showplace is being constructed on Chelton Road just south of Highway 24. It is scheduled to be open in June of next year.

Starsmore said that in addition to the current projection systems, the unique theatre will be able to handle experimental systems.

He said that Westland Theatres plan to bring the road show pictures—such as "How the West Was Won," "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad, World," "Cleopatra," etc.—into Cinema 70. Prior to this, Colorado Springs had no outlet for such features and movie patrons had to wait a year or more to see the films in the standard movie theater or travel to Denver.

Starsmore said that the new Cinema 70 will incorporate 24 advanced techniques that are not found in the conventional theatre.

The auditorium is a molded form designed to provide the ultimate in sight, sound and comfort.

The special curved screen will be 56 feet wide by 25 feet high. This is in contrast to the slightly more than 30-foot wide screens at the Peak and the Chief. Surrounding the screen will be brilliant drapperies which will extend for half of the auditorium.

Seating will be provided for approximately 850 patrons. Each of the deep-cushioned lounge chairs will be located to provide an uninterrupted view of the mamoth screen, Starsmore said.

Another Cold Spell Spreads Over Vast Sections of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sighs of relief at the passing of the extreme cold spell were changing to moans Saturday as wind-whipped snow, sleet and freezing rain invaded many sections of the nation.

Snow falling in Iowa and southern Minnesota was expected to spread rapidly over adjoining Midwestern states, making driving hazardous.

The latest front, which began blasting the Pacific Northwest Friday night, brought many areas of the West Coast several inches of snow and a glaze of ice.

In eastern Oregon the snow piled into drifts by 25 m.p.h. winds and some sections of U.S. 30 were being closed to traffic. Police in the area were pleading with residents to stay home if possible.

In Portland, Ore., snow was also drifting. Freezing rain struck Salem, further south.

Rain, freezing rain and sleet were expected from southwestern Texas through eastern Oklahoma and western Arkansas to southern Minnesota.

Snow was forecast for sections from Nebraska and South Dakota through all but the extreme southern Rockies.

A mixture of rain and snow was hitting the mountains in California.

On the East Coast, the tail end of the week's polar air was keeping temperatures near zero in some sections.

In Garrett County, Maryland's traditional icebox, a low of -6 was recorded early Saturday. Roads in the area were slippery from three inches of snow that fell Thursday.

Glens Falls, N.Y., reported a low of 2 above zero with snow accumulated from Friday's storm from Lake Ontario.

Possible damage to the citrus crops near Brownsville, Tex., was still feared as the area experienced its second night in a row of near freezing temperatures.

The central Gulf Coast area also reported temperatures in the 30s.

Royal Canadian Mounties to Participate in Rodeo

The Royal Canadian Mounties. . .the ones who "always get their man" . . .will be the feature attraction at the 1965 25th annual Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo, it was announced Saturday by J. D. Ackerman, president of the Rodeo Association.

The troupe, which bears the name The Royal Canadian Mounted Police Musical Ride, is scheduled to appear in Colorado Springs Aug. 4 through Aug. 7. This marks their first appearance in this region, and the first time they have appeared in this country in three years.

The world-famous Mounties have attracted large crowds their last two trips to the United States, performing at such rodeos as the Cow Palace in San Francisco and the American Royal in Kansas City.

Ackerman said Colorado Springs was a natural place for Canada's Mounties to appear, referring to the complement of Royal Canadian Air Force personnel stationed here with NORAD.

The announcement of the Mounties' acceptance came Saturday following a meeting between Lynn Beutler, the producer for the 1965 rodeo in Penrose Stadium, and members of the rodeo board. Beutler called the act one of the most thrilling and colorful in the history of all rodeo.

William Thayer Tutt, chairman of the board, joined Ackerman in enthusiasm for the act. He expressed for the rodeo board the thanks to everyone in the RCAF at NORAD who helped recommend Colorado Springs to the Canadian commissioner of the Mounties at Ottawa. Tutt especially saluted Air Marshal Roy C. Slemon, RCAF (ret.-, former deputy commander NORAD, and Air Marshal Larry Dunlap, present deputy commander NORAD, for their assistance.

The troupe includes 32 riders, 36 horses — to allow four spares — plus a staff of five men. "This is a huge undertaking for our Rodeo Association to bring this group and horses all the way from Ottawa to Colorado Springs, but we feel this community is entitled to such an outstanding attraction," Ackerman concluded.

Another Purge Carried Out in Viet Nam

SAIGON (AP)—Leaders of the Vietnamese armed forces carried out a swift purge Saturday night, dissolving the powerful High National Council and arresting many political figures.

The purge was not aimed either at the chief of state or the prime minister.

The entire cabinet apparently will stay in office.

But in carrying out the purge, the newly formed military council has clearly emerged as the major force in the South Viet Nam government.

A military communique read over Saigon radio at 7 a.m., Saigon time, (7 p.m. EST Saturday) said:

"Special action has been taken because we trust the prime minister and chief of state and we do not trust the high national council."

Seven of the nine active members of the council were arrested and paratroopers are looking for another one.

Among the council members arrested was South Viet Nam's leading Buddhist layman, Mai Tho Tiryen, appointed vice president of the World Buddhist Association at a meeting in India last week.

Military high command headquarters in Saigon remained heavily fortified through the night. Troops did not appear in Saigon streets, but teams of police swiftly carried out the arrests.

The streets of Saigon remained calm and normal Sunday morning.

Several thousand Buddhists gathered at their headquarters for a continuation of their protest demonstration against the government.

19 Children Die in House Fires Throughout Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nineteen children died in house fires in four states Saturday, less than a week before Christmas. Other fires killed two adults and heavily damaged the Neiman-Marcus department store in Dallas, Tex.

An eclipse of the moon helped save three children from fire deaths.

The tragedies came only a day after 20 elderly persons lost their lives in a Fountaintown, Ind., nursing home fire — one that firemen said might have started in a mouse nest.

Six of the nine children of Elbert Turner Cox, 40, a steelworker and part-time cab driver of Warren, Mich., a Detroit suburb, perished in a fire that destroyed their two-story frame home

"Six of my babies are gone . . I've lost six of my babies," Cox cried on learning of the tragedy as he returned from work. His wife, Marie, 35, was reported in critical condition.

The oldest of the Cox children, Elbert Jr., 13, had left his bedroom window open after watching the moon eclipse. He and brothers Frank, 10, and Thomas, 8, escaped through the window, sliding down sheets and blankets they had knotted together. Other windows in the house were frozen shut.

The boys said intense heat prevented them from reaching the children who died: Martha Ann, 11; Mary Jo, 7; John, 6; Diane, 4; James, 3, and Charles, 18 months.

Five children died in a fire in a five-room frame house in which 14 persons were sleeping near Kinston, N.C.

Police said the fire apparently spread from an open fireplace.

Dead were Brenda and Linda Spencer, 5; their brothers, Charles, 9, and Erwin Ray, 2,

United Fund Approves Allocations

The Board of Trustees of the Pikes Peak United Fund approved allocations totaling $495,000, an excess of $10,000 over the United Fund Goal, James D. Russell, president, announced Saturday. The campaign has already exceeded the $484,800 goal with officials predicting that $495,000 will be in hand when all contributions are in. Several individuals and firms prefer to make their contributions at the end of the year, rather than during the traditional drive months during the late fall, and several new firms are being contacted for contributions.

Requests from United Fund Agencies totaled $572,492. The Allocations and Admissions Committee conducted an eight month agency study. To guide the Board of Trustees in setting the goal next year, a second

Colorado Drought Worst in Modern State History

DENVER (UPI)— Colorado's drought is the worst in modern state history, a federal agricultural official said Friday.

Except for wind damage, this year's drought tops even the Dust Bowl days of the '30s, Henry Christensen, director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said.

The words of dry, dusty gloom came from Christensen after Gov. John Love asked federal disaster aid for eight more Colorado counties. Twenty-one are already receiving the help.

More than half the state's $100 million winter wheat crop already has been lost because of the parched weather, he said.

Christensen, himself a wheat farmer all his life, owns a spread near Roggen, Colo. He said his winter wheat crop has been in the ground 90 days but hasn't even sprouted because of the dryness.

"It couldn't be drier. It's every bit as bad as the Dust Bowl days, with the exception of

The first three operations have been completed by surgeons in the orthopedic hospital here. They reported Saturday Anne is making satisfactory progress.

Major U. S. Drive Against Tax Exempt Status Seen

By ADREN COOPER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has mounted a major drive against politically minded organizations that enjoy tax-exempt status—and most of the fire is being concentrated on outspoken right-wing groups.

An IRS spokesman said today the agency's rule against discussing individual cases also applies to organizations. However, the identity of a few of the organizations under investigation was learned from other sources.

They range from the tradition-steeped Daughters of the American Revolution to new organizations which have few followers outside their areas.

Why the emphasis on the right side of the political spectrum?

Fountain Bank Application Turned Down

An application for a proposed state bank to be located in Fountain was turned down by the State Bank Board, along with one other proposed state bank to be located in Wheat Ridge. A national bank to be located in suburban Denver, was also rejected.

James J. Saxon, U.S. comptroller of the currency, rejected the proposed Edgewater National Bank in suburban Denver, but gave no reason. This was the ninth Colorado application turned down by Saxon in recent weeks.

Neiman-Marcus Blaze Does $5 Million Damage

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Neiman-Marcus, the Dallas specialty store known around the world for its fashions and merchandising techniques, was smoke-streaked and water-soaked Saturday after a fierce five-hour fire that ravaged its upper floors. Vice President Edward Marcus estimated damage as in excess of $5 million.

More than 400 firemen and 20 pieces of equipment fought the blaze. Clouds of black smoke shrouded the Dallas skyline as firemen poured tons of water into the seven-story building, which was heavily stocked for Christmas shoppers.

Dense smoke obsured the upper three floors for hours after the alarm was sounded about 3:30 a.m. A night watchman on the fifth floor said a small explosion preceeded the flames. Cause of the fire had not been determined when firemen subdued it about 9 a.m.

The service was held in St. Paul's Episcopal church — built of gray field stone in 1875.

Episcopal and Roman Catholic priests wore vestments. Other clergymen — including one Negro minister — were dressed either in black robes or business suits as they followed the choir.

"I am thankful for this service which typifies the ecumenical movement in the world today," said the Rt. Rev. George

19 Children Die in House Fires Throughout Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Nineteen children died in house fires in four states Saturday, less than a week before Christmas. Other fires killed two adults and heavily damaged the Neiman-Marcus department store in Dallas, Tex.

An eclipse of the moon helped save three children from fire deaths.

The tragedies came only a day after 20 elderly persons lost their lives in a Fountaintown, Ind., nursing home fire — one that firemen said might have started in a mouse nest.

Six of the nine children of Elbert Turner Cox, 40, a steelworker and part-time cab driver of Warren, Mich., a Detroit suburb, perished in a fire that destroyed their two-story frame home

"Six of my babies are gone . . I've lost six of my babies," Cox cried on learning of the tragedy as he returned from work. His wife, Marie, 35, was reported in critical condition.

The oldest of the Cox children, Elbert Jr., 13, had left his bedroom window open after watching the moon eclipse. He and brothers Frank, 10, and Thomas, 8, escaped through the window, sliding down sheets and blankets they had knotted together. Other windows in the house were frozen shut.

The boys said intense heat prevented them from reaching the children who died: Martha Ann, 11; Mary Jo, 7; John, 6; Diane, 4; James, 3, and Charles, 18 months.

Five children died in a fire in a five-room frame house in which 14 persons were sleeping near Kinston, N.C.

Police said the fire apparently spread from an open fireplace.

Dead were Brenda and Linda Spencer, 5; their brothers, Charles, 8, and Erwin Ray, 2,

United Fund Approves Allocations

The Board of Trustees of the Pikes Peak United Fund approved allocations totaling $495,000, an excess of $10,000 over the United Fund Goal, James D. Russell, president, announced Saturday. The campaign has already exceeded the $484,800 goal with officials predicting that $495,000 will be in hand when all contributions are in. Several individuals and firms prefer to make their contributions at the end of the year, rather than during the traditional drive months during the late fall, and several new firms are being contacted for contributions.

Requests from United Fund Agencies totaled $572,492. The Allocations and Admissions Committee conducted an eight month agency study. To guide the Board of Trustees in setting the goal next year, a second

Another Cold Spell Spreads Over Vast Sections of Nation

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sighs of relief at the passing of the extreme cold spell were changing to moans Saturday as wind-whipped snow, sleet and freezing rain invaded many sections of the nation.

Snow falling in Iowa and southern Minnesota was expected to spread rapidly over adjoining Midwestern states, making driving hazardous.

The latest front, which began blasting the Pacific Northwest Friday night, brought many areas of the West Coast several inches of snow and a glaze of ice.

In eastern Oregon the snow piled into drifts by 25 m.p.h. winds and some sections of U.S. 30 were being closed to traffic. Police in the area were pleading with residents to stay home if possible.

In Portland, Ore., snow was also drifting. Freezing rain struck Salem, further south.

Rain, freezing rain and sleet were expected from southwestern Texas through eastern Oklahoma and western Arkansas to southern Minnesota.

Snow was forecast for sections from Nebraska and South Dakota through all but the extreme southern Rockies.

A mixture of rain and snow was hitting the mountains in California.

On the East Coast, the tail end of the week's polar air was keeping temperatures near zero in some sections.

In Garrett County, Maryland's traditional icebox, a low of -6 was recorded early Saturday. Roads in the area were slippery from three inches of snow that fell Thursday.

Glens Falls, N.Y., reported a low of 2 above zero with snow accumulated from Friday's storm from Lake Ontario.

Possible damage to the citrus crops near Brownsville, Tex., was still feared as the area experienced its second night in a row of near freezing temperatures.

The central Gulf Coast area also reported temperatures in the 30s.

Colorado Drought Worst in Modern State History

DENVER (UPI)— Colorado's drought is the worst in modern state history, a federal agricultural official said Friday.

Except for wind damage, this year's drought tops even the Dust Bowl days of the '30s, Henry Christensen, director of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said.

The words of dry, dusty gloom came from Christensen after Gov. John Love asked federal disaster aid for eight more Colorado counties. Twenty-one are already receiving the help.

More than half the state's $100 million winter wheat crop already has been lost because of the parched weather, he said.

Christensen, himself a wheat farmer all his life, owns a spread near Roggen, Colo. He said his winter wheat crop has been in the ground 90 days but hasn't even sprouted because of the dryness.

"It couldn't be drier. It's every bit as bad as the Dust Bowl days, with the exception of

Grandmother Abandoned By Family

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The Salvation Army said today it had received telephone calls from several states offering a home to the white-haired grandmother who was abandoned here by her family last Monday.

Mrs. Juanita London, welfare director for the army center, said, however, she felt Mrs. Ada Hopkins would be better off if she returned to California.

"Calls have come from around Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas," Mrs. London said.

Tall Teenage Girl Cuts Size By Surgery

OSWESTRY, England (AP) — A teen-age girl who couldn't seem to stop growing is having a series of operations to reduce her height.

The girl, Anne Rowston, 19, was 6 feet, 7½ inches tall when she entered a hospital three months ago. The series of four operations to remove bone from her legs was planned to make her six inches shorter.

The first three operations have been completed by surgeons in the orthopedic hospital here. They reported Saturday Anne is making satisfactory progress.

Congo Rebels Recapture Most of Province Capital

By ROBIN MANNOCK

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP) — Congolese rebels, with Soviet and Communist Chinese weapons, have recaptured all but the airport, hotel and mission compound in Paulis, radio messages said Saturday.

The outnumbered government garrison of 47 white officers and 200 Congolese troops was reported under assault by 4,000 rebel troops, who had an armored car and two armored jeeps.

Capital of Uele Province, Paulis is about 250 miles northeast of Stanleyville, the rebel capital that fell last month to a

Fountain Bank Application Turned Down

An application for a proposed state bank to be located in Fountain was turned down by the State Bank Board, along with one other proposed state bank to be located in Wheat Ridge. A national bank to be located in suburban Denver, was also rejected.

Frank E. Goldy, Colorado bank commissioner, said the applications for state banks were turned down because the areas concerned already had ample banking facilities.

James J. Saxon, U.S. comptroller of the currency, rejected the proposed Edgewater National Bank in suburban Denver, but gave no reason. This was the ninth Colorado application turned down by Saxon in recent weeks.

Major U. S. Drive Against Tax Exempt Status Seen

By ADREN COOPER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service has mounted a major drive against politically minded organizations that enjoy tax-exempt status—and most of the fire is being concentrated on outspoken right-wing groups.

An IRS spokesman said today the agency's rule against discussing individual cases also applies to organizations. However, the identity of a few of the organizations under investigation was learned from other sources.

They range from the tradition-steeped Daughters of the American Revolution to new organizations which have few followers outside their areas.

Why the emphasis on the right side of the political spectrum?

East Tincup Is Auctioned Piecemeal

EAST TINCUP, Colo. (AP)—The make-believe town of the old West, East Tincup, was auctioned off piecemeal to various bidders Saturday.

Owner of the town, Carl Ryberg, of Denver, reported the sale brought in $2,090. Ryberg said he bought the buildings, fire hydrants, etc., for $4,300 a year ago and invested some $15,000 in it in hopes of restoring it.

He said vandals wrecked most of the property in the town, located about a mile west of the intersection of U.S. 6 in Jefferson County.

Neiman-Marcus Blaze Does $5 Million Damage

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Neiman-Marcus, the Dallas specialty store known around the world for its fashions and merchandising techniques, was smoke-streaked and water-soaked Saturday after a fierce five-hour fire that ravaged its upper floors. Vice President Edward Marcus estimated damage as in excess of $5 million.

More than 400 firemen and 20 pieces of equipment fought the blaze. Clouds of black smoke shrouded the Dallas skyline as firemen poured tons of water into the seven-story building, which was heavily stocked for Christmas shoppers.

Dense smoke obsured the upper three floors for hours after the alarm was sounded about 3:30 a.m. A night watchman on the fifth floor said a small explosion preceeded the flames. Cause of the fire had not been determined when firemen subdued it about 9 a.m.

Stanley Marcus, president of the Neiman-Marcus Co., donned a fireman's coat and hat to inspect the sodden interior of the store as soon as the blaze was controlled.

"The parts that were destroyed," he said, "were the newest floors that were com-

Volunteers Help to Deck Ft. Carson Hospital Halls

The nights are filled with music and the halls at Ft. Carson's U. S. Army Hospital decked with holly and more thanks to the Christmas spirit shown by Carson and off-post residents from mountains to prairies.

The American Red Cross Lounge is headquarters for these activites which began Dec. 1 coordinated by Miss Jane Curtis, program director, who is overwhelmed with the interest shown by groups and individuals in his first Carson Christmas.

Girls from Wasson High School Red Cross and from Girl Scout Troop 313 have gathered each December Saturday afternoon to make decorations and hang them. Ft. Carson Noncommissioned Officers Wives Club members wrapped gifts for patients each Monday and Wednesday and made decorations.

Materials came from the Pikes Peak Chapter, Red Cross, where many of the visiting groups are coordinated.

The NCO wives also gave games parties on surgical, orthopedic and medical wards. Support Command officers wives sponsored an orthopedic holiday partyy.

A hilarious highlight was a big brother party for patients and Blue Jay and Funny Peacocks Bluebirds from Colorado Springs. The little girls brought gifts and the soldiers helped them with appropriate games.

Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliaries held a games party on the orthopedic and medical wards (No. 101) and caroled throughout the hospital (No. 4051).

Other vocalists visiting the hospital included the Sweet Adelines and Senior Girl Scout Troop 4.

Coming events are distribution of bedside Christmas trees collected by Mrs. Dave Walker of Chipita Park and by members of three garden clubs—Pikes Peak of Colorado Springs, and Airlane of Pueblo. Mr. and Fountain Valley of Security and airlane of Pueblo. Mr. and Mrs Walker made the forms for the trees.

Chaplains will organize serenaders from the 1st and 3rd Brigades to sing throughout the wards today. Girl Scout Troop 43 will sing Monday. The Salvation Army will bring gifts for patients on Tuesday. Betty Jean Herman will present her Dads Club dance students on Wednesday in the Red Cross lounge.

Santa Claus Nelson Hunt from North Pole will distribute gifts on Christmas Eve. A holiday coffee call and ward visiting will be scheduled for Christmas Day with fruit cake supplied by Pikes Peak Chapter.

Regular American Red Cross volunteers at the Carson hospital are helping with the holiday schedule in many ways, according to Miss Curtis.

Physiologist Says 'There's No Substitute for Sweat'

BURBANK, Calif. — His purpose is research on man in space, but a Lockheed-California Company scientist has evidence that the current fad for isometric exercises — exercises without exertion — may have some drawbacks.

Dr. William Pierson is a physiologist working on physical fitness programs for men who will be confined aboard space ships for as long as thirty days. Isometrics, he expects, will play a part in the American spaceman's exercise program.

For the rest of us on earth, however, he cautions that isometric exercises are not the "easy out" they may appear. And performed without regard to individual body mechanics, they can be harmful.

Isometrics — an equal play of force between muscles —present danger of "muscle tear" to the weaker muscle. Individual physical differences are important, too.

Low back pains may reult, for example, from pushing against a door frame with arms shoulder high. That one should be performed seated. Exercises useful for someone with a normal back may cause pain for someone with a spine curvature — for instance, holding the legs raised from a supline position.

Isometrics are for specific muscles fitness, ays Dr. Pierson, not for general body conditioning. For that he insists, "there is no substitute for sweat."

For man-in-space, Dr. Pierson seeks new data on human performance. Physical tests on earth-oriented subjects may not apply in the weightless environment of space. On earth, where gravity is important to energy expenditure, exercise programs have been related to calorie consumption. But, Dr. Pierson, explains, in space a heavy man should require no more food than a small man.

At Lockheed's Rye Canyon scientific research center, studies are underway in weightless simulating space conditions. Exercise — both isometric and isotonic (the ones that require action) — appear to be one way for astronauts to maintain fitness in their circulatory system and muscle and bone makeup. This is necessary, for the human body is accustomed to function against the forces of gravity.

Because prolonged weightlessness is difficult to effect on earth, Dr. Pierson notes that the best research on human capabilities in space can be done in a manned orbiting laboratory, such as proposed by the United States Air Force (MOL, manned orbiting laboratory, proposed to orbit the earth before 1970.)

Gen. Corley Visits Carson This Week

One of the Army's most decorated officers, Brig Gen. John T. Corley, chief of staff of First Army, paid a visit to Ft. Carson this week.

The 50-year-old general served with the 1st Division in World War II and 25th Division in Korean War, earning two Distinguished Service Crosses, eight Silver Stars, several awards of the Legion of Merit and Bronze Star plus the Soldier's Medal.

Because the 5th Division's 2d Brigade is located within First Army territory at Ft. Devens, Mass., General Corley was interested in seeing the parent organization and studying training objectives.

He was given briefings Wednesday by Lt. Col. James Wooten and Lt. Col. Harold K. Roach, then taken on a tour of the post. He was particularly interested in construction here and at Butts Airfield. Yesterday he visited Ent, ARADCOM, NORAD and the Air Force Academy.

The first apportionment of the House of Representatives was based on a ratio of one congressman for every 30,000 inhabitants.

Physiologist Says 'There's No Substitute for Sweat'

BURBANK, Calif. — His purpose is research on man in space, but a Lockheed-California Company scientist has evidence that the current fad for isometric exercises — exercises without exertion — may have some drawbacks.

Dr. William Pierson is a physiologist working on physical fitness programs for men who will be confined aboard space ships for as long as thirty days. Isometrics, he expects, will play a part in the American spaceman's exercise program.

For the rest of us on earth, however, he cautions that isometric exercises are not the "easy out" they may appear. And performed without regard to individual body mechanics, they can be harmful.

Isometrics — an equal play of force between muscles —present danger of "muscle tear" to the weaker muscle. Individual physical differences are important, too.

Low back pains may reult, for example, from pushing against a door frame with arms shoulder high. That one should be performed seated. Exercises useful for someone with a normal back may cause pain for someone with a spine curvature — for instance, holding the legs raised from a supline position.

Isometrics are for specific muscles fitness, ays Dr. Pierson, not for general body conditioning. For that he insists, "there is no substitute for sweat."

For man-in-space, Dr. Pierson seeks new data on human performance. Physical tests on earth-oriented subjects may not apply in the weightless environment of space. On earth, where gravity is important to energy expenditure, exercise programs have been related to calorie consumption. But, Dr. Pierson, explains, in space a heavy man should require no more food than a small man.

At Lockheed's Rye Canyon scientific research center, studies are underway in weightless simulating space conditions. Exercise — both isometric and isotonic (the ones that require action) — appear to be one way for astronauts to maintain fitness in their circulatory system and muscle and bone makeup. This is necessary, for the human body is accustomed to function against the forces of gravity.

Because prolonged weightlessness is difficult to effect on earth, Dr. Pierson notes that the best research on human capabilities in space can be done in a manned orbiting laboratory, such as proposed by the United States Air Force (MOL, manned orbiting laboratory, proposed to orbit the earth before 1970.)

Gen. Corley Visits Carson This Week

One of the Army's most decorated officers, Brig Gen. John T. Corley, chief of staff of First Army, paid a visit to Ft. Carson this week.

The 50-year-old general served with the 1st Division in World War II and 25th Division in Korean War, earning two Distinguished Service Crosses, eight Silver Stars, several awards of the Legion of Merit and Bronze Star plus the Soldier's Medal.

Because the 5th Division's 2d Brigade is located within First Army territory at Ft. Devens, Mass., General Corley was interested in seeing the parent organization and studying training objectives.

He was given briefings Wednesday by Lt. Col. James Wooten and Lt. Col. Harold K. Roach, then taken on a tour of the post. He was particularly interested in construction here and at Butts Airfield. Yesterday he visited Ent, ARADCOM, NORAD and the Air Force Academy.

The first apportionment of the House of Representatives was based on a ratio of one congressman for every 30,000 inhabitants.

Value of Surgery in Some Arthritis Cases Reported

A recent study of 1,000 rheumatoid arthritis patients receiving orthopedic surgery as part of treatment shows that they tolerate the surgery very well with few complications, according to the December issue of this severely crippling form of eases, issued by The Arthritis Foundation.

The study, conducted at the Rheumatism Foundation Hospital at Heinola, Finland, reports that results are best when performed in the early stages of greater major risk than those arthritis.

These operations involve no greater mahor risks than those offered by treatment of rheumatoid arthritis without surgery, the Bulletin article states, and provide considerable relief and increase of mobility, especially to the severely deformed patient.

surgery than among 1,000 simil- "flare-ups" in the disease, once so feared as a complication in surgical treatment, did not occur more often among the 1,000 patients receiving orthopedic orthopedic surgery for rheumaar patients receiving no surgery.

Nor did prolonged steroid treatment or hypercortisonism in patients rule out surgery, the report notes. Bone and wound healing were normal. Study results also indicate that a decrease in the signs of systemic inflammation usually follows removal of large masses of inflamed rheumatoid tissue.

Major complications found in hands, wrists, knees, elbows, toid arthritis were no different from those in general surgery—cardiac infarction, thrombosis of the varicose veins, pulmonary infarction and pleurisy. Operations were performed on feet, .jnds, wrists, knees, elbows, hips, shoulders, tendons and nerves.

The study was conducted by Drs. Veikko Laine and Kauko Vainio of Heinola.

The Bulletin on Rheumatic Diseases is issued monthly by The Arthritis Foundation to more than 67,000 physicians. It is distributed, without charge, to over 2,000 physicians and to most hospitals throughout Colorado and Wyoming by the Rocky Mountain Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation, as part of that Chapter's Professional Education Program.

The Chapter has also provided funds for the production of two professional education films, "Surgery of the Forl- in Rheumatoid Arthritis" and "Surgery of the Rheumatoid Hand". The first of these is now completed and may be borrowed, by interested people in the medical profession, from the Chapter office, 1375 Delaware Street, Room 402, Denver, Colorado 80204.

The Arthritis Foundation, the sole national voluntary agency devoted to arthritis and the rheumatic diseases, supports a program of research, patient care and public education for the more than 12,000,000 arthritis sufferers in this country. Requests for arthritis literature and further information about the Rocky Mountain Chapter's program may be directed to the chapter office address stated above.

Nursing Home Was About to Lose License

FOUNTAINTOWN, Ind. (UPI) — The Maples nursing home in which 20 elderly patients burned to death Friday was about to lose its license for safety violations, according to the state Board of Health.

The Health Facilities Licensing Council today was investigating how the state fire marshal's office could give the home a top safety rating while the health board had decided to hold up its license.

Besides the 20 people who died, 13 surviving patients were hospitalized after the fire swept the aged patients outside in near zero temperatures.

Most of them were suffering from exposure and shock. But a doctor said they were "in reasonably good shape considering the ordeal they've been through."

Vance Koonce, head of the board's nursing home division,, said that the home had been inspected Dec. 1 and had received a "poor" rating.

Koonce said he had recommended to the council Wednesday that the license renewal be withheld and that the home be given until March 1 to remedy its defects.

Max McGraw, the operator of the home, told the inspector he "could not be bothered with her inspection and didn't know about it because he never opened mail from the state board of health," Koonce said.

Dwight E. Long, a sanitation inspector, described McGraw as "belligerent and threatening" to health officials who attempted to inspect the home.

Congo Reds Deny Rights of Red Cross

GENEVA (AP) — The International Red Cross Committee said today the two top leaders of the Congolese rebellion declared they knew nothing of the Geneva Red Cross Convention and did not consider themselves bound by it.

Christophe Gbenye and Gaston Soumialot made the statements to Red Cross Delegate Dr. Jean-Maurice Rubly, a Swiss, who landed at Stanleyville Sept. 25 in a white-painted Red Cross plane, a committee report said.

It added: Dr. Rubly's effort to get Gbenye to release white hostages failed. The rebels said the removal of hostages from Albertville was followed by a government bombardment of the city. They feared the same in Stanleyville.

United Fund Approves Allocations

set of recommendations was submitted to the board. The first set — the actual allocation of funds was accepted unanimously by the board. The second set—the minimum amount the individual committee members felt should be raised for the support of the agencies based on this year's study will be considered next Spring, when the goal for the 1966 Drive is set.

The Allocations and Admissions Committee voted increases over last year's allocation to Family Counseling Service, U.S.O., Visiting Nurse Association, Cerebral Palsy Association, Y.M.C.A., Arthritis Foundation, and Multiple Sclerosis Society. The Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Council on Alcoholism and United Health Foundation will receive smaller allocations in 1965, with the remainder of the agencies in the United Fund receiving essentially the same amount as in 1964. The year-round operating budget of the United Fund will remain at $42,000, 9 percent of the goal for the third year.

Man Held for Car Prowl Investigation

A man is being held in City Jail for investigation of car prowl, police said Saturday.

According to the report, he was seen going through a car at 29 S. Weber St. which belongs to Verle C. Hatton, 2415 W. Platte Ave.

He was chased, caught, and after a struggle, subdued. Two electric razors, a screw driver and flashlight were found in his possession. Although he denied prowling Hatton's car, one of the razors is identical with one missing from the Hatton vehicle which according to Hatton had been thoroughly ransacked and a quantity of clothing torn up.

Plush New Movie Theater Being Built in Springs

seats in Cinema 70 will be brightly colored to blend in with the over-all decor rather than the usual deep maroon and blue.

Deep pile carpeting will cover the auditorium floor. The interior is being designed by Teichert II Studios of Chicago.

The unique circular box office and refreshment stand will be completely separate from the main auditorium. It will be connected to the auditorium by a glass-enclosed walkway.

All of the structures within the circular building will also be constructed in circles—this includes the box office, the refreshment stand and the manager's office.

In addition, Westland Theatres is having a carpet specially woven to blend in with the circular design.

Ample parking will surround the theatre with a variety of exits leading to the parking areas. A special covered walkway will lead from the drive to the box-office and lobby.

The area surrounding the theatre will be completely landscaped to fit in with the luxurious motif.

The theatre, designed by Lusk & Wallace, architects, is the results of a rich heritage of sixty years of theatre design. The late Robert Boller of Kansas City began a nationally prominent career of theatre architecture in 1904. Dietz Lusk, Jr. joined Boller in 1947 as a partner in the firm of Boller and Lusk, architects, with a practice devoted to the design of theatres. In 1955, Lusk joined John J. Wallace Jr. in forming the partnership of Lusk and Wallace in Colorado Springs. Although their practice now covers the entire spectrum of the construction industry, they still maintain an active participation in the development of new techniques for the theatre industry.

Assisting Lusk and Wallace on this unusual structure are Howard C. Dutzi, Structural Engineer, C. Kenneth Kolstead, Electrical Engineer and Walter S. Langebartel, Mechanical Engineer, all of Colorado Springs and T. G. Morrissey, Acoustical Engineer of Denver.

B. H. Baker, Inc. of Colorado Springs are the general contractors for the project. Site work has been started by the Pinello Construction Company and sub-contracts for mechanical and electrical work have been awarded to Olson Plumbing & Heating Co., In. and Whitney Electric Company.

Westland Theatres operate theatres in Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Grand Junction, Colorado. Colorado Springs is the home office.

19 Children Die in House Fires Throughout Nation

and a cousin, Arlene Gibbs, 6 months.

The mother, Verda, said she was staying at the house, home of Jesse James Williams, until repairs could be made to her home nearby.

A fire in a rural frame home in the Spear Lake community near Marked Tree in northeast Arkansas took the lives of five children ranging in age from 7 to 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawain D. Lafferty escaped with seven other children, four of them less than five years old.

The victims were sleeping on the second floor; the survivors on the bottom floor.

Police identified the dead as Raymond Lafferty, 16; Laird, 10; Darrin, 9, all boys, and Stacey, 7, and Dorren, 8.

Three children burned to death in a fire that razed their home at Seattle, Wash.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kealy, suffering severe burns, escaped with two other children.

The dead were Barry, 4; Patricia, 3, and Maureen, 1.

A fire in a 2½ story frame house at Trenton, N. J., caused the deaths of Mary Rittman, 69, a widow, and her daughter, Helen, 40. Firemen said the flames appeared to have started in a shed attached to the rear of the house.

A predawn fire in Dallas swept through upper floors of the seven-story Neiman-Marcus store, heavily stocked for Christmas shopping. Smoke and water damaged other floors.

"It's very difficult to estimate total damage, but it is a multimillion dollar loss," said Stanley Marcus, president of the firm.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. A watchman sounded an alarm at about 3 a.m. after hearing what he described as a small explosion.

Grandmother Abandoned By Family

"but we feel it would be best if Mrs. Hopkins returned to Los Angeles."

Mrs. London said that although Mrs. Hopkins' previous Los Angeles address was not known. California authorities had been contacted to determine her welfare status.

She said Mrs. Hopkins' only known income was an $84 Social Security check. Since it would take five years residence to be eligible for welfare aid in Oklahoma, she said Mrs. Hopkins' best chance to supplement her income through welfare would be in California where she had lived since 1947.

Mrs. Hopkins, her few battered suitcases and her fluffy toy dog, were left in front of army headquarters Monday.

Mrs. Hopkins, who is about 65, said she had been traveling from Arkansas to Texas with her daughter, son-in-law and their seven children and two dogs.

"They simply didn't have room for me or food," she explained.

"When they let me out on the sidewalk my son-in-law said, 'we'll see you sometime.' One of my grandchildren said, 'we're going to get rid of you. You eat too much.'"

"But I'm not mad at them," she added. "The whole thing was for the best. I'm contented here."

Catholics, South Baptists Join Episcopal Rites

L. Cadigan, Episcopal bishop of Missouri.

Almost 200 persons jammed into the small church in this northeast Missouri farming town of 2,933 persons.

The Rev. John Schultz, a member of the staff at St. Piux X Roman Catholic parish at Moberly, Mo., read the litany. But he did not take part in the "laying on of hands" ceremony by Bishop Cadigan which marked the actual ordination.

"This service," said the Rev. Samuel Johnston, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church in Kansas City," is the symbol of the hoped for reunion of the Christian church." The Rev. Mr. Johnston delivered the sermon.

Father Baker asked permission of Bishop Cadigan who told him: "It was a very acceptable thing."

Then, Father Schultz asked his superior, the Most Rev. Joseph M. Marling, Roman Catholic bishop of Jefferson City, Mo. Bishop Marling also agreed to the interdenominational service.

Canal Crucial For Military, Experts Declare

emphasized by President Johnson in announcing the proposal for building a new sea-level waterway across Panama or adjacent areas to replace the 50-year-old, lock-bound Panama Canal.

A Navy spokesman agreed Saturday that it is true 24 of the Navy's attack carriers cannot get through the existing canal but added that "it can hardly be said that the true strategic importance of the canal is less today than it has been in the past."

He noted that modern nuclear submarines, the new missile cruisers and frigates and antisubmarine warfare vessels, which include rebuilt carriers, can transit the canal.

A sea-level route, with wide channel and no locks, would open the transisthmus route to all U. S. Naval craft and cut hours off the time for traveling the canal.

"The demonstrated value of the Panama Canal in military operations during World War II and the Korean emergency removes all doubt regarding the future need and potential usefulness for meeting the requirements of the defense forces of this nation in peace and war," the spokesman said.

Another defense official commented that he believed the primary military reason for building a sea-level canal was not the fact that bigger ships could use such a waterway but that it would not have the high vulnerability of the present canal to sabotage.

An essential component of the Panama Canal is Gatun Lake which stands between the locks at the Atlantic and Pacific ends. That lake, 82 feet above sea level, is created by a simple earth dam impounding the waters of several rivers and small streams. The defence official said it would take two years to refill the lake to navigable level if the dam were destroyed.

In addition, the locks themselves stand as a target for sabotage or missile fire from enemy submarines.

Man Threatens Woman With Pair of Scissors

An unknown man threatened to kill a local housewife with a pair of scissors after he had obtained permission to use her telephone, the police department said Saturday.

According to the report, the man came to her door about 8:30 Saturday morning and said his mother was ill and asked to use the telephone.

She allowed him to come in and he made his call but afterwards he made no effort to leave and she asked him to go. He then picked up the scissors saying "I'm going to kill you." She told the investigating officer she ran to the back door and said she was going to scream. The man escaped through the front door.

Colorado Drought Worst In Modern State History

wind damage. It's the worst right now in modern Colorado farming history."

Only winter moisture on the arid eastern plains can break the drought, he said.

High winds that raked across some parts of Colorado during the first part of the week hit some eastern areas but not seriously, he said. The worst wind damage was confined to the land lying along the foothills.

The three-year drought damage already has run into the hundreds of million dollars.

Love made his request for additional federal aid to Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman. Three of the countries are in southwestern Colorado, the first in that area to ask for assistance.

Love asked that seven of them be declared disaster areas because of sustained drought and that another county be declared a disaster area because of too much snow.

The dry spell has reduced hay and grain crops so drastically that farmers are finding it difficult to feed their basic livestock breeding herds. The federal aid provides feed grains at reduced rates and permits grazing on soil bank lands.

Congo Reds Capture Provincial Capital

lightning advance by Congolese troops led by white officers.

Rebels launched an assault on resurgent rebel activities.

Rebel slaunched an assault on Bunia, capital of Kibali-Ituri Province, adjoining to Uele Province, and penetrated the town. The garrison of about 60 white mercenaries and a Congolese contingent was holding out.

About 10,000 rebels were reported massing for an attack on Kindu, capital of Maniema Province 250 miles south of Stanleyville. It was from Kindu that the Congolese army launched its attack on Stanleyville. Kindu was left with only a small garrison when the main body started north and the city holds large stocks of arms and ammunition.

Intelligence sources in Leopoldville were studying Soviet and Communist Chinese machine guns and automatic rifles taken at Paulis. They said much of the captured equipment was old and obsolete, but in excellent working order.

The guns and ammunition were reliably reported shipped to the Congo through Sudan.

Carson Man Beaten After Offered a Ride

A Ft. Carson man had his shoulder dislocated after he received a beating from four men who offered him a lift back to camp early Saturday mornin, the sheriff's office said.

Robert L. Litreal told Deputy Sheriff Eldon McCune that he was standing on the corner at Colorado and Nevada Avenues shortly after midnight when a car with four men in it offered him a ride to Ft. Carson.

They drove south on Nevada Avenue and Litreal was asked if he was a soldier. The four then stated they "did not like doggies" and started roughing him up. When they reached the turn-off close to "B" gate Litreal told them they had broken his shoulder and the four panicked and dumped him out of the car by Moor's Restaurant.

Litreal was treated at Ft. Carson Hospital and had his right shoulder put in a cast as it was completely dislocated.

Car Bursts Into Flames On Highway Friday

A car driven by Willie Mayhan, 23, Ft. Carson, burst into flames Friday night on U. S. Highway 85-87, the state patrol reported.

According to Patrolman Arnold Ferrero, the incident happened at the Fountain interchange and Mayhan was traveling south. The Fountain Fire Department put out the blaze. Damage to the 1957 model is estimated at $700.

Egyptians Down American Plane; Two Are Killed

CAIRO (AP)—Egyptian MIG jet fighters Saturday forced down an American plane over the Nile delta. Police said it belonged to the Esso Oil Co. at Aden and that the incinerated corpses of two persons were found near the wreckage.

The plane, a Fairchild was reportedly on a flight from the Gulf of Akaba. The Soviet-built MIGs were sent up when proper radio contact with the plane could not be established, unofficial sources said.

The plane reportedly went down near a small village in the area of Alexandria. The area is dotted with salt marshes and initial reports said that ground parties have not been able to locate the downed aircraft.

One report said the MIG's shot the plane from the skies.

Another version indicated the plane was forced down and did not indicate whether the two people aboard survived.

The sources which disclosed the crash were unable to explain how the identity of the two crewmen as Americans was established.

Former Colonies May Join Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special inter-American conference has cleared the way for admission of the former British colonies of Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago to the Organization of American States.

The conference voted 19-0 Friday night with Guatemala abstaining to approve a plan for admission of new members, originally put forth by Argentina.

The agreement also opens the way for Canada to join the OAS. But although Canada has indicated interest at times, Latin Americans said they did not think it would join now because it has growing commercial trade with Cuba.

The OAS has voted diplomatic and trade sanctions against Cuba's Communist regime. All OAS countries except Mexico have agreed to abide by the sanctions.

Major U.S. Drive Against Tax Exempt Status Seen

done a good job of weeding out the leftwing organizations," an IRS spokesman said. "The leftist outfits have been under surveillance for years. Also, we have more complaints on the ultra-conservatives."

In most cases, the organizations are accused of putting out political propaganda while wearing a philanthropic, religious or educational label.

Only a few of these organizations have any income which could be taxed, but their special tax status is highly prized. As long as they are classified as tax-exempt, their donors can deduct their contributions from their personal income tax.

The several million dollars that would be collected in taxes if these organizations lost their tax-exempt status would be small compared to the potential revenue that could come from another contemplated treasury move: a revision in the law to restrict the money-making operations of some foundations.

This move would be up to Congress and is not related to the drive on the political interested groups. A recommendation to Congress will come in the early months of 1965.

In the campaign against the use of a tax-exempt organization for political purposes, the IRS has stepped up the rate of examinations from 2,000 a year to 10,000.

Some groups under fire from IRS have said that if their tax exemption is removed, then the government should take similar action against the National Council of Churches and all groups that ever took a stand on any issue.

In reply, an IRS spokesman said, "the law states that a tax-exempt organization must devote a substantial part of its activities to charitable, educational, religious or similar activity. A tax-exempt organization is not supposed to try to influence legislation. Perhaps a good many organizations pass a resolution now and then but their main function is still non-political."

A congressional hearing uncovered an IRS crackdown on Life Line, an organization which has received several million dollars from oilman H. L. Hunt of Dallas to finance radio and television broadcasts.

Also, the Rev. Billy James Hargis of Tulsa, Okla., revealed that his organization, Christian Crusade, was removed from the tax-exempt list by IRS. He plans a court fight.

One of the better known right-wing organizations, the John Birch Society, is not an IRS target. It has never asked for tax-exempt status.

Two Academy Men Named Rhodes Scholars

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force Academy men were among 32 Americans named Rhodes scholars at the completion of nationwide competition Saturday.

Those selected are 2d Lt. Robert L. Sansom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Sansom, Knoxville, Tenn., and Cadet Alva Holaday, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney E. Holaday, Jamestown, N.D.

The two men selected raised to nine the number of Rhodes scholarships awarded to academy graduates and cadets so far. The academy is the newest of the service academies and celebrated its 10th anniversary in this year.

To date, six classes and approximately 2,000 cadets have been graduated. The Academy had 14 who entered in the Rhodes competition. Four won state competitions.

Both men are scheduled to leave the United States in October to begin two years of study at Oxford, England. They will study in the field of philosophy-politics-economics.

Committees for selections of Rhodes scholars look for four major groups of qualities in selectees. They are scholastic ability, manhood, courage and devotion to duty, moral character and leadership and physical vigor. This whole-man concept employed by the Rhodes committees is comparable to those used by the Air Force Academy in selecting its cadet candidates.

Neiman-Marcus Fire Causes Big Damage

pleted just two years ago when he added a seventh floor and refixtured the entire fifth floor. The greatest damage was done on the fifth floor, where the children's department is located. It was completely gutted. The second and third floors are in part water-soaked. It's not the prettiest scene in the world, I can assure you."

The intense heat cracked some interior walls, but there was no information available on possible structural damage, nor how long the store would be closed.

Neiman-Marcus Co. was founded in 1907 by Herbert Marcus, 29, as a pioneer project in a frontier state. From its beginning, Neiman-Marcus steadily prospered and widened its sphere of influence to become one of the most widely publicized retail stores in the world. Now operated by the founder's four sons — Stanley, Edward, Herbert Jr. and Lawrence — it has branches in North Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston.

Youth Is Injured In Car-Bike Mishap

Carlos J. Allen, 14, of 1307 Arch St., was injured late Saturday afternoon in a bicycle-car accident on the U. S. 24 bypass.

According to patrolman A. L. Smith, the bicycle on which the boy was riding apparently hit the divider island and bounced into the side of a car driven by Malissa J. Holm, 58, Chipita Park. Both vehicles reportedly were traveling west on U. S. 24 and both were in the left lane of traffic.

The boy was taken to Penrose with multiple fractures of the left leg, head injuries and abrasions.

'Historic Day.' Panama Says About Canal

received an official communique from Washington and said it was "an historic day" for Panama that would "create a favorable atmosphere for negotiations."

In Bogota, Colombian Public Works Minister Tomas Castrillon said the most favorable route for a new sea level interocean canal was through his country, according to the studies made so far by United States and local technicians.

Location of the canal in Colombia would provide that country with millions of dollars in annual revenue, as the present canal now does for Panama.

Castrillon said the Colombian route would pass largely through a region of uninhabited jungle and nuclear blasting would pose no major problem. He said use of atomic power in the other countries with possible routes — Panama, Nicaragua and possibly Costa Rica — would bring the need to evacuate the construction area.

In Washington, an inter-American confernce considering admission of new members to the Organization of American States closed with an outburst of oratory praising President Johnson's announcement.

Robles said "President Johnson has accepted the proposal to negotiate an entirely new treaty which would replace the 1903 accord, with its amendments. This will integrally abrogate this accursed treaty.

"Abrogation of the 1903 treaty, explicit recognition of our sovereignty over the Canal Zone and abolition of the perpetuity clause are the three fundamental demands for which the Panamanian nation and its sons have fought for five generations."

In a radio-TV address replying to President Johnson's announcement, Robles did not mention that alternate routes for the new canal through three other countries were under consideration.

The morning newspaper Panama Star said in an editorial today: "Obviously it will be necessary to study with utmost care the consequences that would be derived for Panama from the building of a sea level canal — even if it were built in our territory — so the new treaty may include adequate protection for our economy."

In Managua, Nicaraguan President Rene Shick declined immediate comment on the canal possibilities. Shick said he had not received an official text of President Johnson's declaration.

$3.1 Billion in Tax Exempt Property Noted

Combes, Broomfield mayor, instructed its staff, following a meeting here Friday, to draft proposed legislation for league approval.

The action came after a study of a league report showing there is about $3.1 billion in tax exempt property in Colorado, about half of it being federal property. Of the remainder, around $438.3 million is religious, charitable, county and special district property and about $408 million includes property used for municipal services.

The league's attorney, J. Kinney O'Rourke, who made an analysis of the report, noted that much of the "erosion" in tax base was due to home and big apartment houses for elderly persons built by churches, unions and fraternal groups. He said that in recent years the State Tax Commission had granted 800 tax exemptions for this type of property.

The league also instructed its staff to:

Contact the state's congressmen about the role the federal government plays in encouraging tax-exempt property.

Keep a sharp eye out for any attempts in the 1965 General Assembly to permit taxation of municipally-owned property. An unsuccessful House resolution last winter called for a constitutional amendment to permit the Legislature to provide for a payment in lieu of tax when private property is taken from the tax rolls through purchase by a governmental agency.

O'Rourke estimated the assessed valuation of religious and charitable property in the state at $79.6 million. The average city tax levy of 14.6 mills applied to that valuation would produce $1.6 million in property tax revenue, he added.

The State Constitution now provides that property "that is used solely and exclusively for religious worship, for schools, or for strictly charitable purposes . . . shall be exempt from taxation unless otherwise provided by general law."

United Fund Approves Allocations

set of recommendations was submitted to the board. The first set — the actual allocation of funds was accepted unanimously by the board. The second set—the minimum amount the individual committee members felt should be raised for the support of the agencies, based on this year's study will be considered next Spring, when the goal for the 1966 Drive is set.

The Allocations and Admissions Committee voted increases over last year's allocation to Family Counseling Service, U.S.O., Visiting Nurse Association, Cerebral Palsy Association, Y.M.C.A., Arthritis Foundation, and Multiple Sclerosis Society. The Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Council on Alcoholism and United Health Foundation will receive smaller allocations in 1965, with the remainder of the agencies in the United Fund receiving essentially the same amount as in 1964. The year-round operating budget of the United Fund will remain at $42,000, 9 percent of the goal for the third year.

Man Held for Car Prowl Investigation

A man is being held in City Jail for investigation of car prowl, police said Saturday.

According to the report, he was seen going through a car at 29 S. Weber St. which belongs to Verle C. Hatton, 2415 W. Platte Ave.

He was chased, caught, and after a struggle, subdued. Two electric razors, a screw driver and flashlight were found in his possession. Although he denied prowling Hatton's car, one of the razors is identical with one missing from the Hatton vehicle which according to Hatton had been thoroughly ransacked and a quantity of clothing torn up.

19 Children Die in House Fires Throughout Nation

and a cousin, Arlene Gibbs, 6 months.

The mother, Verda, said she was staying at the house, home of Jesse James Williams, until repairs could be made to her home nearby.

A fire in a rural frame home in the Spear Lake community near Marked Tree in northeast Arkansas took the lives of five children ranging in age from 7 to 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawain D. Lafferty escaped with seven other children, four of them less than five years old.

The victims were sleeping on the second floor; the survivors on the bottom floor.

Police identified the dead as Raymond Lafferty, 16; Laird, 10; Darrin, 9, all boys, and Stacey, 7, and Dorren, 8.

Three children burned to death in a fire that razed their home at Seattle, Wash.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Kealy, suffering severe burns, escaped with two other children.

The dead were Barry, 4; Patricia, 3, and Maureen, 1.

A fire in a 2½ story frame house at Trenton, N. J., caused the deaths of Mary Rittman, 69, a widow, and her daughter, Helen, 40. Firemen said the flames appeared to have started in a shed attached to the rear of the house.

A predawn fire in Dallas swept through upper floors of the seven-story Neiman-Marcus store, heavily stocked for Christmas shopping. Smoke and water damaged other floors.

"It's very difficult to estimate total damage, but it is a multimillion dollar loss," said Stanley Marcus, president of the firm.

Cause of the fire was not immediately determined. A watchman sounded an alarm at about 3 a.m. after hearing what he described as a small explosion.

Grandmother Abandoned By Family

"but we feel it would be best if Mrs. Hopkins returned to Los Angeles."

Mrs. London said that although Mrs. Hopkins' previous Los Angeles address was not known, California authorities had been contacted to determine her welfare status.

She said Mrs. Hopkins' only known income was an $84 Social Security check. Since it would take five years residence to be eligible for welfare aid in Oklahoma, she said Mrs. Hopkins' best chance to supplement her income through welfare would be in California where she had lived since 1947.

Mrs. Hopkins, her few battered suitcases and her fluffy toy dog, were left in front of army headquarters Monday.

Mrs. Hopkins, who is about 65, said she had been traveling from Arkansas to Texas with her daughter, son-in-law and their seven children and two dogs.

"They simply didn't have room for me or food," she explained.

"When they let me out on the sidewalk my son-in-law said, 'we'll see you sometime.' One of my grandchildren said, 'we're going to get rid of you. You eat too much.'"

"But I'm not mad at them," she added. "The whole thing was for the best. I'm contented here."

Catholics, South Baptists Join Episcopal Rites

L. Cadigan, Episcopal bishop of Missouri.

Almost 200 persons jammed into the small church in this northeast Missouri farming town of 2,933 persons.

The Rev. John Schultz, a member of the staff at St. Piux X Roman Catholic parish at Moberly, Mo., read the litany. But he did not take part in the "laying on of hands" ceremony by Bishop Cadigan which marked the actual ordination.

"This service," said the Rev. Samuel Johnston, rector of St. Andrew's Episcopal church in Kansas City," is the symbol of the hoped for reunion of the Christian church." The Rev. Mr. Johnston delivered the sermon.

Father Baker asked permission of Bishop Cadigan who told him: "It was a very acceptable thing."

Then, Father Schultz asked his superior, the Most Rev. Joseph M. Marling, Roman Catholic bishop of Jefferson City, Mo. Bishop Marling also agreed to the interdenominational service.

Canal Crucial For Military, Experts Declare

emphasized by President Johnson in announcing the proposal for building a new sea-level waterway across Panama or adjacent areas to replace the 50-year-old, lock-bound Panama Canal.

A Navy spokesman agreed Saturday that it is true 24 of the Navy's attack carriers cannot get through the existing canal but added that "it can hardly be said that the true strategic importance of the canal is less today than it has been in the past."

He noted that modern nuclear submarines, the new missile cruisers and frigates and antisubmarine warfare vessels, which include rebuilt carriers, can transit the canal.

A sea-level route, with wide channel and no locks, would open the transisthmus route to all U. S. Naval craft and cut hours off the time for traveling the canal.

"The demonstrated value of the Panama Canal in military operations during World War II and the Korean emergency removes all doubt regarding the future need and potential usefulness for meeting the requirements of the defense forces of this nation in peace and war," the spokesman said.

Another defense official commented that he believed the primary military reason for building a sea-level canal was not the fact that bigger ships could use such a waterway but that it would not have the high vulnerability of the present canal to sabotage.

An essential component of the Panama Canal is Gatun Lake which stands between the locks at the Atlantic and Pacific ends. That lake, 82 feet above sea level, is created by a simple earth dam impounding the waters of several rivers and small streams. The defence official said it would take two years to refill the lake to navigable level if the dam were destroyed.

In addition, the locks themselves stand as a target for sabotage or missile fire from enemy submarines.

Plush New Movie Theater Being Built in Springs

seats in Cinema 70 will be brightly colored to blend in with the over-all decor rather than the usual deep maroon and blue.

Deep pile carpeting will cover the auditorium floor. The interior is being designed by Teichert II Studios of Chicago.

The unique circular box office and refreshment stand will be completely separate from the main auditorium. It will be connected to the auditorium by a glass-enclosed walkway.

All of the structures within the circular building will also be constructed in circles—this includes the box office, the refreshment stand and the manager's office.

In addition, Westland Theatres is having a carpet specially woven to blend in with the circular design.

Ample parking will surround the theatre with a variety of exits leading to the parking areas. A special covered walkway will lead from the drive to the box-office and lobby.

The area surrounding the theatre will be completely landscaped to fit in with the luxurious motif.

The theatre, designed by Lusk & Wallace, architects, is the results of a rich heritage of sixty years of theatre design. The late Robert Boller of Kansas City began a nationally prominent career of theatre architecture in 1904. Dietz Lusk, Jr. joined Boller in 1947 as a partner in the firm of Boller and Lusk, architects, with a practice devoted to the design of theatres. In 1955, Lusk joined John J. Wallace Jr. in forming the partnership of Lusk and Wallace in Colorado Springs. Although their practice now covers the entire spectrum of the construction industry, they still maintain an active participation in the development of new techniques for the theatre industry.

Assisting Lusk and Wallace on this unusual structure are Howard C. Dutzi, Structural Engineer, C. Kenneth Kolstead, Electrical Engineer and Walter S. Langebartel, Mechanical Engineer, all of Colorado Springs and T. G. Morrissey, Acoustical Engineer of Denver.

B. H. Baker, Inc. of Colorado Springs are the general contractors for the project. Site work has been started by the Pinello Construction Company and sub-contracts for mechanical and electrical work have been awarded to Olson Plumbing & Heating Co., In. and Whitney Electric Company.

Westland Theatres operate theatres in Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Grand Junction, Colorado. Colorado Springs is the home office.

Man Threatens Woman With Pair of Scissors

An unknown man threatened to kill a local housewife with a pair of scissors after he had obtained permission to use her telephone, the police department said Saturday.

According to the report, the man came to her door about 8:30 Saturday morning and said his mother was ill and asked to use the telephone.

She allowed him to come in and he made his call but afterwards he made no effort to leave and she asked him to go. He then picked up the scissors saying "I'm going to kill you." She told the investigating officer she ran to the back door and said she was going to scream. The man escaped through the front door.

wind damage. It's the worst right now in modern Colorado farming history."

Only winter moisture on the arid eastern plains can break the drought, he said.

High winds that raked across some parts of Colorado during the first part of the week hit some eastern areas but not seriously, he said. The worst wind damage was confined to the land lying along the foothills.

The three-year drought damage already has run into the hundreds of million dollars.

Love made his request for additional federal aid to Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman. Three of the countries are in southwestern Colorado, the first in that area to ask for assistance.

Love asked that seven of them be declared disaster areas because of sustained drought and that another county be declared a disaster area because of too much snow.

The dry spell has reduced hay and grain crops so drastically that farmers are finding it difficult to feed their basic livestock breeding herds. The federal aid provides feed grains at reduced rates and permits grazing on soil bank lands.

Congo Reds Capture Provincial Capital

lightning advance by Congolese troops led by white officers.

Rebels launched an assault on resurgent rebel activities.

Rebel slaunched an assault on Bunia, capital of Kibali-Ituri Province, adjoining to Uele Province, and penetrated the town. The garrison of about 60 white mercenaries and a Congolese contingent was holding out.

About 10,000 rebels were reported massing for an attack on Kindu, capital of Maniema Province 250 miles south of Stanleyville. It was from Kindu that the Congolese army launched its attack on Stanleyville. Kindu was left with only a small garrison when the main body started north and the city holds large stocks of arms and ammunition.

Intelligence sources in Leopoldville were studying Soviet and Communist Chinese machine guns and automatic rifles taken at Paulis. They said much of the captured equipment was old and obsolete, but in excellent working order.

The guns and ammunition were reliably reported shipped to the Congo through Sudan.

Carson Man Beaten After Offered a Ride

A Ft. Carson man had his shoulder dislocated after he received a beating from four men who offered him a lift back to camp early Saturday mornin, the sheriff's office said.

Robert L. Litreal told Deputy Sheriff Eldon McCune that he was standing on the corner at Colorado and Nevada Avenues shortly after midnight when a car with four men in it offered him a ride to Ft. Carson.

They drove south on Nevada Avenue and Litreal was asked if he was a soldier. The four then stated they "did not like doggies" and started roughing him up. When they reached the turn-off close to "B" gate Litreal told them they had broken his shoulder and the four panicked and dumped him out of the car by Moor's Restaurant.

Litreal was treated at Ft. Carson Hospital and had his right shoulder put in a cast as it was completely dislocated.

A car driven by Willie Mayhan, 23, Ft. Carson, burst into flames Friday night on U. S. Highway 85-87, the state patrol reported.

According to Patrolman Arnold Ferrero, the incident happened at the Fountain interchange and Mayhan was traveling south. The Fountain Fire Department put out the blaze. Damage to the 1957 model is estimated at $700.

Egyptians Down American Plane; Two Are Killed

CAIRO (AP)—Egyptian MIG jet fighters Saturday forced down an American plane over the Nile delta. Police said it belonged to the Esso Oil Co. at Aden and that the incinerated corpses of two persons were found near the wreckage.

The plane, a Fairchild was reportedly on a flight from the Gulf of Akaba. The Soviet-built MIGs were sent up when proper radio contact with the plane could not be established, unofficial sources said.

The plane reportedly went down near a small village in the area of Alexandria. The area is dotted with salt marshes and initial reports said that ground parties have not been able to locate the downed aircraft.

One report said the MIG's shot the plane from the skies.

Another version indicated the plane was forced down and did not indicate whether the two people aboard survived.

The sources which disclosed the crash were unable to explain how the identity of the two crewmen as Americans was established.

Former Colonies May Join Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special inter-American conference has cleared the way for admission of the former British colonies of Jamaica and Trinidad-Tobago to the Organization of American States.

The conference voted 19-0 Friday night with Guatemala abstaining to approve a plan for admission of new members, originally put forth by Argentina.

The agreement also opens the way for Canada to join the OAS. But although Canada has indicated interest at times, Latin Americans said they did not think it would join now because it has growing commercial trade with Cuba.

The OAS has voted diplomatic and trade sanctions against Cuba's Communist regime. All OAS countries except Mexico have agreed to abide by the sanctions.

Major U.S. Drive Against Tax Exempt Status Seen

done a good job of weeding out the leftwing organizations," an IRS spokesman said. "The leftist outfits have been under surveillance for years. Also, we have more complaints on the ultra-conservatives."

In most cases, the organizations are accused of putting out political propaganda while wearing a philanthropic, religious or educational label.

Only a few of these organizations have any income which could be taxed, but their special tax status is highly prized. As long as they are classified as tax-exempt, their donors can deduct their contributions from their personal income tax.

The several million dollars that would be collected in taxes if these organizations lost their tax-exempt status would be small compared to the potential revenue that could come from another contemplated treasury move: a revision in the law to restrict the money-making operations of some foundations.

This move would be up to Congress and is not related to the drive on the political interested groups. A recommendation to Congress will come in the early months of 1965.

In the campaign against the use of a tax-exempt organization for political purposes, the IRS has stepped up the rate of examinations from 2,000 a year to 10,000.

Some groups under fire from IRS have said that if their tax exemption is removed, then the government should take similar action against the National Council of Churches and all groups that ever took a stand on any issue.

In reply, an IRS spokesman said, "the law states that a tax-exempt organization must devote a substantial part of its activities to charitable, educational, religious or similar activity. A tax-exempt organization is not supposed to try to influence legislation. Perhaps a good many organizations pass a resolution now and then but their main function is still nonpolitical."

A congressional hearing uncovered an IRS crackdown on Life Line, an organization which has received several million dollars from oilman H. L. Hunt of Dallas to finance radio and television broadcasts.

Also, the Rev. Billy James Hargis of Tulsa, Okla., revealed that his organization, Christian Crusade, was removed from the tax-exempt list by IRS. He plans a court fight.

One of the better known right-wing organizations, the John Birch Society, is not an IRS target. It has never asked for tax-exempt status.

Two Academy Men Named Rhodes Scholars

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, (AP) — Two U.S. Air Force Academy men were among 32 Americans named Rhodes scholars at the completion of nationwide competition Saturday.

Those selected are 2d Lt. Robert L. Sansom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. Sansom, Knoxville, Tenn., and Cadet Alva Holaday, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney E. Holaday, Jamestown, N.D.

The two men selected raised to nine the number of Rhodes scholarships awarded to academy graduates and cadets so far. The academy is the newest of the service academies and celebrated its 10th anniversary in this year.

To date, six classes and approximately 2,000 cadets have been graduated. The Academy had 14 who entered in the Rhodes competition. Four won state competitions.

Both men are scheduled to leave the United States in October to begin two years of study at Oxford, England. They will study in the field of philosophy-politics-economics.

Committees for selections of Rhodes scholars look for four major groups of qualities in selectees. They are scholastic ability, manhood, courage and devotion to duty, moral character and leadership and physical vigor. This whole-man concept employed by the Rhodes committees is comparable to those used by the Air Force Academy in selecting its cadet candidates.

Neiman-Marcus Fire Causes Big Damage

pleted just two years ago when he added a seventh floor and refixtured the entire fifth floor. The greatest damage was done on the fifth floor, where the children's department is located. It was completely gutted. The second and third floors are in part water-soaked. It's not the prettiest scene in the world, I can assure you."

The intense heat cracked some interior walls, but there was no information available on possible structural damage, nor how long the store would be closed.

Neiman-Marcus Co. was founded in 1907 by Herbert Marcus, 29, as a pioneer project in a frontier state. From its beginning, Neiman-Marcus steadily prospered and widened its sphere of influence to become one of the most widely publicized retail stores in the world. Now operated by the founder's four sons — Stanley, Edward, Herbert Jr. and Lawrence — it has branches in North Dallas, Fort Worth and Houston.

Youth Is Injured In Car-Bike Mishap

Carlos J. Allen, 14, of 1307 Arch St., was injured late Saturday afternoon in a bicycle-car accident on the U. S. 24 bypass.

According to patrolman A. L. Smith, the bicycle on which the boy was riding apparently hit the divider island and bounced into the side of a car driven by Malissa J. Holm, 58, Chipita Park. Both vehicles reportedly were traveling west on U. S. 24 and both were in the left lane of traffic.

The boy was taken to Penrose with multiple fractures of the left leg, head injuries and abrasions.

$3.1 Billion in Tax Exempt Property Noted

Combes, Broomfield mayor, instructed its staff, following a meeting here Friday, to draft proposed legislation for league approval.

The action came after a study of a league report showing there is about $3.1 billion in tax exempt property in Colorado, about half of it being federal property. Of the remainder, around $438.3 million is religious, charitable, county and special district property and about $408 million includes property used for municipal services.

The league's attorney, J. Kinney O'Rourke, who made an analysis of the report, noted that much of the "erosion" in tax base was due to home and big apartment houses for elderly persons built by churches, unions and fraternal groups. He said that in recent years the State Tax Commission had granted 800 tax exemptions for this type of property.

The league also instructed its staff to:

Contact the state's congressmen about the role the federal government plays in encouraging tax-exempt property.

Keep a sharp eye out for any attempts in the 1965 General Assembly to permit taxation of municipally-owned property. An unsuccessful House resolution last winter called for a constitutional amendment to permit the Legislature to provide for a payment in lieu of tax when private property is taken from the tax rolls through purchase by a governmental agency.

O'Rourke estimated the assessed valuation of religious and charitable property in the state at $79.6 million. The average city tax levy of 14.6 mills applied to that valuation would produce $1.6 million in property tax revenue, he added.

The State Constitution now provides that property "that is used solely and exclusively for religious worship, for schools, or for strictly charitable purposes . . . shall be exempt from taxation unless otherwise provided by general law."

'Historic Day.' Panama Says About Canal

received an official communique from Washington and said it was "an historic day" for Panama that would "create a favorable atmosphere for negotiations."

In Bogota, Colombian Public Works Minister Tomas Castrillon said the most favorable route for a new sea level interocean canal was through his country, according to the studies made so far by United States and local technicians.

Location of the canal in Colombia would provide that country with millions of dollars in annual revenue, as the present canal now does for Panama.

Castrillon said the Colombian route would pass largely through a region of uninhabited jungle and nuclear blasting would pose no major problem. He said use of atomic power in the other countries with possible routes — Panama, Nicaragua and possibly Costa Rica — would bring the need to evacuate the construction area.

In Washington, an inter-American conference considering admission of new members to the Organization of American States closed with an outburst of oratory praising President Johnson's announcement.

Robles said "President Johnson has accepted the proposal to negotiate an entirely new treaty which would replace the 1903 accord, with its amendments. This will integrally abrogate this accursed treaty.

"Abrogation of the 1903 treaty, explicit recognition of our sovereignty over the Canal Zone and abolition of the perpetuity clause are the three fundamental demands for which the Panamanian nation and its sons have fought for five generations."

In a radio-TV address replying to President Johnson's announcement, Robles did not mention that alternate routes for the new canal through three other countries were under consideration.

The morning newspaper Panama Star said in an editorial today that "obviously it will be necessary to study with utmost care the consequences that would be derived for Panama from the building of a sea level canal — even if it were located in our territory — so the new treaty must include adequate protection for our economy."

In Managua, Nicaraguan President Rene Shick declined immediate comment on the canal possibilities. Shick said he had not received an official text of President Johnson's announcement.

The program will be presented starting at 8 p.m. Monday in the school auditorium. There is no charge, and the public is invited to attend.

Drama students, under the direction of Homer Paris, will present the Christmas play, "The Littlest Angel," with Beth Laturner as narrator.

University Tries Compromise And Firmness

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of California board of regents mixed compromise with firmness Friday in attempting to bring peace to the Berkeley campus.

The board, meeting in Los Angeles, assured leaders of a free speech movement that there won't be any restrictions —beyond constitutional ones — on what causes students can advocate on campus. But the regents also warned they will take "necessary steps" to preserve law and order.

It was the on-campus campaigning for off-campus causes that embroiled the university's Berkeley campus in a three-month uproar over political freedom.

Student spokesmen bristled at the regents' avowal that they were boss—and overlooked the conciliatory aspects of the message.

But faculty spokesmen, who had previously sided with the student campaigners, said "progress has been made" in re-establishing peace on the discord-plagued Berkeley campus.

The academic senate at Berkeley—the faculty group there—had advocated that the students be allowed to champion any political cause they chose on campus. In this the regents Friday agreed.

The academic senate also asked that the faculty be allowed to take over handling of disciplinary measures in the area of political activity. On this the regents disagreed, saying "Ultimate authority for student discipline within the university is constitutionally vested in the regents, and is not subject to negotiation."

"A horrendous action," responded Mario Savio, a student leader.

"This is a tragic day in the history of the University of California," said Stephan Weissman, who appeared with Savio at a news conference at Berkeley after the regents' action was announced.

The regents did agree to review university policies "with the intent of providing maximum freedom on campus," but said existing rules will be firmly enforced pending completion of the study.

On Dec. 3, more than 800 demonstrators were arrested during a protest sit-in.

Misdemeanor charges are pending against those arrested —including 590 students and 50 teaching assistants. After the regents' meeting Friday, Clark Kerr, president of the university, told newsmen that no disciplinary action was planned against the defendants by the university. "It's up to the courts," he said.

Accelerator Stuck, Driver Declares

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI)—Benito L. Colangello, 23, of Pleasant View, Colo., said his accelerator stuck. Reckless driving, said the police.

Police Magistrate John Callahan agreed with the police and fined Colangello $200 after hearing testimony that his car struck a truck, ran a stop sign at 90 miles an hour, crossed a vacant lot, roared up a dirt embankment and sailed over a house.

The program will be presented starting at 8 p.m. Monday in the school auditorium. There is no charge, and the public is invited to attend.

The brass choir with Jon Thomas, trombone soloist, and the string choir will open the three-part program with a variety of Christmas music. Ron Mills is the director of the brass choir, and Nick Rossi directs the string choir.

Charles A. Meeker and John Bearzi will direct the school's six vocal groups in Christmas songs of America and other countries. This major portion of the program will feature the Wasson Choristers and the Wa-Tones, both directed by Meeker.

Drama students, under the direction of Homer Paris, will present the Christmas play, "The Littlest Angel," with Beth Laturner as narrator.

University Tries Compromise And Firmness

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of California board of regents mixed compromise with firmness Friday in attempting to bring peace to the Berkeley campus.

The board, meeting in Los Angeles, assured leaders of a free speech movement that there won't be any restrictions —beyond constitutional ones — on what causes students can advocate on campus. But the regents also warned they will take "necessary steps" to preserve law and order.

It was the on-campus campaigning for off-campus causes that embroiled the university's Berkeley campus in a three-month uproar over political freedom.

Student spokesmen bristled at the regents' avowal that they were boss—and overlooked the conciliatory aspects of the message.

But faculty spokesmen, who had previously sided with the student campaigners, said "progress has been made" in re-establishing peace on the discord-plagued Berkeley campus.

The academic senate at Berkeley—the faculty group there—had advocated that the students be allowed to champion any political cause they chose on campus. In this the regents Friday agreed.

The academic senate also asked that the faculty be allowed to take over handling of disciplinary measures in the area of political activity. On this the regents disagreed, saying "Ultimate authority for student discipline within the university is constitutionally vested in the regents, and is not subject to negotiation."

"A horrendous action," responded Mario Savio, a student leader.

"This is a tragic day in the history of the University of California," said Stephan Weissman, who appeared with Savio at a news conference at Berkeley after the regents' action was announced.

The regents did agree to review university policies "with the intent of providing maximum freedom on campus," but said existing rules will be firmly enforced pending completion of the study.

On Dec. 3, more than 800 demonstrators were arrested during a protest sit-in.

Misdemeanor charges are pending against those arrested —including 590 students and 50 teaching assistants. After the regents' meeting Friday, Clark Kerr, president of the university, told newsmen that no disciplinary action was planned against the defendants by the university. "It's up to the courts," he said.

Accelerator Stuck, Driver Declares

GOLDEN, Colo. (UPI)—Benito L. Colangello, 23, of Pleasant View, Colo., said his accelerator stuck. Reckless driving, said the police.

Police Magistrate John Callahan agreed with the police and fined Colangello $200 after hearing testimony that his car struck a truck, ran a stop sign at 90 miles an hour, crossed a vacant lot, roared up a dirt embankment and sailed over a house.

Malfeld to Teach at Canon City

The Colorado Department of Classroom Teachers has selected Harold Malfeld, a teacher at Stratton Elementary School, to conduct teaching demonstrations at three instructional conferences in January and February.

The conferences for teachers are scheduled at Limon, Fort Collins, and Craig. Each conference includes a teaching demonstration in a classroom situation using pupils from the local schools. A question and answer session follows each demonstration.

The DCT picked Malfeld because of his outstanding techniques for teaching social studies and for his ability to work with boys and girls in the intermediate grades.

Malfeld came to District 11 in 1962 after teaching in Iowa and Minnesota schools. He holds a bachelors degree from the State College of Iowa and a masters degree from Colorado State College.

Kennecott Copper May Expand in Chile

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Export-Import Bank said Friday it had conducted "some preliminary conversations" with the Kennecott Copper Co. looking toward expansion of the firm's operation in Chile.

A spokesman for the bank said the conversations dealt specifically with the operations of the Braden Copper Co., but he gave no details.

The spokesman said the purpose of the Export - Import Bank loans was to finance the export of U.S. equipment and services.

"Any loan the bank might consider in Chile in connection with the copper companies would be for this purpose and not to acquire an ownership interest in an existing property."

CHRISTMAS FOR BLIND

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Associated Blind, whose policy is "let the blind lead the blind," threw a unique Christmas party today for blind children who have been writing their Christmas wishes to a blind Santa Claus in Braille.

The sightless Santa is Irving M. Selis, the organization's executive director, who gave the youngsters what they asked for on their lists — Braille watches, Braille interlocking dominoes and other gifts, each inscribed with the child's name in Braille.

A MERRIER CHRISTMAS—The makers of Butter-Nut Coffee hope to make it a Merrier Christmas for less fortunate children like these through the efforts of the Butter-Nut Christmas Club. In Colorado Springs, boys and girls at the Christian Home for Children, 6 W. Cheyenne Rd., are expected to receive a truckload of gifts from Butter-Nut sometime today.

Butter-Nut Yule Club Gives Toys to Children

Christmas will be made a little brighter this year for some 25 youngsters at the Christian Home for Children, 6 W. Cheyenne Rd., due to the efforts of the Butter-Nut Coffee Christmas Club.

This marks the 27th year the roasters of Butter-Nut have carried out the nationwide philanthropic activity. Toys have been delivered to the local children's home for more than 10 years.

According to Robert W. Sawyer, superintendent of the Christian Home for Children, the Butter-Nut coffee-makers have always delivered enough toys to go around. "I think they've been quite kind", said Sawyer.

This year's Butternut Christmas Club theme is, "Make This a Christmas to Remember." The nationwide coffee concern last year distributed individual gifts to every boy and girl in 338 children's homes. This ammounted to more than 35,000 gifts.

The Christmas Club is run on the basis of sales in a particular area of the country. By turning in labels and certificates from Butter-Nut Coffee jars or tins, you add to the number of gifts the company will distribute.

Thousands of grocers volunteer as collecting agents and literally millions of people save the much-needed labels and certificates.

Also, many hundreds of civic, social and church groups make a year-round project of collecting the certificates and labels.

With the encouragement, evidenced by the labels and certificates deposited with grocers or sent directly to the club by mail, the Butter-Nut Christmas Club buys packages and ships the gifts to children's homes across the country.

The collection of labels and certificates begins during November and runs until mid-December each year. Of course, saving the goods is a year-round job.

Delivery of gifts to the Christian Home for Children is expected sometime today, according to Butter-Nut officials.

The local home is supported strictly from unsolicited benefactors. It has been in existence for 29 years, 20 of which were in its present location.

Sawyer has been superintendent of the home for the past seven years. About a dozen persons work at the home, which covers two acres of land in the southwest end of the city.

The first session of the House of Representatives consisted of 65 members from the original 13 states. Fifty-three belonged to the Federalist party and 12 were Democrats.

PARTS AND PIECES—Bit by bit the pile of wrecked toys begin to accumulate. T. Sgt. Curtis T. Peterson (left), bowling lanes manager. Airman 2.C. His Tree Is Right in Tune With Season

Christmas trees come in all sizes shapes, and varieties and, in the past few years, all colors.

But there's an Air Force Academy major who will have Santa's eyes a-poppin' come Christmas Eve.

The tree at the home of Maj. Richard Brown is "set to music"!

The huge, white, artificial tree reaches to the Brown's ceiling. At the top, the lights are yellow. There is a thick band of green lights in the center and a band of red ones at the bottom.

The cords from the lights are hooked into three outlets in an electrical connection which, in turn, is hooked into a stereo set.

When music is played, the lights flash on and off.

The base beat controls the red lights, the middle tones the green, and the gold lights burn when a high note is hit

When Prez Prado or Stan Kenton blast forth from the stereo, the tree really goes wild, Maj. Brown chortles.

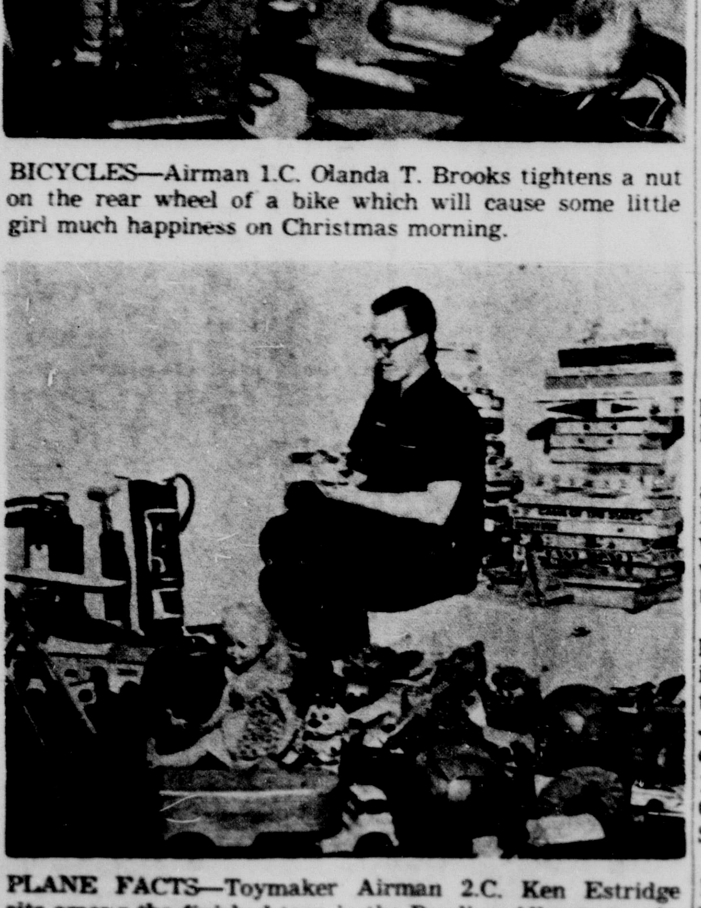
Smoke Fills Homes Saturday Morning

The Colorado Springs Fire Department had two smoked-up houses to fan out early Saturday morning.

The first alarm came at 2:43 a.m., when Company 1 went to 310 E. Cucharras St. This was a mattress fire. No one was injured, but the house was filled with smoke. The firemen put out the fire, then installed fans and fanned out the smoke.

The second alarm was received at 3:43 a.m. Company 6 went to the residence. Don Plush, 2432 N. Farragut Ave. A furnace motor had malfunctioned, causing smoke to accumulate in the house. There were no injuries. The firemen fanned out the smoke.

BICYCLES—Airman 1.C. Olanda T. Brooks tightens a nut on the rear wheel of a bike which will cause some little girl much happiness on Christmas morning.



PLANE FACTS—Toymaker Airman 2.C. Ken Estridge sits among the finished toys in the Bowling Alley to touch-up a biwinged plane for some young pilot for Christmas.

TOYS FOR TOTS—Mrs. John F. Bennett, chairman of the Colorado Springs Christmas Unlimited, and Mayor Harry Hoth congratulate Col. Howard H. Cloud Jr., Ent Air Force Base commander, for the outstanding job done by Special Services at Ent in collecting and repairing old toys for the underprivileged children of the city.

Santa's Helpers at Ent Give Children Christmas

Ent Air Force Base Special Services has collected several tons of toys for tots due to the generosity and interest of base personnel, some who perhaps remember a Christmas without toys when they were children.

Sparkling eyes on Mary Jane and toothless grin on Billy are the paychecks expected by five airmen for their hours of extra work, repairing, painting and cleaning these old toys.

A1C Orlanda T. Brooks, A2C Larry E. Witte, TSgt. Curtis T. Peterson, A2C Ken Estridge and MSgt. Gilbert D. Souza have pounded, gouged, sprayed, and punched a twisted pile of gray junk into an impressive array of colorful Christmas presents.

Distribution of the toys will will be made through Welfare Agencies in the Pikes Peak Region for the underprivileged children of the area.

Sergeant Souza, NCOIC of Base Special Service, promotes Sergeant Peterson as being the instigator of the project. "He brought it up, others contributed ideas, some contributed labor, and we all promoted it to the limit."

Sergeant Peterson, Bowling Lanes manager, recalls when they started the project, some very attractive toys tempted some of them who had kids at home. "Sergeant Souza reminded us we would be taking a toy out of the hands of some little girl or boy at Christmas — possibly the only toy the child would get. Need it be said no toys were taken."

Bowling alley preventative maintenance man, Airman Witte, and pin setter mechanic, Airman Brooks, applied their talent to rebuilding bicycles, wagons and other mechanical toys. By trading parts and receiving contributions from local bicycle merchants, they were able to piece together numerous bicycles, tricycles and wagons.

With lost springs re-placed, gouges removed, bright bits of paint applied, the group of "Santa's Helpers" has produced a whole stable of hobby horses for pint-sized cowboys.

Two workshops, one behind the pin setter at the bowling alley and the other at the Peterson Field Hobby Shop, have been filled with toys since early November. The assembly line efficiency of the group has turned out more than two tons of like-new toys for distribution to the needy.

"When we began this project," says Sergeant Souza, "little did we dream that the people of Ent Air Force Base would respond with such a surge of repairable toys." The credit for the success for this entire project goes to those people who donated. Without those donations, we'd have had nothing to repair."

Springs Junior College Needed Speaker Says

Colorado Springs, in order to meet the future demands of higher education for the younger people of the area, must in the near future give thought to the building of a junior college, according to Dr. Arthur R. Olson. Olson, speaking at the Embers Restaurant to a meeting of the Exchange Club, is the Deputy Superintendent of Schools for District 11.

Dr. Olsen, speaking under the title "Priorities in Education," said there are five main priorities that the school system recognizes. He said "we must continue to work towards raising achievement standards in schools, we should maintain quality while working with the problem of quantity, and we must also recognize that responsibility for the student's training is shared between home, church, mass media, and schools." "We must continue to try to upgrade and update the content of the curriculum," he continued, "and we should also rethink the structure and organism of schools. To do this, we must attract more teachers of higher quality by giving them better working conditions and salaries."

Dr. Olson said the national average cost of sending a student through school for a year is $550, while in District 11, it is just over $400 per student. He said that "This shows that the taxpayer in District 11 is getting a very favorable return on his investment." He gave as one of the reasons for this the professional dedication of the teachers in the district, which he said was "perhaps not matched in very many districts."

He said that District 11 faces a continuing enrollment problem, because the student population increases by some 2,000 pupils a year, and at the present time is up to 24,000.

One of the real problems that must be faced soon, according to Dr. Olson, is the problem of higher education. This is especially true in Colorado Springs, he said, because the colleges supported by the state are located elsewhere. "We are behind in Colorado in terms of junior college facilities," he said.

The obvious answer to the problem of higher education is a junior college program, but this brings up the problem of finances, he said. "A junior college should be financed at least in part by the State," he continued, "and this problem came up at the Governor's Conference in Denver last week."

He said that at the conference no answers were provided, but that among the solutions considered were a State income tax or a Sales Tax. He said the sales Tax could either be levied on a state wide or county basis. At this time, 23 per cent of school support already comes from the State.

Dr. Olson concluded that "a healthy, wholesome, critical interest in schools by everyone is imperative."

PRESIDING CHAIRMAN—Dr. Ray O. Werner, professor of economics at Colorado College, was described as a "dynamic and capable chairman" by United Fund president, James D. Russell. Werner headed an eight month study and allocations program which began last April with the assignment of each committee member to a specific agency. During the November meetings to decide on allocations the "liaison persons" were given fifteen minutes to present a sympathetic, objective and impartial analysis of the agency to the entire committee. This presentation followed the report from the agency itself.

Liaison Committee Proves to Be Huge Success for UF This Year

A more thoughtful group with better leadership could not be found to determine the allocation of funds rasied by the United Fund for its agencies, according to James D. Russell, United Fund president, who announced Saturday that the Board of Trustees had adopted the allocations recommended by the committee.

Members of the Allocations and Admissions Committee were selected last April to serve as liaison representatives to specific agencies and to form the entire committee. As liaison personnel, the group was directed by the chairman, Ray O. Werner, of Colorado College to provide "impartial, sympathetic, and objective counsel to the agencies."

The fact that they succeeded was demonstrated time and time again as agency representatives presented the over-all budget and program information to the entire committee.

"Our liaison member, John Hoff, knows more about the Y.M.C.A than many of our board members. He came to our meetings, visited camps and studied our program with exacting thoroughness," Judge David Enoch, president of the Y.M.C.A. said, during the budget presentation of that agency to the committee.

Executive secretary, Mrs. Staurt Hinds, of the Mental Health Association, was out of town when her agency's budget was presented but as Rev. Christian Thearle, mental health president, put it, "Col. Robert Clark, our United Fund liaison member, is almost as able to answer any question on our agency as the executive. He has made a thorough study and really knows the program and problems.

"This idea of assigning a liaison team to each agency is the most wonderful thing that could have happened. Now we know that the committee really understands what we are trying to do in the field of the retarded." Mrs. Andrew Marshall, executive secretary of the Retarded Children's Association.

The liaison approach to the agencies was initiated last April. At first, the liaison team was invited by each agency to a board meetings, and later to other functions. Soon the team members had exhibited such enthusiasm and interest that many agencies began to consider them as part of their organization.

Did it make the allocation procedure easier? Members who have served on this committee for many years say yes, with qualifications. The feeling that the agencies were better understood than ever before made the process easier. However, the findings of the committee that genuine needs did exceed available funds made the allocation process more difficult. It was decided to specifically acquaint the United Fund Board with the conviction of the committee that a concentrated effort to raise more money next year, should be made. This resulted in the submission of two lists of figures. . .the recommended allocations, based on available funds and a list representing the minimum amount the individual members would have preferred to allocate, had additional funds been available. These figures represented the committee's opinion of minimum needs and included substantial cuts over the actual requests of several agencies.

During the final phase of its exhaustive study, the committe was faced with five unique and difficult problems:

First, four of the agencies will receive bequests estimated at $250,000 each: Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Boys Club, and Salvation Army.

The United Fund Board had previously advised all agencies that income from the portion of the estate which would be invested, should be considered as operating income. However, all of the affiliated agencies, including those named in the will, submitted requests for as much or more than was allocated last year.

Werner pointed out that a small increase in goal, just $4,800 over 1963, had been approved by the board. "U.S.O. problems exist and there are pressing needs in other agencies. We must decide which of the badly needed programs of all 33 agencies can be underwritten with available funds," he said.

"Primarily the United Fund is the source of income which underwrites that portion of an agency's program which cannot be underwritten from any other source," he added.

A negotiation meeting with the Red Cross set the stage for later deliberations on the subject of income from invested funds. Because of a unique contract, the Red Cross request to the United Fund must be accepted as submitted. This is a national requirement and exists in all United Fund-Red Cross affiliations. Through the years the Pikes Peak Chapter has negotiated differences and this year was no exception. The Red Cross request was for the same amount as was allocated last year, $87,000. Through negotiations the Red Cross agreed to cut its request by $3,000 in anticipation that income between $4,000 and $5,000 will be earned from the invested bequest in 1965. The liaison team, Miss Agnes Donaldson and Ed Lohman, who studied the Red Cross, defended the budget and program assuring the committee that the agency operates frugally with a dedicated staff.

The committee debated the issue of the bequest from the first meeting until the final decision on allocation was made. Key arguments against using the income from bequests to reduce the United Fund allocation to the recipients were: the donor's probable desire to improve the financial situation of the agency which received the bequest, and the feeling that the needs of the recipient agencies exceed the United Fund's ability to provide funds.

The debate always ended with the main concern of the committee stated simply: "We must determine which of the important and necessary services offered by each agency can be underwritten with available funds."

"This is not a new or different problem," Werner reminded the committee. "Agencies have been using endowment income for operating expenses for many years. In fairness to the other agencies we just can't ignore the fact that certain agencies have received this wonderful windfall."

The second problem concerned the U.S.O. The U.S.O., which operated part of last year on a national allocation, is now locally incorporated and financed. This year, the U.S.O. needs a full year's operating budget from the United Fund. A nationwide change in U.S.O. structure makes local communities responsible for their own U.S.O. Clubs. The U.S.O. requested $11,000 more than was allocated locally when the National U.S.O. paid the bills.

The third problem facing the committee involved Family Counseling Service. Family Counseling Service began using a reserve designated for housing to underwrite operating expenses this year.

"With the encouragement of the United Fund, this agency hired at an increase in salary, the best new executive it could find after the retirement of its former executive," John Gallagher, president of Family Counseling Service, told the committee. The representatives of Family Service also outlined a changed and improved program which includes the traditional marriage counseling with troubled families, and adds an educational and consulting program with pastors, teachers, physicians and other groups to assist in preventing family breakdowns.

The liaison team composed of Mrs. Hartwell Morin, Mrs. J. Reid Pearson and Dr. Rudolph Gomez, urged the commitee to grant the full request, an increase of $9,000. The trio expressed enthusiasm for the plans of the agency and asked the committee to make it possible for the expanded program to go into effect.

The Visiting Nurse Association also ended the year with a deficit, providing the committee with the fourth major problem. The agency had required the emergency help of a local trust fund to complete this year. This agency, which is associated with the City-County Health Department, pays the portion of the nursing budget of the Health Department, which represents bedside nursing care of patients. The unique alliance composed of public health nursing, school nursing and visiting nursing, assures Colorado Springs of the most economical use of its public health money and United Fund allocations, according to Mrs. J. Earl Scott and Miss Anne Trostel, liaison representatives to the agency.

In past years, the United Fund's share of the budget was one-fifth. Last year it was determined by the Visiting Nurse Association and the Public Health Board that one-fourth of the nurses time is spent in bedside care. While the request was for one-fourth of the total nursing budget of the Health Department, the United Fund allocated one-fifth of the budget, due to insufficient funds to meet all the needs of all the agencies. Unlike previous years, the Health

"Down to the sea in ships" . . .can be said of five area youths, who are now Bluejackets of the U. S. Navy.

Twenty-year-old William Van Metre is the most recent enlistee into the Navy. Last Tuesday he passed his final physical and mental qualifications and "shipped-out" to the Recruit Training Command at San Diego, Calif. He is the son of Mrs. Warde E. Hess, 512 S. Black Forest Rd. Seaman Recruit Van Metre, a graduate of the Air Academy High School, class of '62, enlisted under the high school graduate program. According to the local recruiters, he will attend a service school upon completion of recruit training.

PARTS AND PIECES—Bit by bit the pile of wrecked toys begin to accumulate. T. Sgt. Curtis T. Peterson (left), bowling lanes manager. Airman 2.C. Larry Witte, preventive maintenance man, and Airman 1.C. Olanda T. Brooks, mechanic, collect some of the pieces to begin construction of toys for underprivileged children.

SHOP TALK—In their toy repair shop at rear of the Base Bowling Alley, M. Sgt. Gilbert D. Souza (left) NCOIC of Special Services and T. Sgt. Curtis T. Peterson, bowling lanes manager, talk over the "Toys for Tots" project as they prepare to add a hobby horse and a helicopter to their inventory.

His Tree Is Right in Tune With Season

Christmas trees come in all sizes shapes, and varieties and, in the past few years, all colors.

But there's an Air Force Academy major who will have Santa's eyes a-poppin' come Christmas Eve.

The tree at the home of Maj. Richard Brown is "set to music"!

The huge, white, artificial tree reaches to the Brown's ceiling. At the top, the lights are yellow. There is a thick band of green lights in the center and a band of red ones at the bottom.

The cords from the lights are hooked into three outlets in an electrical connection which, in turn, is hooked into a stereo set.

When music is played, the lights flash on and off.

The base beat controls the red lights, the middle tones the green, and the gold lights burn when a high note is hit

When Prez Prado or Stan Kenton blast forth from the stereo, the tree really goes wild, Maj. Brown chortles.

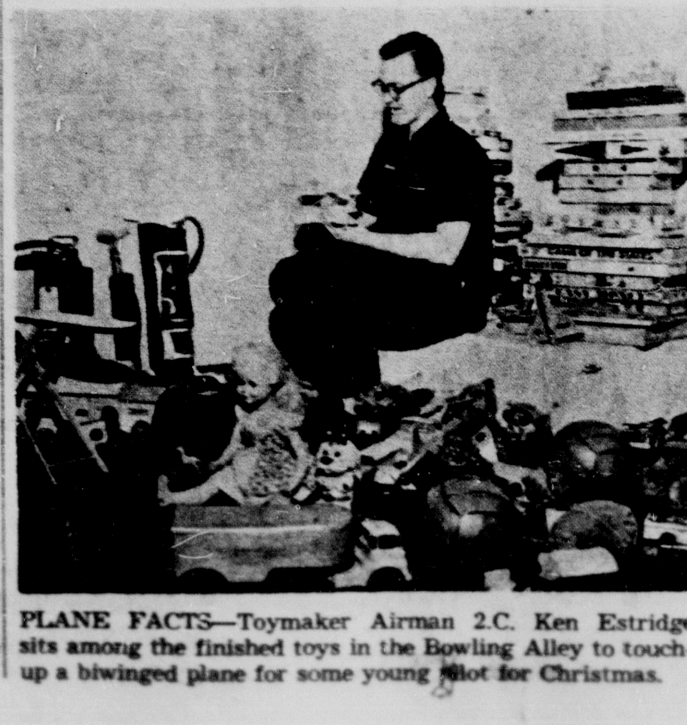
Smoke Fills Homes Saturday Morning

The Colorado Springs Fire Department had two smoked-up houses to fan out early Saturday morning.

The first alarm came at 2:43 a.m., when Company 1 went to 310 E. Cucharras St. This was a mattress fire. No one was injured, but the house was filled with smoke. The firemen put out the fire, then installed fans and fanned out the smoke.

The second alarm was received at 3:43 a.m. Company 6 went to the residence. Don Plush, 2432 N. Farragut Ave. A furnace motor had malfunctioned, causing smoke to accumulate in the house. There were no injuries. The firemen fanned out the smoke.

BICYCLES—Airman 1.C. Olanda T. Brooks tightens a nut on the rear wheel of a bike which will cause some little girl much happiness on Christmas morning.



PLANE FACTS—Toymaker Airman 2.C. Ken Estridge sits among the finished toys in the Bowling Alley to touch-up a biwinged plane for some young pilot for Christmas.

ONCENTRATION

TOYS FOR TOTS—Mrs. John F. Bennett, chairman of the Colorado Springs Christmas Unlimited, and Mayor Harry Hoth congratulate Col. Howard H. Cloud Jr., Ent Air Force Base commander, for the outstanding job done by Special Services at Ent in collecting and repairing old toys for the underprivileged children of the city.

Santa's Helpers at Ent Give Children Christmas

Ent Air Force Base Special Services has collected several tons of toys for tots due to the generosity and interest of base personnel, some who perhaps remember a Christmas without toys when they were children.

Sparkling eyes on Mary Jane and toothless grin on Billy are the paychecks expected by five airmen for their hours of extra work, repairing, painting and cleaning these old toys.

A1C Orlanda T. Brooks, A2C Larry E. Witte, TSgt. Curtis T. Peterson, A2C Ken Estridge and MSgt. Gilbert D. Souza have pounded, gouged, sprayed, and punched a twisted pile of gray junk into an impressive array of colorful Christmas presents.

Distribution of the toys will will be made through Welfare Agencies in the Pikes Peak Region for the underprivileged children of the area.

Sergeant Souza, NCOIC of Base Special Service, promotes Sergeant Peterson as being the instigator of the project. "He brought it up, others contributed ideas, some contributed labor, and we all promoted it to the limit."

Sergeant Peterson, Bowling Lanes manager, recalls when they started the project, some very attractive toys tempted some of them who had kids at home. "Sergeant Souza reminded us we would be taking a toy out of the hands of some little girl or boy at Christmas — possibly the only toy the child would get. Need it be said no toys were taken."

Bowling alley preventative maintenance man, Airman Witte, and pin setter mechanic, Airman Brooks, applied their talent to rebuilding bicycles, wagons and other mechanical toys. By trading parts and receiving contributions from local bicycle merchants, they were able to piece together numerous bicycles, tricycles and wagons.

With lost springs re-placed, gouges removed, bright bits of paint applied, the group of "Santa's Helpers" has produced a whole stable of hobby horses for pint-sized cowboys.

Two workshops, one behind the pin setter at the bowling alley and the other at the Peterson Field Hobby Shop, have been filled with toys since early November. The assembly line efficiency of the group has turned out more than two tons of like-new toys for distribution to the needy.

"When we began this project," says Sergeant Souza, "little did we dream that the people of Ent Air Force Base would respond with such a surge of repairable toys." The credit for the success for this entire project goes to those people who donated. Without those donations, we'd have had nothing to repair."

Springs Man Booked During Investigation

Robert Conway, 30, 3303 N. Hancock Ave. was booked into County Jail Saturday for investigation of simple assault, the sheriff's department reported.

According to Deputy Sheriff Lee Quein, Charles Lacy of Holly Hall had followed Conway and his wife Mary, 3303 Hancock Ave., home Friday telling them he had a gun.

Lacy told the officer that Conway had come out of his trailer just as Lacy was leaving and shot at him with a rifle. The bullet went through the windshield of Lacy's pickup and Lacy then signed a complaint.

Springs Junior College Needed Speaker Says

Colorado Springs, in order to meet the future demands of higher education for the younger people of the area, must in the near future give thought to the building of a junior college, according to Dr. Arthur R. Olson. Olson, speaking at the Embers Restaurant to a meeting of the Exchange Club, is the Deputy Superintendent of Schools for District 11.

Dr. Olsen, speaking under the title "Priorities in Education," said there are five main priorities that the school system recognizes. He said "we must continue to work towards raising achievement standards in schools, we should maintain quality while working with the problem of quantity, and we must also recognize that responsibility for the student's training is shared between home, church, mass media, and schools." "We must continue to try to upgrade and update the content of the curriculum," he continued, "and we should also rethink the structure and organism of schools. To do this, we must attract more teachers of higher quality by giving them better working conditions and salaries."

Dr. Olson said the national average cost of sending a student through school for a year is $550, while in District 11, it is just over $400 per student. He said that "This shows that the taxpayer in District 11 is getting a very favorable return on his investment." He gave as one of the reasons for this the professional dedication of the teachers in the district, which he said was "perhaps not matched in very many districts."

He said that District 11 faces a continuing enrollment problem, because the student population increases by some 2,000 pupils a year, and at the present time is up to 24,000.

One of the real problems that must be faced soon, according to Dr. Olson, is the problem of higher education. This is especially true in Colorado Springs, he said, because the colleges supported by the state are located elsewhere. "We are behind in Colorado in terms of junior college facilities," he said.

The obvious answer to the problem of higher education is a junior college program, but this brings up the problem of finances, he said. "A junior college should be financed at least in part by the State," he continued, "and this problem came up at the Governor's Conference in Denver last week."

He said that at the conference no answers were provided, but that among the solutions considered were a State income tax or a Sales Tax. He said the sales Tax could either be levied on a state wide or county basis. At this time, 23 per cent of school support already comes from the State.

Dr. Olson concluded that "a healthy, wholesome, critical interest in schools by everyone is imperative."

PRESIDING CHAIRMAN—Dr. Ray O. Werner, professor of economics at Colorado College, was described as a "dynamic and capable chairman" by United Fund president, James D. Russell. Werner headed an eight month study and allocations program which began last April with the assignment of each committee member to a specific agency. During the November meetings to decide on allocations the "liaison persons" were given fifteen minutes to present a sympathetic, objective and impartial analysis of the agency to the entire committee. This presentation followed the report from the agency itself.

Liaison Committee Proves to Be Huge Success for UF This Year

A more thoughtful group with better leadership could not be found to determine the allocation of funds rasied by the United Fund for its agencies, according to James D. Russell, United Fund president, who announced Saturday that the Board of Trustees had adopted the allocations recommended by the committee.

Members of the Allocations and Admissions Committee were selected last April to serve as liaison representatives to specific agencies and to form the entire committee. As liaison personnel, the group was directed by the chairman, Ray O. Werner, of Colorado College to provide "impartial, sympathetic, and objective counsel to the agencies."

The fact that they succeeded was demonstrated time and time again as agency representatives presented the over-all budget and program information to the entire committee.

"Our liaison member, John Hoff, knows more about the Y.M.C.A than many of our board members. He came to our meetings, visited camps and studied our program with exacting thoroughness," Judge David Enoch, president of the Y.M.C.A. said, during the budget presentation of that agency to the committee.

Executive secretary, Mrs. Staurt Hinds, of the Mental Health Association, was out of town when her agency's budget was presented but as Rev. Christian Thearle, mental health president, put it, "Col. Robert Clark, our United Fund liaison member, is almost as able to answer any question on our agency as the executive. He has made a thorough study and really knows the program and problems.

"This idea of assigning a liaison team to each agency is the most wonderful thing that could have happened. Now we know that the committee really understands what we are trying to do in the field of the retarded," Mrs. Andrew Marshall, executive secretary of the Retarded Children's Association.

The liaison approach to the agencies was initiated last April. At first, the liaison team was invited by each agency to a board meetings, and later to other functions. Soon the team members had exhibited such enthusiasm and interest that many agencies began to consider them as part of their organization.

Did it make the allocation procedure easier? Members who have served on this committee for many years say yes, with qualifications. The feeling that the agencies were better understood than ever before made the process easier. However, the findings of the committee that genuine needs did exceed available funds made the allocation process more difficult. It was decided to specifically acquaint the United Fund Board with the conviction of the committee that a concentrated effort to raise more money next year, should be made. This resulted in the submission of two lists of figures. . .the recommended allocations, based on available funds and a list representing the minimum amount the individual members would have preferred to allocate, had additional funds been available. These figures represented the committee's opinion of minimum needs and included substantial cuts over the actual requests of several agencies.

During the final phase of its exhaustive study, the committe was faced with five unique and difficult problems:

First, four of the agencies will receive bequests estimated at $250,000 each: Red Cross, Boy Scouts, Boys Club, and Salvation Army.

The United Fund Board had previously advised all agencies that income from the portion of the estate which would be invested, should be considered as operating income. However, all of the affiliated agencies, including those named in the will, submitted requests for as much or more than was allocated last year.

Werner pointed out that a small increase in goal, just $4,800 over 1963, had been approved by the board. "U.S.O. problems exist and there are pressing needs in other agencies. We must decide which of the badly needed programs of all 33 agencies can be underwritten with available funds," he said.

"Primarily the United Fund is the source of income which underwrites that portion of an agency's program which cannot be underwritten from any other source," he added.

A negotiation meeting with the Red Cross set the stage for later deliberations on the subject of income from invested funds. Because of a unique contract, the Red Cross request to the United Fund must be accepted as submitted. This is a national requirement and exists in all United Fund-Red Cross affiliations. Through the years the Pikes Peak Chapter has negotiated differences and this year was no exception. The Red Cross request was for the same amount as was allocated last year, $87,000. Through negotiations the Red Cross agreed to cut its request by $3,000 in anticipation that income between $4,000 and $5,000 will be earned from the invested bequest in 1965. The liaison team, Miss Agnes Donaldson and Ed Lohman, who studied the Red Cross, defended the budget and program assuring the committee that the agency operates frugally with a dedicated staff.

The committee debated the issue of the bequest from the first meeting until the final decision on allocation was made. Key arguments against using the income from bequests to reduce the United Fund allocation to the recipients were: the donor's probable desire to improve the financial situation of the agency which received the bequest, and the feeling that the needs of the recipient agencies exceed the United Fund's ability to provide funds.

The debate always ended with the main concern of the committee stated simply: "We must determine which of the important and necessary services offered by each agency can be underwritten with available funds."

"This is not a new or different problem," Werner reminded the committee. "Agencies have been using endowment income for operating expenses for many years. In fairness to the other agencies we just can't ignore the fact that certain agencies have received this wonderful windfall."

The second problem concerned the U.S.O. The U.S.O., which operated part of last year on a national allocation, is now locally incorporated and financed. This year, the U.S.O. needs a full year's operating budget from the United Fund. A nationwide change in U.SO. structure makes local communities responsible for their own U.S.O. Clubs. The U.S.O. requested $11,000 more than was allocated locally when the National U.S.O. paid the bills.

The third problem facing the committee involved Family Counseling Service. Family Counseling Service began using a reserve designated for housing to underwrite operating expenses this year.

"With the encouragement of the United Fund, this agency hired at an increase in salary, the best new executive it could find after the retirement of its former executive," John Gallagher, president of Family Counseling Service, told the committee. The representatives of Family Service also outlined a changed and improved program which includes the traditional marriage counseling with troubled families, and adds an educational and consulting program with pastors, teachers, physicians and other groups to assist in preventing family breakdowns.

The liaison team composed of Mrs. Hartwell Morin, Mrs. J. Reid Pearson and Dr. Rudolph Gomez, urged the commitee to grant the full request, an increase of $9,000. The trio expressed enthusiasm for the plans of the agency and asked the committee to make it possible for the expanded program to go into effect.

The Visiting Nurse Association also ended the year with a deficit, providing the committee with the fourth major problem. The agency had required the emergency help of a local trust fund to complete this year. This agency, which is associated with the City-County Health Department, pays the portion of the nursing budget of the Health Department, which represents bedside nursing care of patients. The unique alliance composed of public health nursing, school nursing and visiting nursing, assures Colorado Springs of the most economical use of its public health money and United Fund allocations, according to Mrs. J. Earl Scott and Miss Anne Trostel, liaison representatives to the agency.

In past years, the United Fund's share of the budget was one-fifth. Last year it was determined by the Visiting Nurse Association and the Public Health Board that one-fourth of the nurses time is spent in bedside care. While the request was for one-fourth of the total nursing budget of the Health Department, the United Fund allocated one-fifth of the budget, due to insufficient funds to meet all the needs of all the agencies. Unlike previous years, the Health

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♣

The success of a great many contracts hinges on control of the lead. Wherever declarer is confronted with a choice in finessing, he may find it to his advantage to ask himself which opponent he wishes to have on lead. Failure to pose this question cost South a game in todays hand.

The bidding was routine North has 10 points in high cards which seems to touch the upper limits of the requirements for a single raise. However, the completely even distribution may be looked on as a slight defect, and he should not feel that his two heart bid is overly conservative. South, of course, has a comfortable jump to four hearts.

West opened the nine of clubs, and, though the finesse seemed destined to fail, declarer played the ten from dummy. East won the trick with the king and an immediate shift to the jack of diamonds netted the defenders three more tricks in that suit for a one trick set. South muttered something about two cards being wrong and the players proceeded to the next deal.

By the simple expedient of controlling the lead, declarer could have assured his contract against anything but a very bad break. All he had to do was to keep East out of the lead so that the diamond king would not be subject to direct attack.

The club opening is taken by dummys ace of clubs and the top spade honors are cashed at once. A trump is led over to the eight and the jack of spades is returned. When East plays low, South discards the queen of clubs. West is in with the queen of spades and his best defense is to lead a fourth spade to kill the sluff. East ruffs and declarer overruffs. The last trump is drawn with dummy's nine of hearts and the jack of clubs is led. If East covers with the king, South ruffs and the ten of clubs is established for the needed diamond discard. The ace of hearts is still in dummy for a late entry. If East fails to cover the jack of clubs, South gets his discard immediately.

LT. COL. C. H. PRICE

Col. C. H. Price Named to State Society Office

Lt. Col. Charles H. Price, Assistant Deputy for Support, Hq. 4600th Air Base Wing, at Ent Air Force Base was elected Vice - President of Colorado's Federation of German American Societies at the annual Federation Convention held recently in Denver.

Col. Price has long been associated with German-American activities in the Colorado Springs - Denver area. In 1961, following his assignment to Colorado Springs after a five year tour with U. S. Air Force Headquarters in Europe, Col Price was instrumental in organizing a German - American Cultural Society in Colorado Springs. He served as president of that society for 3 years assisting in raising its membership to over 100 and instructing several society sponsored scholarships at Colorado College.

During his 5-year tour of duty in Germany (1956-1961), the Colonel participated in many German-American activities to further better understanding between the two nations. He gave many lectures and talks on the United States and other areas where he had been stationed with the U. S. Air Force.

In recognition of Col. Price's efforts to further German-American understanding, on November 1963, the Federal Republic of Germany conferred upon him its Order of Merit, First Class, only 18 of which have been conferred upon members of the U. S. military services.

The German - American Cultural Society is one of 9 societies comprising the State Federation. "The Federation, a nonpolitical organization, concludes in its purposes and aims the promotion of cultural ideas, fostering better understanding between the United States and Germany, furthering a better way of life for its members within the framework of the Constitution of the United States, and fostering an exchange of ideas between U. S. citizens of German birth or ancestry and citizens of American birth," Col. Price explained.

The Fountain Valley Chamber of Commerce is holding its second annual talent show at the American Legion Post 38 Hall here in Security. It will be held on Saturday, January 2, 1965, from 6:30 to 8 p.m. There is no entry fee or any age limit.

Any type of talent will be accepted including dancing, singing (single or groups), musical talent, acrobats, twirling, combos, pantominists, etc. Professionals are not allowed to compete. The performances will be limited to three minutes.

The winners of the contest will be determined by audience applause. There will be three prizes; a first prize of twenty-five dollars, a second prize of fifteen dollars, and a third prize of ten dollars.

If the Chamber of Commerce receives enough entries, they will have a run-off contest. In other words, it will be an elimination contest. It will be held sometime between now and January 2, 1965.

The three top winners will be announced at the annual Fountain Valley Chamber of Commerce Dinner on Saturday, January 9, 1965.

The Colorado Springs Junior Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a hootenanny, Saturday, January 16, 1965, at 7 p.m. in the Colorado Springs City Auditorium. Admission "donations" will be $1 for adults and 50 cents for students and military. All proceeds will go to the March of Dimes.

The program will be comprised mainly of local amateur talent. Anyone interested in performing in the hootenanny is urged to contact the Junior Chamber of Commerce office, phone 635-1551 or Bob Gerdeman, phone 636-1910.

Talent auditions will be held January 5th and 6th from 7 to 11 p.m. at the City Auditorium Little Theater. Another audition will be held January 9th from 9 to 11 a.m. at the Palmer House in Colorado Springs. Dress rehearsal will be held January 16th at 9 a.m. in the City Auditorium.

The Widefield High School Chorus will present its annual Christmas program at 7:30 p.m. on December 21 in the all-purpose room. Admission is 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for grade school children.

The first half of the program will be traditional Christmas songs, including "Winter Wonderland" and "White Christmas," in a typical home setting.

In the second half, the chorus will sing background music to accompany two living pictures. The pictures will be "Madonna in the Round" by Rafael and "The Holy Night" by Corerggio. Backgrounds for the two pictures will be painted, but the characters will be portrayed by Widefield students.

Selections in the second half will include "O Holy Night," "Glory to God in the Highest," "Blessed Mary" from "King of Kings," and "Star of Bethlehem" and "Adoration of the Magi" from "Ben Hur" along with many other songs.

Governor Keeps Demos in Dark About Budget

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP)—Gov. John A Love, a Republican, is keeping Democratic leaders of the 45th Colorado General Assembly in the dark about the appropriations he intends to recommend or the taxes he intends to ask to provide the money for them.

"We had a very pleasant, cordial session," House Speaker Allen Dines, D-Denver, said after a 90-minute meeting of 11 Democrats with the chief executive Friday afternoon, "but we didn't solve any of the problems of the state."

There was no discussion of finance, Dines said, "to our disappointment and surprise."

The governor, who is about to start the third year of his four-year term, was expected to give a more complete fill-in on his plans to Republican legislators at a meeting at the capitol today.

Love conferred with Republican legislative leaders last week and held a second session with them Wednesday.

All of the meetings have been closed.

Democrats said they asked the governor to make known his financial program early in the 1965 session, which starts Jan. 6, and they gained the impression he intends to do this. Love withheld his financing recommendations last winter until near the end of the session.

Friday afternoon's meeting, said Sen. Roy Romer, D-Denver, was only the third between the Democratic leaders and the Republican chief executive since Love took office in January 1963.

Love described the meeting as encouraging and said he plans to hold future sessions.

Democrats will control the House of Representatives in the 45th General Assembly. Republicans controlled both branches of the legislature during the past two years.

Love said he and the Democrats found several areas of agreement, and bills on the subjects presumably will be nonpartisan. He listed traffic safety, underground water and insanity laws as examples.

The governor also said he hopes for nonpartisan consideration of his plan for a coordinating council to supervise all higher education at state-supported schools.

Democrats at the meeting included Lt. Gov. Robert L. Knous, Sens. Sam T. Taylor of Walsenburg, Roland Mapelli of Denver, George Brown of Denver and Romer, and Reps. Forrest Burns of Lamar, Mark Hogan of Denver, Lowell Compton of La Junta, Star Caywood of Walsenburg, J. D. MacFarlane of Pueblo and Dines.

Taylor is Senate floor leader for the party, Romer is his assistant and Mapelli is caucus chairman. Burns is House Democratic floor leader, Hogan is assistant and Compton is caucus chairman. Brown, Caywood and MacFarlane are members of the Joint Budget Committee.

Navajo Fiscal Affairs To Be Straightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philleo Nash, commissioner of Indian affairs, said Friday the superintendent of the Navajo tribe is going to take steps aimed at straightening out the tribe's internal fiscal affairs.

"Whatever the superintendent feels is the right thing to do will be proposed to the tribal council for action," Nash told a reporter.

The council has been in session this week debating, among other things, a critical auditors report. A letter accompanying the report said in part:

"We should like to again emphasize our concern over the apparent deterioration in the records, procedures and internal control of practically every significant operating department of the Navajo tribe.

"It is our belief that unless immediate corrective action is initiated, the remaining recording procedures and internal control measures will collapse."

Nash said it was determined after conferences here that the time had come when something had to be done.

There has been a tug of war between different tribal factions now for more than a year. One group backs council chairman Raymond Nakai and another group charges him with mishandling tribal affairs and opposes his proposals. Spokesmen for the rival factions have presented their respective positions to the council this week.

New York City has 26,000 men and women on its police force and 14,000 firemen.

Yesterday as I walked through the stores and saw the small children as they gazed wide-eyed at the dazzling display of Christmas gifts, the jumble of Christmas tree decorations, the dolls, the toys of all kinds, while they clutched the hands of their elders and tried to pull closer to the mass of bewildering wonders, I recalled my own first memories of the visits of Santa Claus. My responses to the excitements of the holiday season, if not different from those experienced by the children of today, did I am sure spring from a far more simple setting.

I was one of several children who lived in a ranch home on Cheyenne Creek, and while I was not treated to a whole month of thrills before Christmas Day I recall vividly the ones I did have when that wonderful day finally arrived.

Our little shivers of pleasure began a day or so before the 25th of December when our older brother brought down from the mountains a big beautiful spruce tree, bringing it from the North Cheyenne Canon, then in later years when the City of Colorado Springs had purchased that area, from our own land at the head of the Pinery, a gulch near the foot of Round Mountain. The tree was usually so tall that father had to stop it at the wood pile while he chopped a foot or two from its length, as a tree out on the mountainside does not seem as large as it does after it has been transferred to a living room. If there was snow on the ground the tree was carried on my brother's home-made sled, but if the ground was clear of snow the horses and farm wagon brought it.

My older sister Helen was the artist of the family and she it was who made the decorations for that tree, ornaments that seemed to me to be so beautiful as to be out of this world. The trimmings were placed on it on Christmas eve after we younger sisters had been put to bed so that our first glimpse of it was caught as we stole out in the spooky dusk of a cold December morning, calling "Merry Christmas" as we went. And what a sight, that tree! Its topmost tip held a glow and silver tinsel star, while below and across all the branches hung long streamers of cranberries and popcorn, their red and white colors mingling with the green that were breath-taking in their beauty. Here and there on the tips of the branches were red, white and blue rosettes fashioned from felt or flannel, while below them and resting on the branches that had been cut off the tree's length, was the magical pile of presents. These were mostly wrapped packages, bearing the name of the fortunate member of the family whom Santa Claus had remembered in his flight over the house. The evening before, my younger sister, Lucy, had been induced by our big brother to call up the fireplace chimney to tell "Santa" just what she wanted him to bring her. My brother laughed so loudly at her for doing this that I became skeptical that the old red-coated fellow ever came down the chimney, but just how he did enter the house I was not prepared to say, but that he did come I was satified to believe.

Some candy, nuts, and fruit, oranges and apples usually, were always on hand, often found in the toes of our stockings that we sometimes hung up beside the fireplace for extra measure, having a feeling for extra measure, having a feeling that it did not pay to neglect any opportunities. Our toys were our chief joy although we seldom received more than one apiece. Sometimes our old dolls were presented with their wax faces faces newly painted and with their wardrobes replenished with several new dresses or underwear. One year my dolly was greeted with delight as she had last been seen badly melted as to face on account of having been left behind the kitchen stove. I remember, too, one wonderful Christmas day when our beloved Sunday School teacher, Miss Viola Kinsman, had given us some new doll dresses made of green striped thin stuff and the puffed sleeves tied with white satin ribbons. That day our old dollies attended parties all day long, since they had such fine party clothes.

One of the happiest and merriest days of my life was when my older sister and I found under the Christmas tree some little tin horses, each with a jockey on its back, a jockey resplendent in a green coat, purple trousers, black boots and black cap (I think it was black; and fastened under the horses' feet when little green flats with four bronze wheels and a string attached. My younger sister's toy was much like ours only it was an elephant, gray with red trappings and without any rider.

Our horses and elephant with their strings attached to their front ends went round and round in circles in our big living room all that day, we imagining we were a circus, or a race or maybe just imagining. It seems to me now that race went on all day. Sometimes the elephant fell over onto his fat side and the procession had to stop while Lucy righted him, since no new toy was to be dragged along even on that homemade rag carpet. I am wondering today what the older members of our family thought of us. I have a feeling they thought we looked pretty silly, but no one stopped us that I recall (I am glad to report; and nothing marred the exquisite pleasure we three little girls had all that snowy Christmas day.

Later as we grew older our celebrations included the school, the Sunday School and even the Literary Society that met in the school house twice a month. The older boys brought from the mountains wagon loads of evergreens and many hands twined these into long ropes that festooned the school house and made it into a perfect bower of beauty. The large tree held gifts for almost all in the neighborhood and if anyone extra happened in he was certain to have Santa hand him a sack of candy and a popcorn ball. Santa Claus in a snowy-red outfit, was always the same man, a round German neighbor, Israel Buck, whose wit was equal to any occasion. He entered the school room by means of a paste board chimney painted into a likeness of a fireplace of red bricks.

I remember well the first year after we had learned who Kris Kringle was that my older sister and I were given some money with which to buy our mother a present. Sister carried the little pocketbook. I have forgotten just how many cents it held, while we passed up and down the aisles of the variety on North Tejon Street belonging to Mr. Swain, a little man with a big nose trying to decide on what we thought mother would like. What we bought and had the clerk wrap most carefully was a frail little basket of wax flowers growing in a green bed of imitation moss. Imagine that for a homemaker of a ranch, who probably could have used anything else but a basket of wax blossoms. But mother seemed pleased and so were we. That basket with its load of dust-catching stuff sat on a scroll shelf for a long time before it went the way of all useless ornaments, but it shed much loving pleasure while it lasted. If I remember right the basket served later as a bonnet for one of our dolls.

My typewriter who is always so ready to add a word says "And tell them what you have told me, that those tin horses and that one elephant lasted all through the following summer and were hauled up and down through many a sunny day over some little roads that you made along the banks of the lane ditch that ran from your cow pasture to your barn, now 1700 block W. Cheyenne Boulevard.

Yes, life was simpler in those days for children and I believe happier. Now on Christmas Day when I see gifts confusing by their very numbers the small youngsters and watch them stumbling among dozen of breakable toys and wondering which to pick up next, I have a feeling of deep sympathy for their little minds while I wish that many parents could be more understanding and willing to return their offspring to a simple life.

One of the pleasant Christmas memories of childhood was of gathering around our teacher (school) Miss Mettie Sharp at the organ as we sang among other Christmas carols

"Glory be to God on High
Peace Good will to mortals
Christ the Lord is born tonight
Heaven throws wide its Portals
Angels Sang let men Reply,
And Children join their voices
Raise the chorus loud and high
Earth and Heaven Rejoices"

Yesterday as I walked through the stores and saw the small children as they gazed wide-eyed at the dazzling display of Christmas gifts, the jumble of Christmas tree decorations, the dolls, the toys of all kinds, while they clutched the hands of their elders and tried to pull closer to the mass of bewildering wonders, I recalled my own first memories of the visits of Santa Claus. My responses to the excitements of the holiday season, if not different from those experienced by the children of today, did I am sure spring from a far more simple setting.

Governor Keeps Demos in Dark About Budget

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP)—Gov. John A. Love, a Republican, is keeping Democratic leaders of the 45th Colorado General Assembly in the dark about the appropriations he intends to recommend or the taxes he intends to ask to provide the money for them.

"We had a very pleasant, cordial session," House Speaker Allen Dines, D-Denver, said after a 90-minute meeting of 11 Democrats with the chief executive Friday afternoon, "but we didn't solve any of the problems of the state."

There was no discussion of finance, Dines said, "to our disappointment and surprise."

The governor, who is about to start the third year of his four-year term, was expected to give a more complete fill-in on his plans to Republican legislators at a meeting at the capitol today.

Love conferred with Republican legislative leaders last week and held a second session with them Wednesday.

All of the meetings have been closed.

Democrats said they asked the governor to make known his financial program early in the 1965 session, which starts Jan. 6, and they gained the impression he intends to do this. Love withheld his financing recommendations last winter until near the end of the session.

Friday afternoon's meeting, said Sen. Roy Romer, D-Denver, was only the third between the Democratic leaders and the Republican chief executive since Love took office in January 1963.

Love described the meeting as encouraging and said he plans to hold future sessions.

Democrats will control the House of Representatives in the 45th General Assembly. Republicans controlled both branches of the legislature during the past two years.

Love said he and the Democrats found several areas of agreement, and bills on the subjects presumably will be nonpartisan. He listed traffic safety, underground water and insanity laws as examples.

The governor also said he hopes for nonpartisan consideration of his plan for a coordinating council to supervise all higher education at state-supported schools.

Democrats at the meeting included Lt. Gov. Robert L. Knous, Sens. Sam T. Taylor of Walsenburg, Roland Mapelli of Denver, George Brown of Denver and Romer, and Reps. Forrest Burns of Lamar, Mark Hogan of Denver, Lowell Compton of La Junta, Star Caywood of Walsenburg, J. D. MacFarlane of Pueblo and Dines.

Taylor is Senate floor leader for the party, Romer is his assistant and Mapelli is caucus chairman. Burns is House Democratic floor leader, Hogan is assistant and Compton is caucus chairman. Brown, Caywood and MacFarlane are members of the Joint Budget Committee.

Navajo Fiscal Affairs To Be Straightened

WASHINGTON (AP) — Philleo Nash, commissioner of Indian affairs, said Friday the superintendent of the Navajo tribe is going to take steps aimed at straightening out the tribe's internal fiscal affairs.

"Whatever the superintendent feels is the right thing to do will be proposed to the tribal council for action," Nash told a reporter.

The council has been in session this week debating, among other things, a critical auditors report. A letter accompanying the report said in part:

"We should like to again emphasize our concern over the apparent deterioration in the records, procedures and internal control of practically every significant operating department of the Navajo tribe.

"It is our belief that unless immediate corrective action is initiated, the remaining recording procedures and internal control measures will collapse."

Nash said it was determined after conferences here that the time had come when something had to be done.

There has been a tug of war between different tribal factions now for more than a year. One group backs council chairman Raymond Nakai and another group charges him with mishandling tribal affairs and opposes his proposals. Spokesmen for the rival factions have presented their respective positions to the council this week.

New York City has 26,000 men and women on its police force and 14,000 firemen.

Copter Crewmen Repel Viet Cong Attacks

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Fur U. S. Army helicopter crewmen stood off a determined Viet Cong attack Friday after their helicopter was shot down. They came out without serious injury.

The helicopter was on a flight over the Mekong River delta, 70 miles southwest of here, when the crew heard a loud explosion and their HU1B began to vibrate. The craft began losing altitude fast, and their were two more explosions.

"By this time we were descending at the rate of 1,700 feet per minute," the pilot, CWO Bobby D. Scott of Columbus, Ga., said. "At approximately 25 feet my airspeed almost stopped. I pulled pitch (increased the pitch of the rotor blades, and we landed — hard."

Scott said heavy fire was aimed at the downed helicopter. Although Scott suffered a wrenched back and the three men in his crew all needed treatment for muscular strains as the result of the crash, they quickly got their machineguns out of the helicopter and began shooting.

"It was like stepping right on a hornets nest," Scott said. "I's a miracle none o fus were hit. I figure we got about five Viet Cong. One I fired at I'm sure of. I saw him spring up, clutch his side and fall.

"But we were outnumbered and completely surrounded. They were advancing on us in numbers when two observations planes followed by five armed helicopters came over.

"I was damned glad to see those gunships. Then the other aircraft arrived and got us out. It was all over in not more than 25 minutes but it seemed like 25 years."

Oil Well Fire Subsiding in Utah

VERNAL, Utah (AP) — An oil well fire which erupted Friday near this eastern Utah town was still burning Saturday, but officials said it had subsided considerably.

An estimated $250,000 to $500,000 worth of equipment was destroyed in the blaze.

A spokesman for the owner, Pacific Natural Gas Exploration Co., Salt Lake City, said workers were drilling a relief well. He said they then planned to pour mud into the relief well in an effort to kill the gas entry into the other well.

The fire exploded at Red Wash camp, about 14 miles south of here, when oil drillers bored into a pocket of high pressure gas. The drilling was being done by the Willard Pease Co., Grand Junction, Colo.

When the gas ignited, it toppled a 150-foot triple derrick structure. As flames shot 40 and 50 feet into the air, workers dragged away butane gas tanks, trailers and other equipment.

A Salt Lake drilling equipment supply house said the pipe and drilling equipment destroyed in the blaze was worth about $140,000. This figure did not include the large derrick.

Political Debate Proposed by Love

DENVER (AP)—Debate over political philosophy within the Republican Party may lead the way to victory, Gov. John A. Love commended Saturday.

"The Democratic position and philosophy," Love told a reporter, "which started with the Roosevelt years, is getting old, tired and worn out in a changing society."

He summarized the Democratic philosophy in these words: "The world is too complex for the individual, the family or the community to handle problems; government has to solve them."

"I think," Love added, "That although there are reasons to be displeased about disarray in the Republican Party it indicates in one way a healthy ferment and hope for the future. I would expect that out of this debath within the party would come a strong consensus and a philosophy of government which can look forward to being a majority position in the United States."

Liaison Committees Prove Successful for United Fund

Department did not have any reserve with which to pick up the difference, so the Visiting Nurse Association sought outside sources to supplement the budget. A special gift from a local foundation with the understanding that it would not be repeated, was obtained. The Visiting Nurse Association did not replace one or two staff members who resigned, but still operated at a deficit, even though a larger number of patients paid full or partial fees for services in 1964, than in previous years.

"There is no duplication of service in this agency. There is not another place where a doctor can refer a patient for bedside nursing on a part-time basis. The only alternative is a hospital or nursing home. . .a very expensive alternative," Mrs. J. Earl Scott told the committee. The Visiting Nurse request was for $10,000 more than was allocated last year.

The Colorado Springs Day Nursery posed the fifth problem. This agency received a windfall which made it possible to request $5,000 less for 1964, than the 1963 allocation.

This year, the 1965 request was for $7,000 more than was allotted last year, $5,000, of which represented restoration to the allocation of two years ago. Committee members felt strongly that the agency should be restored to the previous budget. It was pointed out by liaison team member, Henry Lacerte, that the budget was frugal.

With these five problems before them, the committee proceeded with its deliberation.

The Board of Trustees had taken the bequests into consideration in setting the goal. It considered the fact that the community is now raising considerably more money to meet the needs of the agencies through the United Fund, than was raised by the Community Chest and separate appeals of the United Fund Agencies, before the United Fund was organized in 1960. At the time the goal was set some board members had expected as much as $15,000 to be applied to reduce agency requests as a result of the bequest. This did not materialize.

While a $3,000 reduction was accepted by the Red Cross and the committee voted to reduce the Boy Scouts by the same amount, they felt they could not reduce the Salvation Army. This agency will not receive any of the income from the bequest to apply to operating expenses. By national regulation of the Salvation Army, to which the United Fund agreed at their admission, all bequests must be invested at a national level where the capital and earnings are placed in escrow for capital use only. While the fund is held for capital improvements for the Colorado Springs Salvation Army office, the local agency cannot request the investment or the income for any other purpose. The committee also declined to reduce the allocation to the Boys Club. It approved the same allocation as last year for both agencies.

Committee members agreed in general, that to meet the unique needs of membership being served by the Boys Club, it is desirable that this agency use the investment from the estate to expand services. It was generally agreed that the financial situation of the Boys Club members, would prevent the members from paying for increased services. At the conclusion of deliberations, reductions realized through the bequests were just $6,000.

The committee then took a long look at the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism. This agency received $5,000 last year and requested $15,000 this year. Its budget was based on a proposed expanded program. The agency reported that nearly all of its allocation last year was used for office expense with little money going into the actual program. The committee decided that since the United Fund could not meet the $15,000 request and did not feel that $5,000 should be allocated to keep an should be reduced to $3,000.

Committee members pointed out that other United Fund agencies, such as Cerebral Palsy and Retarded Children, maintain excellent programs without budgeting funds for an office. Sympathy with the need for the service rendered by the Council on Alcoholism was generally indicated by committee members. During the discussion it was pointed out that other existing agencies could provide counseling and referral service to alcoholics and their families. Discussion terminated when the committee was reminded that the United Fund cannot interfere with the autonomy of an agency.

"We can allocate funds, but we cannot tell an agency how to spend them," the chairman pointed out.

State and national agencies were discussed and allocations were made on the basis of the amount allocated last year, with four exceptions: The National Recreation Association, which sent a field representative here on several occasions in recent years at the request of local agencies, was allocated its full request of $597.00 compared to $555.00 last year. United Health foundation was decreased from $2,000 to $720.00, the savings going to two state health agencies for use in the Pikes Peak Region.

The Multiple Sclerosis Society was allocated $2,000, an increase of $1,000, and the Arthritis foundation went from $2,500 to $2,800. Both agencies have initiated local information and therapy programs to assist victims of these diseases.

The other allocations to national agencies were less than the requests. The requests are determined by the National Budget and Consultation Committee and represent this community's fair share of the national budget.

Five local agencies then received increases. The Day Nursery was restored to its 1963 budget at $19,500 and the Cerebral Palsy Association was granted a $1,000 increase to supports its pre-school program.

"We have an obligation to Family Counseling Service to pay the increase in salary for the new executive and to underwrite at least part of the program he has begun," a committee member said, summarizing the reason for an increase of $5,800 to that agency.

A $2,500 increase was apporved for the Visiting Nurse Association. The committee voted to allocate $23,000 to the U.S.O., an increase of $7,715 over the amount allocated last year at the conclusion of the campaign.

The liaison teams will meet again with each agency to discuss the allocations, answer questions and interpret the feelings of the committee which made the allocations.

Chairman Ray Werner summarized: "We could have cheerfully allocated $540,000 with every assurance that the money was needed and would be spent wisely. During the deliberation we always came back to our one basic responsibility: To determine how many of these needed community programs can be underwritten with the funds which the community made available. I know of no other process by which we could have reached our final conclusions, more democratically."

FACING A HARD JOB—Jerry Donley, attorney and liaison representative to the Council of Alcoholism, listened with concern as the committee reduced the allocation to that agency. Donley and other members of the committee agreed to continue their liaison with each agency until next year's assignments are made by the succeeding Allocations Committee. "It's our responsibility to explain to the agency the feelings of the committee which made the allocations," Donley said.

BUDGET DELIBERATIONS — A part of the forty member Allocations and Admissions Committee deliberates during one of the six, three hour sessions during which the proceeds of the United Fund Drive to the thirty-three participating agencies were allocated. In the front row are: Mrs. Vera Scott, School District 11; Mrs. Hartwell Morin, Burroughs Corp.; Capt. David Mann, United States Air Force Academy; Fred Brand, Colorado Springs Music Co.; Jerry Donley, attorney, and John Hoff, Colorado Commercial Bank. In the back from left are: Robert Cajka, president, Communicated Workers of America and employee of Mountain States Tel. & Tel. Co.; Don Higginbotham, architect; Capt. Charles A. Bond, retired; Col. Robert Clark, NORAD; Herb Stelzer, accountant, Trichak, Trainor and Tillman; J. W. Reifenrath, accountant with Kingsolver, White and Company, and Jim Galvin of Kaman Nuclear.

Funds Asked for Metropolitan State College

DENVER (UPI) — Funds to put the proposed Metropolitan State College in operation in Denver by next fall were requested by the Board of Trustees of State Colleges Friday.

The board asked the Legislature's six-member Joint Budget Committee for the money.

The trustees asked that the legislature appropriate a supplementary $65,880 as soon as possible after it convenes Jan. 6. Dr. H. Grant Vest, board executive secretary, called the appropriation essential if the college is to open is 1965.

He said the funds would be used to hire staff and faculty and initiate planning.

Dr. Vest said the trustees were asking for the money only because enrollment figures indicate there may be some urgency about getting Metropolitan State College underway.

The trustees asked the committee for $1.1 million to operate the college during the 1965-66 fiscal year.

Vest said the estimate was based on an expected first-year enrollment of 1,000 students.

Britons Send Yule Greeting Through Ads

LONDON (AP) — Some Britons have begun placing newspaper advertisements instead of sending Christmas cards, with the money saved going to charities.

A popular spot for the mass-circulation yuletide wishes is the personal column of that staid newspaper, the Times.

Some companies even are expressing their yule wishes on the printed pages.

Here's a typical advertisement in the Times' front page personal column: "The British Road Federation is not sending Christmas cards this year. Instead it is making a donation to the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents."

Another reads: "Cable and Wireless wish their friends a Merry Christmas and announce that they do not intend to send out company Christmas cards: instead they are making a donation to the Missions to Seamen."

Each day a few more persons join in what has come to be known as the Times Christmas card game. The majority appear to be peers and peeresses, retired generals, admirals and judges.

Why do they do it?

"I may be old fashioned and square," said retired Judge Noel Hindley, "but the spirit has gone out of Christmas. If it was a real Christmas we are having I would have gone on sending cards."

The surprise of this season, however, was the Christmas card of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muir.

A script-writer and author, Muir's card said: "Mr. and Mrs. Frank Muir are not taking an advertisement in the Times this year. Instead they are sending Christmas cards to their friends."

Asked why, Muir replied: "My wife and I grew tired of seeing those stuffy announcements. The people who put in these advertisements need sending up a bit."

Sending up is a British expression for taking down a peg or two.

The Department of the Interior, created in 1849, is concerned with the management, conservation and development of the nation's water, wildlife, mineral, forest and park and recreational resourds. It also has responsibilities for Indian and territorial affairs.

Liaison Committees Prove Successful for United Fund

FACING A HARD JOB—Jerry Donley, attorney and liaison representative to the Council of Alcoholism, listened with concern as the committee reduced the allocation to that agency. Donley and other members of the committee agreed to continue their liaison with each agency until next year's assignments are made by the succeeding Allocations Committee. "It's our responsibility to explain to the agency the feelings of the committee which made the allocations," Donley said.

Department did not have any reserve with which to pick up the difference, so the Visiting Nurse Association sought outside sources to supplement the budget. A special gift from a local foundation with the understanding that it would not be repeated, was obtained. The Visiting Nurse Association did not replace one or two staff members who resigned, but still operated at a deficit, even though a larger number of patients paid full or partial fees for services in 1964, than in previous years.

Carson Men to Host Pueblo Orphans at Yule Party

Christmas joy will be shared by men of Ft. Carson's 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry with children from Pueblo orphanages Dec. 30 through Operation Toyland.

Toys and clothing have been assembled from homes at Carson and in Security and Stratton Meadows through personal contacts by men of the Golden Rifles. Battalion Sergeant Major Merrill V. Doud Jr., stated, "we have a house full o assorted toys such as bicycles, wagons, desks and chairs, and racing cars."

Doud and other battalion members are planning the annual Christmas party for children from McClellan and Sacred Heart Homes in the Steel City which has adopted the battalion.

Buses will bring an estimated 250 youngsters to the battalion area for one of the highlights of their year — a luncheon with the soldiers, a date with Santa Claus and a demonstration by the infantry unit. Included in the demonstration will be a hand-to-hand combat exhibition, a show of the battalion's dismounted drill precision, firing of infantry weapons and an aggressor attack.

Repairable articles are being rehabilitated by men of the battalion including former civilian tailors, mechanics and welders, for distribution to needy children in the Pikes Peak Region. Contacts are being made through churches and the Red Cross.

Four Pfcs ar restoring played-with toys and collecting the items from merchants in downtown Colorado Springs and Pueblo and some from outlying shopping centers.

Colorado Springs Cub Scout Pack 16 has been assisting with toy collections and have gained a new program leader, Pfc. Robert Brailsford of C Company, 1st Battalion, 10th Infantry, one of Santa's Golden Rifle helpers.

Sgt. Maj. Doud is supervising He will retire in January.

The toy rebuilders are Pfc. Joseph Baptista, Headquarters Company, a former barber from New Bedford, Mass.; Pfc. Earl Bolton, B Company, a mechanic from Louisville, Ky.; Brailsford, who worked in a Baltimore hospital; and Pfc. Steven Berlin, A Company, Houston student.

An estimated 3,500 Colorado public school teachers will converge on the Greeley campus for the two-day brush-up on the latest techniques in their fields. Numerous workshops and panel discussions are planned.

Airplane With Three Aboard Is Missing

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A private plane carrying two brother attorneys and one of their sons from Tulsa, Okla., was missing today and presumed down somewhere in Southern California.

Aboard were John and Robert Wheeler, both Tulsa attorneys, and Josh, son of Robert Wheeler.

The last radar and radio contact with the twin-engine Beechraft Bonanza was at 5:09 p.m. PST Friday near Pomona, about 35 miles east of the destination of Los Angeles International Airport, said a duty officer for the Federal Aviation Agency (FAA) there.

The tower at Lockheed International Airport, which last had radar and radio contact with the aircraft, reported to the FAA that the transmission was garbled.

There was no report received of any trouble, although Southern California skies were cloudy Friday night with some rain.

Wheeler changed his plan to land at Los Angeles while airborne and requested to land at El Monte airport—about halfway between Pomona and Los Angeles. But the FAA said checks of the El Monte airport and others in the area were negative.

After taking off from Tulsa early Friday, the plane landed at Las Vegas, Nev., in midafternoon for refueling. FAA sopkesmen said the plane had enough fuel to last until 9:30 p.m. PST.

Cuba Takes Dour View of Canal Plan

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — While Panama and Latin America countries reacted with optimism to President Johnson's Panama Canal proposal, comment from Cuba took its usual dour line toward the United States.

The government-controlled Havana Radio said "with the building of the new canal through Colombia, Nicaragua or Costa Rica, the Yankee imperialists will obtain new military routes for their aggressive plans in Latin America and the rest of the world."

The broadcast monitored in Miami said also that President Johnson will break the existing canal treaty with Panama unless Panama meets his newly proposed terms.

There are about 52,600,000 home television sets in the nation.

Socony Finds New Tool For Astronauts

Socony Mobil Oil Company scientists have perfected a powerful new tool that may help astronauts cope with magnetism or the lack of it in outer space.

The belief that magnetic fields influence us physically goes back to ancient times. But only in recent years have U. S. Navy space scientists sought to determine whether this old tale is based in fact.

The Mobil tool that can aid in this unique study is a man-size magnetic testing chamber with a "keep out" sign for the earth's magnetic field and other Magnetic disturbances. The first isolation chamber of its kind, the new laboratory room an eight-foot cube with special walls and door — enables scientists to calibrate sensitive instruments without interference.

The room is also suitable for testing the effect on man and animals of the outer space environment where it is thought only very weak magnetic fields are present. Bob J. Patton and John L. Fitch of Socony Mobil's Dallas laboratory are the designers.

According to Fitch, the chamber was developed to investigate the weak residual magnetism of rocks as an aid to oil production and exploration research. "But," he said, "interest in the new tool has expanded greatly."

Research scientists in California, for instance, resently installed a magnetic room for fundamental studies, to help in the design and testing of spare vehicles. Mobil scientists not only furnished the basic design of the facility, but also consulted on its construction and operation.

Others who have expressed inerest in Mobil's magnetic room include scientists exploring the properties of spacecraft materials, designers working on new types of magnetometers, and chemists interested in accurately weighing minute quantities of material. Patton recently described the Mobil invention to a scientific conference in England sponsored by NATO.

The new magnetic chamber has already been put to use in novel ways. Using sensitive instruments, the scientists recently investigated such "non-magnetic" materials as nylon and stainless steel.

One finding: there is magnetism in nylon due to impurities which have hitherto escaped detection by conventional instruments.

Saigon Police Alerted Against New Violence

By PETER ARNETT

SAIGON, iet Nam (AP) — Saigon police went on full alert today as a Communist Viet Cong anniversary and continued Buddhist harassment of the Vietnamese government threatened a weekend of violence.

High school students in the northern city of Hue went on an anti-government strike.

Sunday is the fourth anniversary of the official founding of the political wing of the Viet Cong, the National Liberation Front, and authorities feared an outbreak of terrorism.

The Buddhists, who have been campaigning to overthrow the government of Premier Tran Van Huong, were planning a mass rally, police said. Buddhist sources said a monk might commit suicide by burning.

A city of tents mushroomed near the sprawling Buddhist headquarters as thousands of potential demonstrators began arriving, some carrying straw sleeping mats.

Americans in Saigon were advised to exert unusual caution when in the city.

In Hue, several thousand students in the city's 13 high schools made a brief appearance at classes today but told their teachers they would not return until the Huong government resigned. No violence was reported.

Hue, a Buddhist stronghold, sparked the campaign that overthrew the regime of Premier Ngo Dinh Diem last year.

In the war against the Viet Cong, an American army officer was killed by guerrilla fire Friday, the U.S. Army said. He was the 236th American to die in combat in Viet Nam since December 1961.

There are 289 military commissary stores in operation over the country.

Archdiocese Plans to Join Church Council

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — The Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Santa Fe will become a member of the New Mexico Council of Churches, an organization of seven Protestant denominations.

The move was announced Friday in a joint statement by Archbishop James Peter Davis and the Rev. Harry Summers, executive secretary of the council. They called it "a cause of great expectations for every man of good will."

Archbishop Davis said that as far as he knows, his diocese, which covers all New Mexico, is the first to join a council of churches.

The Rev. Mr. Summers said individual Catholic churches in a few cities have joined local councils. He cited Tulsa, Okla., as an example.

Archbishop Davis said it was "an individual decision" and his secretary added that approval was not required from officials higher in the Catholic Church.

Archbishop Davis, 60, was installed as the ninth archbishop of Santa Fe on Feb. 25, 1964. He previously was archbishop of San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Members of the New Mexico council are the Presbyterian Church U.S.A., the Lutheran Church of America, the Methodist Church, the Disciples of Christ (Christian Church), the United Church of Christ) (Congregationalist), the Episcopal Church and the Evangelical United Brethren.

Four basic principles led to the union of the groups, the two leaders said:

That unity, but not uniformity, will be recognized in an effort to reach an ideal of "unity in essentials, difference in everything else."

That strength will be given to certain principles and doctrines which churches must communicate to the contemporary world.

That unwarranted duplications, especially in social policies, will be made unnecessary.

And that the "peace of our Lord Jesus Christ will be evidenced by this action."

They also said the move represents an act "of fraternal unity, for which the prayers, the support and the understanding of all men of good will are both asked and needed."

Sausage Meat Laced With Horsemeat

NEW YORK (AP) — A Manhattan grand jury has begun checking into how 20 tons of sausage makings laced with horsemeat wound up in one of the city's largest wholesale packing plants.

City inspectors said Friday they still can't identify some of the meat in the $15,000 shipment, although laboratory tests have ruled out kangaroo meat.

Authorities said the adulterated meat, passed off on a reputable packer by a broker under investigation as a loan shark, probably came from a big mob-operated plant which could be shipping it all over the country.

Norman Lokietz, one of the owners of the packing house, Merkel Inc., said his firm had been duped by phony federal agriculture inspection stamps on the shipment.

The company, he said, "had absolutely no way of telling that anything could be wrong with it."

Police refused to disclose the name of the broker who sold the meat to Merkel, saying he is still under investigation.

City Markets Commissioner Albert Pacetta, who first suggested the possibility of a nationwide operation, said he has received requests for details from Kansas, Ohio, Pittsburgh and Boston.

To housewives worried about getting non-beef sausage, bologna or frankfurters, authorities said none of this particular shipment reached retail outlets, and no more adulterated shipments have been found in warehouses of 21 other New York packers.

Lokietz waived immunity from prosecution and testified for two hours before the jury Friday.

SEWAGE

DENVER (AP) — The U.S. Public Health Service has granted $50,000 to improve sewage disposal facilities at Ft. Lupton. The money will go toward a $184,000 waste stabilization pond, with the rest of the financing coming from Weld County, the state and the town.

Coed Snatches Gun From Jailbreaker

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — "Dad said I was either stupid or very brave."

Judy Jershin, 18, Wichita State University freshman, was telling how she snatched a jailbreaker's gun away from him and helped capture him Friday.

"I had never touched a gun before in my life," Miss Jershin said, "and I don't know why I did it."

The fugitive, Richard Lee McArthur, 22, charged with armed robbery, slid down a bedsheet rope and escaped from the seventh-floor Sedgwick County Jail Dec. 5. Police had described him as "extremely dangerous with homicidal tendencies."

McArthur told police he picked the university campus as a place to hide occasionally, thinking no one would recognize him in student crowds.

Police got a tip, however, and patrolmen Jerry Skelton and Harry Holtz entered the fine arts building Friday looking for him.

They spotted McArthur, who bolted. The officers asked students in the crowded hall to help stop him.

"That guy's got a gun," one student said, backing off.

Now Judy Jershin takes up the story:

"I had just finished my last class before Christmas vacation and was walking out of the fine arts building when a policeman entered hurriedly," she said. "I thought it was strange, but I went on out to my car in the parking lot and had the motor running when I saw this young man running down the sidewalk.

"I thought he was just another student. Lots of kids run on cold days.

"Then he jerked my car door open and told me to get out. I told him 'No.' He grabbed my arm and started pulling, then he pointed that gun at me and I got out.

"He jumped in, laid the gun down beside him and tried to start the motor, which had died.

"The door was partly open — I saw the gun lying there — I don't know just how or why I did it, but I reached across in front of him and grabbed the gun. I backed up and pointed it at him and told him, 'Now you get out.'

"He just kept trying to start the car, but then the policemen came. They made him lie on the ground while they searched him and put handcuffs on him.

"I didn't know him and I felt rather sorry for him. I've never seen anyone arrested before."

McArthur's weapon was a 38-caliber automatic, loaded and cocked, and police said Miss Jershin took a dangerous chance.

Two High-Rise CU Residence Halls Planned

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Plans were announced Friday by the University of Colorado for the building of two high-rise residence halls on land southwest of the present campus.

Each of the residence halls will have two 13-story towers and together they will provide housing for 830 students. They are the first structures erected in the new Williams Village, across from the northern terminus of the Denver-Boulder Turnpike.

Preliminary plans for the residence halls were approved by CU's board of regents, which authorized the university to apply for a $4 million loan from the U.S. Housing and Home Finance Agency. The board also approved a final agreement spelling out the relationship between the university and the Williams Foundation, donor of the land.

No state money is involved.

Each hall will include eight floors of dormitory rooms as well as two to three floors of student apartments. On the top floor of each hall will be a snack bar and study hall.

Dining and recreational facilities will be provided at the ground level.

The halls, according to a university spokesman, are a big step towards providing for CU enrollment increases expected to be 1000 a year through 1968.

The regents also announced the appointment of Col. Edwin L. Overholt, chief of medical services at Fitzsimons General Hospital, to the position of associate clinical professor of medicine of the CU medical school.

In New Zealand all drivers over 70 years of age must undergo an annual driving test in order to retain their licenses.

Coed Snatches Gun From Jailbreaker

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — "Dad said I was either stupid or very brave."

Judy Jershin, 18, Wichita State University freshman, was telling how she snatched a jailbreaker's gun away from him and helped capture him Friday.

"I had never touched a gun before in my life," Miss Jershin said, "and I don't know why I did it."

The fugitive, Richard Lee McArthur, 22, charged with armed robbery, slid down a bedsheet rope and escaped from the seventh-floor Sedgwick County Jail Dec. 5. Police had described him as "extremely dangerous with homicidal tendencies."

McArthur told police he picked the university campus as a place to hide occasionally, thinking no one would recognize him in student crowds.

Police got a tip, however, and patrolmen Jerry Skelton and Harry Holtz entered the fine arts building Friday looking for him.

They spotted McArthur, who bolted. The officers asked students in the crowded hall to help stop him.

"That guy's got a gun," one student said, backing off.

Now Judy Jershin takes up the story:

"I had just finished my last class before Christmas vacation and was walking out of the fine arts building when a policeman entered hurriedly," she said. "I thought it was strange, but I went on out to my car in the parking lot and had the motor running when I saw this young man running down the sidewalk.

"I thought he was just another student. Lots of kids run on cold days.

"Then he jerked my car door open and told me to get out. I told him 'No.' He grabbed my arm and started pulling, then he pointed that gun at me and I got out.

"He jumped in, laid the gun down beside him and tried to start the motor, which had died.

"The door was partly open — I saw the gun lying there — I don't know just how or why I did it, but I reached across in front of him and grabbed the gun. I backed up and pointed it at him and told him, 'Now you get out.'

"He just kept trying to start the car, but then the policemen came. They made him lie on the ground while they searched him and put handcuffs on him.

"I didn't know him and I felt rather sorry for him. I've never seen anyone arrested before."

McArthur's weapon was a 38-caliber automatic, loaded and cocked, and police said Miss Jershin took a dangerous chance.

Two High-Rise CU Residence Halls Planned

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Plans were announced Friday by the University of Colorado for the building of two high-rise residence halls on land southwest of the present campus.

Each of the residence halls will have two 13-story towers and together they will provide housing for 830 students. They are the first structures erected in the new Williams Village, across from the northern terminus of the Denver-Boulder Turnpike.

Preliminary plans for the residence halls were approved by CU's board of regents, which authorized the university to apply for a $4 million loan from the U.S. Housing and Home Finance Agency. The board also approved a final agreement spelling out the relationship between the university and the Williams Foundation, donor of the land.

No state money is involved.

Each hall will include eight floors of dormitory rooms as well as two to three floors of student apartments. On the top floor of each hall will be a snack bar and study hall.

Dining and recreational facilities will be provided at the ground level.

The halls, according to a university spokesman, are a big step towards providing for CU enrollment increases expected to be 1000 a year through 1968.

The regents also announced the appointment of Col. Edwin L. Overholt, chief of medical services at Fitzsimons General Hospital, to the position of associate clinical professor of medicine of the CU medical school.

In New Zealand all drivers over 70 years of age must undergo an annual driving test in order to retain their licenses.

Teenagers Seek To Prove Good Community

DARIEN, Conn. (UPI) — Some 200 teen-agers rocked around the clock Friday night to prove this luxurious Long Island Sound town is a "good" community and not an anchorage for underage drinking.

The event was a dance held in a barn valued at $25,000 which the students rented and plan to convert into a full-time recreation center.

"It was just terrific," said an adult chaperone at the dance which promised to be the first of many socials for the teenagers in their bid to live down Darien's somewhat tarnished eclat.

The dance was the start of the youngster's efforts to match a $3,000 gift given anonymously through St. Luke's Episcopal Church to help them rent the barn at a cost of $300 monthly.

The students realized about $100 in their first effort which saw a rock 'n roll band swing out with such adolescent favorites as "She's a Woman," "Promised Land," and "Too Many Fish in the Sea."

The youngsters responded in kind and couples on the floor gyrated to "The Jerk," "The Monkey," and "The Swim."

Soft drinks were served night club-style at tables ringing the dance floor. No hard liquor was available.

Darien's image of an upper strata suburb was tarnished this summer when the 17-year-old daughter of an American Airlines vice president was killed in a traffic accident.

Pretty Nancy Jane Hitchings and 19-year-old Michael Valentine Smith were returning from a sumptuous debutante party at the home of a psychiatrist when their car struck a tree and Nancy was killed.

Smith was convicted of negligent homicide, a decision his his lawyer has appealed, and 13 adults were arrested for serving liquor to persons under the minimum age.

Ft. Carson Colonel Ends 24 Years in the Army

A veteran of 12 years' Far Eastern hot and cold warfare, Lt. Col. William Payne, will close 24 Army years at Fort Carson Dec. 31. His first officer assignment was at Camp Carson in 1943.

He returned home recently from Vietnam where he was deputy senior adviser to the 9th Vietnamese Division, based in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon, for the past year. He earned the Air Medal there.

This Tennessean plans to retire at 308 Steven Dr., Security. He moved there with his family three years ago when he was assigned to the Fifth U. S. Army Inspector General's staff based at Carson.

He enlisted in Nashville, Tenn., in 1940 and was graduated from officer candidate school in 1943 coming to Camp Carson in 1943 to join the 71st Light Infantry Division. From there he volunteered for the famous Merrill's Marauders beginning his series of six Far Eastern tours.

With the marauders he traveled Burma from the north to Mandalay. After they were disbanded he was assigned as adviser to the 51st Chinese Division where he learned in October that the war had ended in August, 1945.

Col. Payne considers this phase of his life as one of the most interesting since he was a 23-year-old Lieutenant with a group of enlisted men training an entire division. He crossed China four times in this period and learned the Mandarin dialect on the job. He is one of very few Americans who wears the Chinese Breast Order of Clouds and Banners decoration.

He finally returned home for a year before going to Japan for three years as a company commander. His next trip to the U. S. was interrupted within a year by the Korean action in which he fought for a year from the Pusan perimeter to the Yalu River in five campaigns.

In Korea he added the Silver Star, a cluster to his World War II Bronze Star for Valor and the French Croix de Guerre to his decorations.

He spent a few years in the U. S. attending the Command and General Staff College and instructing at the Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga., before heading west to the Far East for the fourth time in 1955.

Again he was adviser to the Chinese Army this time in Taiwan for nearly two years.

His next tour, with Third U.S. Army headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., was followed by Inspector General duty with Eighth Army headquarters in Korea from which he returned to Atlanta.

In 1949 he was appointed cold war seminar officer organizing top level academic meetings throughout the south of civilians and instructors from leading universities.

Mike Nichols Decides to Try Directing

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "What makes you think you can direct a movie?" I asked Mike Nichols.

"I don't know that I can," he replied. "The only way to find out is to try it."

So he's trying it, and he's starting at the top. Next March 22 he will begin directing Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" for Warner Brothers.

Nichols has been successful at nearly everything to which he has turned his hand.

As comedian-actor he enjoyed enormous success with Elaine May, their satires knifing to the quick of contemporary society. They could have sustained a long career in night clubs, television and on the stage.

Elaine has turned to writing and is working on a play for Gwen Verdon, Nichols reports. His own bent has been toward directing, and he has been hailed as the brightest new director on Broadway.

His direction of "Barefoot in the Park" helped make it one of last season's hits, and the three-character "Luv" is one of this year's few successes.

Nichols, 33, here for conferences with studio boss Jack L. Warner and producer Ernest Lehman, said he has aimed at directing films for 10 years. He had already contracted to do two movies when "Virginia Woolf" came up. He is well-acquainted with the Burtons and believes that they asked for him.

How does he plan to put the lengthy, talky and sometimes bawdy Edward Albee play on the screen?

"That's a secret," he said. "I'd rather put my energy into making the picture rather than talking about it. I think it's better that way."

He did reveal that he plans to spend two weeks of rehearsing before turning a camera; he hopes to shoot in sequence, from the beginning to the end —"I think it's easier to do that when you're not concerned with large bodies of troops."

The idea of operating without an audience doesn't faze him.

"I'm an audience," he said, "And I hope that the preview system would provide enough of a response to make certain changes in cutting if they were needed."

Does he miss performing? "Not at all. Elaine and I will still do a few things like the Jack Paar Show. But we're both happy with what we're doing."

Thousands of Berliners Go Visiting

By JOHN O. KOEHLER

BERLIN (AP) — The Christmas reunion of Berliners separated by the Red Wall began Saturday as tens of thousands went into the Soviet sector of the divided city.

East German border guards opened the wall before dawn and by late aftenroon about 70,000 West Berliners had passed through by showing special passes issued by the Reds.

West Berlin police counted more than 6,000 cars at the four road crossings into East Berlin.

Despite the throngs, the operation went smoothly, as Communist authorities reinforced border guards and customs officials at the checkpoints.

West Berlin police reported no incidents during the day. The wall will be open to West Berliners with close relatives in the Soviet sector until Jan. 3. During this time, they will be allowed to make two visits.

About 800,000 of West Berlin's 2.2 million inhabitants are eligible to receive passes. This is the second Christmas since the wall was built in 1961 that reunions have been permitted.

People generally seemed more relaxed this year as they were crossing through the wall, for they know there will be at least two more visiting periods — at Easter and Whitsuntide. Last year they had no assurance that they could ever see their walled-in relatives again.

Questions and Answers on Alcoholism

Editor's Note: As a public service, The Gazette-Telegraph will answer question on Alcoholism and Problem Drinking in our region. Send all inquiries to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall, Director, Alcoholism Information Center, Out West Building, sponsored by the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism Inc.

1. Q. Are there different types of Alcoholics?

A. Yes, says Dr. Marvin Block· Probably as many kinds of Alcoholics as there are kinds of people; however they fall into a few general classifications.

2. Q. What Are General Classification Types of Alcoholics?

A. Dr. E. Jellinek the greatest authority on Alcoholism describes them by Greek Alphabet: Alpha, Beta, Delta, Gamma.

3. Q. What Type Is Most Prevalent in U. S.?

A. Dr. Block's guess about 90 per cent in U. S. fall in the gamma type although there are no accurate figures.

4. Q. What Is Gamma Type of Drinking?

A. He has all the characteristics of Alcoholism: psychological dependence, progression, consumes more and more at a time, drinks more and more often without reason until control is gone.

5. Q. Is Total Abstinence The Only Cure for Alcoholism:

A. Total abstinence would be the only way any addiction could be arrested. There is no known cure for Alcoholism at present but there is recovery.

6. Q. Why Is There Not More Research And Work Done in the Field of Alcoholism?

A. Primarily because it has ben too long a controversial issue. Everyone gets into the act without knowledge, facts and proper techniques. Some sociologist and psychologist argue the behaviour pattern. Even some psychiatrists, says Dr. Feldman, at the University of Utah are looking for causative factors meanwhile Alcohol is killing the patient — so lets do something about it.

7. Q. Why Do People Hide Their Progressive Illness Alcoholism?

A. Not only does the victim try to hide his illness, but his family and often his employer contributes to the progression of the illness by "Covering Up." STIGMA!

CU Dean Gets $150,000 Grant To Study Smog

Dean Max S. Peters of the University of Colorado School of Engineering has received a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for a five-year study closely linked to the battle against smog.

The grant for research on "Catalytic Mechanisms for Nitrogen Oxides Reduction" is set up to provide approximately $150,000 during the next five years.

Peters, a chemical engineer, said an ultimate goal in the study is to develop a selective and highly effective chemical agent to act as a catalyst in decomposing or reducing nitric oxide, a chemical which contributes to smog formations.

Peters said the catalyst could be used for abating nitric oxide content in waste gases, such as those from automobile exhausts. The research program will involve an experimental and theoretical analysis to give information on reactions involved in the catalytic decomposition of nitric oxide and nitrous oxide.

The project will provide funds for up to four graduate students. graduate student is working Peters said. At present, one actively on the project. He is Eugene E. Sterbis, a master's degree candidate in chemical engineering. Sterbis is son of Charles Sterbis of (2324 West Cortez in) Chicago.

Peters said the grant brings the total outside support received by the College of Engineering since the beginning of this year to more than $600,000, and for the first time in the history of the college the total outside research support is more than $1 million.

The Republic of South Africa is Africa's largest paper consumer, with a per capita consumption of 61.7 pounds in 1963.

Scouts Get a Night Out-- In Frigid Temperatures

Eight Air Force Academy cadets saw to it recently that Explorer Scouts from the Pikes Peak Council had a "night out" —the hard way!

Deep snow, frigid temperatures, and rudimentary shelter from the elements all added realism to the survival exercises rugged country near Eleven held for the Explorers in the set up their bivuoac area and Mile Canyon about 35 miles west of Colorado Springs.

Conducting the actual survival training sessions for the scouts were Cadet First Class Jerry Elder, cadet-in-charge, and Cadets First Class William J. Kennedy, Alvin C. Askew, Richard W. Shuey, and Peter S. Miner; Cadets Second Class Kenneth C. Lord and Jerry L. Beatty; and Thomas Dellafiora, '67.

The 48 Explorers and leaders then learned from the cadets how to build shelters from parachutes, set traps and snares for small animals, signal rescue aircraft, and read maps.

Cadets also showed their "students" how to construct an improvised smoke house from sticks and a parachute and smoked venison for them.

This winter's excursion marked the second year Academy cadets have taken part in the scout survival exercise.

Scotty Kenton, Scout District executive, had overall charge of the program. Other leaders accompanying the Explorers were Richards Hines, Pikes Peak Council Explorer chairman; William Gullickson, volunteer worker; and Capt. Stanley C. Kaiser, head of the Academy Photo Lab, who acted as photographer for the exercise.

Questions and Answers on Alcoholism

Editor's Note: As a public service, The Gazette-Telegraph will answer question on Alcoholism and Problem Drinking in our region. Send all inquiries to this newspaper. Answers will be supplied by G. L. McDougall, Director, Alcoholism Information Center, Out West Building, sponsored by the El Paso County Council on Alcoholism Inc.

1. Q. Are there different types of Alcoholics?

A. Yes, says Dr. Marvin Block· Probably as many kinds of Alcoholics as there are kinds of people; however they fall into a few general classifications.

2. Q. What Are General Classification Types of Alcoholics?

A. Dr. E. Jellinek the greatest authority on Alcoholism describes them by Greek Alphabet: Alpha, Beta, Delta, Gamma.

3. Q. What Type Is Most Prevalent in U. S.?

A. Dr. Block's guess about 90 per cent in U. S. fall in the gamma type although there are no accurate figures.

4. Q. What Is Gamma Type of Drinking?

A. He has all the characteristics of Alcoholism: psychological dependence, progression, consumes more and more at a time, drinks more and more often without reason until control is gone.

5. Q. Is Total Abstinence The Only Cure for Alcoholism:

A. Total abstinence would be the only way any addiction could be arrested. There is no known cure for Alcoholism at present but there is recovery.

6. Q. Why Is There Not More Research And Work Done in the Field of Alcoholism?

A. Primarily because it has ben too long a controversial issue. Everyone gets into the act without knowledge, facts and proper techniques. Some sociologist and psychologist argue the behaviour pattern. Even some psychiatrists, says Dr. Feldman, at the University of Utah are looking for causative factors meanwhile Alcohol is killing the patient — so lets do something about it.

7. Q. Why Do People Hide Their Progressive Illness Alcoholism?

A. Not only does the victim try to hide his illness, but his family and often his employer contributes to the progression of the illness by "Covering Up." STIGMA!

CU Dean Gets $150,000 Grant To Study Smog

Dean Max S. Peters of the University of Colorado School of Engineering has received a grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare for a five-year study closely linked to the battle against smog.

The grant for research on "Catalytic Mechanisms for Nitrogen Oxides Reduction" is set up to provide approximately $150,000 during the next five years.

Peters, a chemical engineer, said an ultimate goal in the study is to develop a selective and highly effective chemical agent to act as a catalyst in decomposing or reducing nitric oxide, a chemical which contributes to smog formations.

Peters said the catalyst could be used for abating nitric oxide content in waste gases, such as those from automobile exhausts. The research program will involve an experimental and theoretical analysis to give information on reactions involved in the catalytic decomposition of nitric oxide and nitrous oxide.

The project will provide funds for up to four graduate students, graduate student is working Peters said. At present, one actively on the project. He is Eugene E. Sterbis, a master's degree candidate in chemical engineering. Sterbis is son of Charles Sterbis of (2324 West Cortez in) Chicago.

Peters said the grant brings the total outside support received by the College of Engineering since the beginning of this year to more than $600,000, and for the first time in the history of the college the total outside research support is more than $1 million.

Scouts Get a Night Out-- In Frigid Temperatures

Eight Air Force Academy cadets saw to it recently that Explorer Scouts from the Pikes Peak Council had a "night out" —the hard way!

Deep snow, frigid temperatures, and rudimentary shelter from the elements all added realism to the survival exercises rugged country near Eleven held for the Explorers in the set up their bivuoac area and Mile Canyon about 35 miles west of Colorado Springs.

Conducting the actual survival training sessions for the scouts were Cadet First Class Jerry Elder, cadet-in-charge, and Cadets First Class William J. Kennedy, Alvin C. Askew, Richard W. Shuey, and Peter S. Miner; Cadets Second Class Kenneth C. Lord and Jerry L. Beatty; and Thomas Dellafiora, '67.

The 48 Explorers and leaders then learned from the cadets how to build shelters from parachutes, set traps and snares for small animals, signal rescue aircraft, and read maps.

Cadets also showed their "students" how to construct an improvised smoke house from sticks and a parachute and smoked venison for them.

This winter's excursion marked the second year Academy cadets have taken part in the scout survival exercise.

Scotty Kenton, Scout District executive, had overall charge of the program. DOLLS FROM EVERYWHERE—Mrs. Virginia Graham is shown here with prize dolls. They are among the many she has collected through the years. The Alaskan doll was sent to her by a son who was stationed in Alaska. The other is from the Far East. Just a small portion of her collection is shown here.

COLLECTOR'S ITEMS — Mrs. Harold Graham, who has two hobbies, is pictured here with one of the prize possessions from one of them—two pair of salt shakers. One of them is the oldest pair in her collection—100 years—and the other is the smallest.

3,000 Salt and Pepper Shakers May Be a Lot for Some, but Not for Her

By EVELYN FARNAM

Birds, animals, musical instruments, appliances, furniture, dishes, fruits, vegetables, foods fish — this is not a list at an auction, but a salt and pepper collection to the tune of 3,000, enclosed in a China closet, and belonging to Mrs. Harold Graham. There are antique sets, new sets, large, small; some were purchased, some were gifts, some are factory-made and some are home-made — such as those made of the antlers of a deer and those that were once lipstick cases. One pair was made from plastic-covered airplane wiring. The richest set is cut glass, even to the screw on lids, 100 years old. The most expensive set cost $7, one-half inch high, such gifts made of wood, metal and made of copper.

Some of the ceramic sets are home-made, from the kilns of the local shops, and there are other such gifts made of wood, metal, and painted China.

Aside from friends contributing, Mrs. Graham's three sons have had a hand in her collection, trying their hand in the art of making and also collecting for her in the many countries of the world where they have served in the armed forces. Australia, Japan, China, the Phillippines, Canada, Mexico, and our own Alaska are represented in this interesting China cabinet. Each set has a meaning for Mrs. Graham and she can give the story behind each one. What is more, this fabulous collection is still growing. The latest addition is a Halloween pair that she purchased at a local drug store. The witch and the jack-o-lantern have their place with certain other select sets on whatnots about the house, furnishing ornament and conversation.

Further conversation begin with an exlamation at the sight of dolls, 200 in all. A "wall-full" encased behind glass doors above the kitchen sink from corner to door — "Where I can enjoy them while I work," explained Mrs. Graham, represents approximately half of the whole collection, the small and medium-sized ones. The large and very large — some wear clothes once worn by her children — are displayed on the beds and in other good places throughout the house, and some are packed away for lack of space.

Some have unique origins and are unique in their construction. A Navajo doll, native made in New Mexico, has a dried apple head, which is completely covered by a good "ceramic" paint job. Another and the most expensive one that she has came from a remote spot in Alaska where an ancient Eskimo woman makes them, sitting on the ground in a market place. The Eskimo doll is completely constructed of seal skin, wearing the seal skin costume, rabbit trim, of the native Eskimo. This one and many others of Japan, China, Mexico, and Hawaii, were collected for her by her sons in service.

A set of Kachina Indian dolls portray the gods of the tribe — happiness, love, war, health, home, as is true of a set of Japanese in the same vein. There is a great number of storybook characters in the collection and some portray two races, in having a head at each end of the body, to be used according to the way the clothes are fastened. Two sets of dolls are replicas of the complete bridal party.

The tiniest dolls are encased, one in a jewelry box, which when supplied with batteries, lights, flash on the doll as the lid is opened. In a powder box, the dolls revolve with music. Many of the collections are jointed for movement, and some have moving eyes. A set of genuine Hummels is prized and a football player of the Air Force Academy is also a special possession. There are Quaker dolls, Israelian and Catholic Nuns included in the assortment.

She makes many gifts of dolls, purchased and dressed for the purpose. Many of her collection are given to her as discards to rebuild or re-dress. Being asked if she had even thought of having a "doll hospital business," she answered without hesitation, "I could never part with a doll I had worked with."

After 29 years of doll collecting and also salt and pepper shaker collecting (some are of both collections) additions are still being made. She is about to receive three sets of "The Dolls of France," including replicas of various provinces of France and a book of the history and explanation of each. She will crochet the costumes for each, keep one set and give the other two as gifts.

Mrs. Graham warns that all who are thinking of having a doll collection should know that it is an expensive hobby and so engrossing as to be impossible to stop, once started. She stated that one catalog she uses is entitled "Beware" for just this reason.

DECAL WARMER—Cold weather application of base decals to the bumpers of cars by the Pass and Registration Section of the Ent Security and Law Enforcement Office has been nearly impossible until this apparatus was built. S. Sgt. James Gilliam, with help and advice from several people, collected a metal pipe, a 250 watt light bulb, a gallon can and some electrical cord to manufacture the Cold Weather Decal Warmer. Family Style Meals, Atmosphere Help Brighten CC Students' Day

By SHARON ERVIN
Gazette Telegraph Staff Writer

Sleepless nights, deserted Christmas shopping and lagging morale typify final exam week in most colleges and Colorado College is no exception.

However, students at CC, whether aware of it or not, received a boost from the food services department during finals week which began Dec. 11 — and this was not the first time.

"During finals week, we make out a special menu," Bob Torrens, director of CC food services, said. "We try to put all the favorites on the menu during finals. We think it might help boost their morale. The usual favorites, hamburgers, hot dogs, fried chicken, roast beef, chilli and spaghetti are all included."

The food services staff includes Torrens; Carl Glaser, manager of food servies; Daryl Anderson, food service supervisor: Mrs. Betty McGrew, food services dietitian; Mrs. Lillie Thomas, kitchen supervisor for the Bemis-Taylor kitchen, and Mrs. Eva Chase, supervisor in the Rastall kitchen.

The main staff members range in age from 30 to 34 years and they feel it is significant in that they are not too far away from college days themselves and remember some of their own likes and dislikes as students.

"For instance," Torrens said, "we serve family-style meals five times a week. We saw a write-up in a national food services magazine the other day that praised some girls' school for serving these 'sit-down' meals once a month. We serve this type of meal often because we feel the kids enjoy them and what they learn in the dining room is just as important as what they learn in the classroom. We insist that they dress for dinner. Men are required to wear coats and ties while the women are asked to wear hose and dress accordingly."

Menus are devised on a nutritional basis but the staff avoids a cycle menu in which the same meals are served on the same days each week. The same menus are used for Bemis and Taylor Halls, Rastall Center and in four of the five CC fraternity houses.

"We don't insist on the same diet for each of these places," Torrens explained. "For instance if one of the cooks in a fraternity house says that the boys don't like a certain dish, we alter their menu accordingly."

As for atmosphere, the staff recently served the Christmas dinner, the last family - style meal before finals began. Lights were dimmed in Rastall. Candles set in yule logs holders were surrounded by cedar cuttings. One student played Christmas music during the meal. Despite the subdued atmosphere, however, the air was charged with the anticipation of both finals and the approaching Christmas vacation.

It took the 70 full-time employees plus 130 student part-time employees to serve the nearly 1,000 students and guests at the meal.

"We cooked 1,100 pounds of turkey," Torrens said. "And it probably took about 6,000 dishes. We usually wash from 15,000 to 20,000 dishes per day."

On similar special occasions the food services department has gone out of its way to lend atmosphere to a particular meal.

On Halloween, servers on the cafeteria line wore masks and they put up a few decorations. Friday the 13th, the staff placed a ladder in front of one of the serving lines so the non-superstitious students could take their chances and walk under it.

As for complaints, Torrens said he gets plenty.

"One fellow came in the other day to gripe about our having left-overs. We always serve them as a choice, not a menu item. Of course, we can't afford to waste the food that is left after a meal. I asked him if his mother ever served left-overs. He nodded and I told him that he certainly should understand why we did. He went away knowing a lot more about the food operation than when he came in.

"But, for the most part, most of our students appreciate what we try to do for them. When they come in with legitimate complaints, we listen and change some things."

In addition to serving meals, the food services department handles catering for special events, operates the snack bars on campus and serves pre-game meals to athletes before sporting events.

"Sometimes we get so busy, I end up cooking or washing dishes," Torrens said with a smile. "We all get into the act sometimes to get these kids fed."

Record - Breaking Presidential Vote Reported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Official returns from every state except Pennsylvania showed today that a record-breaking 70,683,659 Americans voted for president Nov. 3 in the election which swept Lyndon B. Johnson back into the White House.

Johnson got the biggest presidential landslide in history.

Forty-nine of the fifty states and the District of Columbia now have certified their official returns. Only Pennsylvania — where some absentee ballots are challenged in three counties — still is working on its final report. Pennsylvania is not likely to certify its figures for several more weeks, but only minute changes are expetced in its present totals.

Johnson received 43,126,245 votes — 61 per cent of all ballots cast — while Republican presidential nominee Barry M. Goldwater was given 27,173,894.

Unpledged electors in Alabama and Presidential hopefuls from minor parties collected 383,520 votes.

Johnson's vote was the largest ever given a presidential candidate. It topped by 7,545,242 the previous high received by Republican Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1956.

Johnson's margin of 61 per cent of all votes cast also was the largest ever received — exceeding Franklin D. Roosevelt's 1936 edge by two-tenths of one per cent.

The biggest "other" party presidential vote this year was rolled up in Alabama where 265,460 persons cast their ballots for a slate of unpledged electors.

Eric Haas, nominee of the Socialist Last party, came in second in this category, polling 44,397 votes in 16 states. He was followed by Earl Munn of the Prohibition party who received 22,962 in 10 states.

Other minor parties showing in the final returns included the National States Rights, Militant Workers and the Constitution Party.

Warden of Missouri Prison Found Dead

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The warden of the Missouri State Prison was found shot to death in his home late Friday night. Police said the death was an apparent suicide.

Police said Wadren E. V. Nash apparently shot himself in the right temple in the bedroom of his home. He was found by his wife, who had a telephone operator call police.

Nash was pronounced dead at Memorial Hospital in Jefferson City.

Authorities said Nash had been under criticism by state officials for his administration of the prison. His dismissal had been recommended, they said.

Nash's death came about 24 hours after he had been criticized in a preliminary legislative report by State Rep. Peter J. J. Rabbitt, St. Louis County Democrat and chairman on a joint committee on correctional institutions and problems.

Rabbitt's report called for immediate replacement of Nash and eventual closing of the state penitentiary.

President Will Spend Holiday At His Ranch

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is brimming over with the Christmas spirit. But soon the gaiety will be transferred to President Johnson's Texas Ranch, where the first family will spend most of the holiday season.

Friday night, Johnson and his closest kinfolk gathered in the circular park south of the White House as he pressed a button to light the 72-foot national community Christmas tree in windy, 25-degree weather.

Even as Johnson closed the electric circuit to illuminate the tree, the White House walls, gleaming in a fresh coat of paint, were bathed by floodlights. This was the first time since his economy-in-government campaign was launched a year ago that the executive mansion was so bright.

Just before the tree-lighting, the Johnsons were hosts to the children of White House staff members. And Sunday, White House correspondents and their families will drop by for a special holiday tour.

Then the President, his wife Lady Bird and daughters Lynda and Luci will be free to fly to their ranch.

In lighting the big national Christmas tree, chopped from a grove at .Chestertown, N.Y., Johnson said the sky of the age is being brightened by a new star—the star of peace.

"These," he said, "are the most hopeful times in all the years since Christ was born in Bethlehem."

As never before, said the President, "man has in his possession the capacities to end war and preserve peace, to eradicate poverty and share abundance, to overcome the diseases that have afflicted the human race and permit all mankind to enjoy their promise in life on this earth."

Soviets Reject Compromise in U.N. Finances

By TOM HOGE

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Soviet Union reportedly has rejected a compromise proposal by General Assembly President Alex Quaison-Sackey of Ghana for settling the U.S. financial crisis.

The rejection was reported by diplomats Friday night, on the eve of another round of talks on the subject between U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

They scheduled a working luncheon at Rusk's New York hotel suite.

The United States "could swallow" Quaison-Sackey's proposal, the diplomats said, but the Soviets were against it. Some African, Asian and South American delegates also opposed the proposal, they added.

It called for setting up a voluntary fund to overcome the U.N. insolvency caused by the Soviet Union's refusal to pay its share of peacekeeping operations in the Congo and the Middle East.

A 12-nation Asian-African committee representing the 59-nation Afro-Asian group has been promoting its own plan for settlement of the financial squabble.

Quaison-Sackey's plan would state only vaguely that money paid into the voluntary fund would be spent for general U.N. purposes, the diplomats said. The Asian-African plan came closer to saying the money would go to wipe out the U.N. deficit resulting from refusal of the Soviet Union and others to pay their peacekeeping assessments.

The Russians had indicated a willingness to contribute to a voluntary fund provided it was not identified with the peacekeeping costs. Their objection to Quaison-Sackey's plan was not detailed by the diplomats.

The U.S. has insisted that the Soviets and any other members delinquent two years or more in paying their dues be stripped of their General Assembly vote unless they pay up. The Soviet Union is more than $52 million in arrears.

Rusk, who attended a party at the Soviet U.N. mission last night, had three earlier meetings with Gromyko. They touched on disarmament and South Viet Nam as well as U.N. finances.

U.S. sources said Rusk told Gromyko then that negotiations on U.S.-Soviet trade and other economic questions would have to wait until the U.N. financial question is settled. The Russians have shown interest in increasing trade with the U.S. and in setting up a New York-Moscow commercial air link.

A U.S. spokesman said Rusk probably will return to Washington tonight. Gromyko is expected to go back to Moscow Sunday.

The Security Council by a unanimous vote Friday extended the life of the 6,200-man U.N. peacekeeping force on Cyprus for another three months. The move had been recommended by Secretary-General U Thant.

Joe Bananas May Appear In Jury Probe

By RAY KOHN

NEW YORK (AP) — The attorney for Cosa Nostra boss Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno says his client, who disappared during a purported kidnaping on Park Avenue two months ago, is alive and will appear Monday before a federal grand jury.

The lawyer, William P. Maloney, told a news conference Friday that he received a telephone call shortly before noon from Bonanno's son, Salvatore.

"I was told," Maloney said, "that Bonanno is in good health, and that delighted me."

Maloney said he was present shortly after midnight last Oct. 21 when two gunmen forced the elder Bonanno into a car. He said one gunman fired a single shot at him before the auto sped away.

Bonanno disappeared hours before he was to appear before a grand jury investigating organized crime.

Earlier this week, Hearst columnist Walter Winchell reported he had been told by underworld informants that Bonanno was well.

The columnist said Bonanno was kidnaped because the underworld feared What Bonanno might tell the grand jury, adding: "Bananas faced death many times during his captivity and was finally spared only because of word from 'higher up' in Cosa Nostra."

Winchell said a condition of Bonanno's release was "that he's through in the rackets, and that his territory will be cut up among other Cosa Nostra chieftains."

True Christmas Will Come When Men Turn to Peace

The genuine spirit of Christmas will come only when men turn to peace, become less self-centered and develop a doubt conquering faith, Dr. Ben F. Lehmberg, pastor of the First Methodist Church, told members of the Senior League at a luncheon meeting in the Moors Restaurant.

"Christmas will come, first of all, when the world will work harder for peace than it does for war," Dr. Lehmberg said. "Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell declared: 'Think what a world we could make if we put into our peace endeavors the same self sacrifice and the same co-operation we use in the wastefulness of war.'"

As a second requirement Dr. Lehmberg said man "must become as interested in and concerned about others as we are about ourselves," and added "we are reminded that a man wrapped up in himself makes a very small parcel."

The third factor, he said, is "when our faith replaces our doubts. We need a stubborn faith, the sort of stubbornness Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego showed, as told in the Book of Daniel, when they defied the king's command to worship a golden image under threat of being thrown into the fiery furnace."

It is the spirit of Christmas, rather than the actual date of Dec. 25, that really matters, the minister declared. He said many believed Christ was born in late summer or early fall.

"Christians did not celebrate Christ's birth for three centuries after He lived on earth. Then they converted a Roman pagan holiday into the religious observance which became our Christmas."

Some of the customs of this and other countries were mentioned by Dr. Lehmberg.

He traced the Christmas tree tradition to Martin Luther whose idea of decorating a tree indoors came form observing stars twinkling through evergreen branches outdoors. In the United States, 100,000 acres of trees are cut annually for that purpose.

"Three and a half billion Christmas cards go through the postoffice each year," he said. "Christmas gift-giving is a billion - dollar business. Sixty five per cent of the yearly production of toys is bought at Christmas time.

"At this season of the year, Santa Clauses, fat or thin, young or old, appear everywhere. There is even a school in Albion, N.Y. to train Santa Clauses, and this year's class ranged in age from 24 to 73.

"I believ in Santa Claus provided we help our youngsters to see him as the spirit of giving, not just getting."

According to the minister, Christmas celebrating was not always practiced in this country.

"Among early settlers Christmas was as much a day of work as any other. In 1659, Massachusetts actually passed a law compelling men to do a regular day's work on Christmas day. Anyone found idle was fined $5."

Revenue Men Fight With Gov. Scranton

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says the estate of Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton's mother owes the government more than $600,000. Scranton claims the government owes the estate $265,000.

When Mrs. Marion Margery Scranton died June 23, 1960, at the age of 76, she left an estate valued at more than $7 million. Scranton, as co-executor, paid the government $3,331,770 in inheritance taxes.

But the IRS said the estate owes another $663,151. Scranton, in a petition filed in U.S. Tax Court here this week, said that after studying the IRS adjustments he concluded he overpaid the government by $265,860.

Four Men; Month's Work Add Up to Christmas Fun

Four men and a month's work have yielded lights for Seven Falls and the surrounding canyon. The sight is available to the public for the price of a voluntary contribution.

This annual occurrence is part of the Christmas Unlimited program.

When Christmas Unlimited was getting started seven or eight years ago, organizers approached Al G. Hill, owner of Seven Falls to ask for a contribution to help needy families during the holiday season. Hill said he would go a step further and that he would donate, not cash, but one of the most scenic tourist attractions in the area—Seven Falls.

The spokesmen for Christmas Unlimited accepted the offer when Hill explained that he would not charge an entrance fee during this particular part of the year and suggested that Christmas Unlimited recruit volunteer workers to collect contributions from the visitors.

"Mr. Hill takes care of having the lighting done," William G. Helling, manager of Hill's interests here, explained. "We have had four men on the job for the past four weeks. In fact the night the wind was so strong, one fellow went out there at 2 a.m. to try to secure some of the decorations."

This year the area will be open to the public from 5 to 9 p.m. daily, Dec. 19 through Dec. 27, with the exception of Christmas Eve.

Boy Scout volunteers will collect donations from visitors for the Christmas Unlimited program this year.

"Last year," Helling said, "about 11,500 persons passed through the gates during this time and over $2,000 was collected for Christmas Unlimited. Of course, since there is very little overhead because of all the volunteer workers, nearly all of that was profit.

"This idea pleased Mr. Hill more than one way, too. He said he suspected that many people living in the Colorado Springs area never saw many of the scenic spots nearby. He felt that this was a good way for many of them to have a chance to see Seven Falls.

"If the weather holds, the canyon will be beautiful. It always looks unusually beautiful when it snows. Also, if it doesn't get too cold, we can keep the cable car in operation. The view from the car really is magnificent."

The Savannah, world's first nuclear merchant ship, logged more than 63,600 miles between May, 1962, and October of this year.

Young Denver Student To Wed Negro Girl

DENVER (AP) — John Perdew, 22-year-old Denver student civil rights worker, who announced Friday that he will be married next week to Amanda Bowen, 19, a Negro girl from Americus, Ga., has received the blessings of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Philip Perdew.

Dr. Perdew, an instructor at Denver University, said that Miss Bowen "seems to be very nice," and added:

"We hope they'll both be happy."

John and his bride plan to return to Americus after the wedding to continue their work with the Student Nonviolent Coordinating Committee.

When asked about the couple's future, Dr. Perdew said that like other parents, he and his wife "would like to smooth the path of life for our children, not to take a rough road to a destiny which appeals to him."

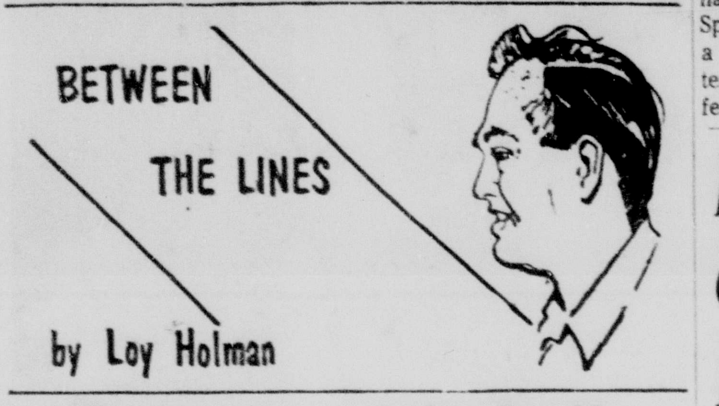
Sunday, Dec. 20, 1964 SECTION D

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman



Beginning of the End?

Picking up the week's tidbits . . .

Making note of a squib over the news wires the other day, Mickey Mantle says he is looking forward to what could be a fine season next summer. The reason is simply that the New York Yankee's super-star has no surgery schedule this winter — for the first time in many a year.

Many have wondered just what the Mick could have accomplished he has been fortunate enough to play baseball with a whole body. As it was, taped from head to heel, Mantle still has to classed with the greatest of all time.

He was one of the Yankees that stood up for now departed Yogi Berra as erstwhile manager of the Bombers. Mantle claims that Yogi handled the players much better than he was credited, and without his decision to take Mickey out of the outfield for much of last summer to rest those torn legs it would have been a different story for the Oklahoma Kid.

I still can't help but wonder if Mickey is really looking forward to the coming season. The thought has been passed around that the end of American League dominance is near for the Yanks.

A source close to major league baseball hinted this beginning of the end for the Yankees, recently. He pointed out that many of the players who have been holding the team together for several years are no longer young and they could be on the verge of retirement.

He also said that there was more allegiance between the players and former owners Dan Topping and Del Webb — especially the latter — than was known, and that now under the control of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., this personal attachment is gone.

And so may be some of these key players in another year or so.

Among those on the way out of the game are Mantle, who certainly has enough other business interests for comfortable living; Bobby Richardson, who has already indicated he would like to leave the game and go into youth work with his church; and Whitey Ford, the backbone of the New York pitching staff whether on or off the mound.

The farm system isn't what it used to be and every year there are fewer bright prospects coming up through the chain. And for the past two years the cross-town Mets of the National League have out-drawn the Yanks at the gate despite being at the opposite end of the standings.

If the Mets should assure a sell-out on opening day with the most famous battery in the business — Warren Spahn pitching to Berra — watch for the magic eye of CBS to blink a few times in wonderment that they may have purchased a dying club from financial wizards who have never traded away anything but a washed-up player — or team.

This Monday could be a day of decision for the proposed horse racing track, located about midway between Colorado Springs and Pueblo, as it's the date set for a progress report to the state racing commission.

If the officials at Pikes Peak Meadows can prove they will be ready for a meet this spring the new track may get underway after all. If not, look for nothing but a white elephant to dot the landscape just off Highway 87 near the Hanover interchange.

Just recently the original inestors reportedly sold out their interests in the Meadows to Kennith P. Herrington, owner of the Shamrock Engineering Co. of Gary, Ind. Shamrock supposedly took controlling interest in the plant in exchange for finishing the track and grandstand and other outstanding obligations.

The commission has set dates of April 29 through July 1 for the season at Pikes Peak Meadows, which isn't as far off as it would seem.

But the Meadows has been awfully hush-hush about everything it's done so far — which generally is a sign of trouble for anything that depends so much on public acceptance. We can take nothing but a pessimestic view toward the track until shown otherwise.

Just after Notre Dame had won the favor of the majority of football fandom this past season with their 9-1 record and exciting brand of ball after hitting the doldrums for the past few years, it seems they are "courting" an opposite reaction now.

That came from this week's announcement that the New York Supreme Court had granted Notre Dame University a temporary injunction against the showing of a new film called "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home."

Notre Dame's idea is that the film capitalizes on the school's name and prestige. One catch is that the picture was made before Coach Ara Parseghian brought the Irish back among the winners. And at that time, Notre Dame gridiron prestige was not exactly lofty.

Among the scenes, Notre Dame is beaten by an Arab school coached by a U-2 pilot forced down in Arabia. Before the game the Fighting Irish team is being intertained by a harem — one of the dancers being actress Shirley MacLaine, who also turns out to be the game's heroine with the winning touchdown the next day.

The school's contention was that the picture depicted the players as "undisciplined gluttons and drunks."

The author of the story happens to be a "practicing Roman Catholic and a graduate of a Jesuit school" and he confessed he couldn't understand what all the fuss was about.

It's agreed here that if officials of Notre Dame can't see that the film was made in a light-hearted mood and without malice then they must be pretty short-sighted. It's a miserable case of higher education when the brutal business of collegiate football can't include a little jest and a touch of the ridiculous.

Surely they don't think the public would be serious about seeing shapley Shirley running for a touchdown against their highly - heralded hired hands. It was intended a scomedy, but evidently counting all those gate receipts has blinded Notre Dame to humor.

Mack Jones of Syracuse led the International League in strikeouts last season with 121.

He also led in home runs with 39.

Lakewood's Tigers Dump Thunderbirds, 74-69

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

LAKEWOOD — Wasson's Thunderbrids borrowed a page from the past here Saturday night as they watched a nine-point lead melt away in the final period and the Colorado Springs team eventually dropped a 74-69 overtime decision to bitter rival Lakewood of the Jefferson County League.

The defeat was especially hard to take since it came on the heels of the Thunderbirds' loss in the state football finals to Lakewood less than a month ago. It left Wasson with a 2-3 mark for the campaign.

As happened so frequently to the fabled Thunderbird team of two years ago, Wasson was an apparent winner until the final seconds Saturday — but in this instance it was more a product of unkindly breaks than carelessness that prompted the downfall.

A splurge of Lakewood free throws in the final minutes ate away the lead which the T-Birds had worked so hard to produce earlier in the second half. And when a last-second tipin by the Tigers' Fred Jones flipped through the nets, the Birds were forced into an overtime with three regulars seated on the bench with five fouls. Guards Jim Smith and Mike Martin and forward Craig Gillette had all been whisteld out of the contest.

In the extra stanza it was unheralded Lakewood reserve Harold Monson who did the primary damage. His cripple with just over 20 seconds elapsed shot the Jeffco team ahead at 67-65 and after Randy Stanley had dropped a layup to force another deadlock with 1:28 to go, Monson whipped the length of the floor to put the Tigers back on top just four seconds later. Five free throws in the closing seconds that came as a result of Wasson desperation tactics sealed the verdict for the home club.

Despite the heartbreaking defeat Wasson had standout performances from several, including 6-3 Charlie Steel who finally hit his stride after sub-par evenings earlier. Steel rang in 18 points and yanked away 15 rebounds in addition to turning in a tight defensive job on Lakewood ace Greg Smith.

For the Tigers Eric Spicklemier was the top point producer with 17, while Jones led a fierce Tiger effort on the backboards with 17 caroms. It was this rebound work combined with excellent free throw accuracy and the ability to cope with the Wasson press which turned the trick for Lakewood.

Wasson jumped to an early 4-0 lead as Steel and Stanley flipped in a couple of quick tips. But the Tigers began making hay at the free throw line and the Thunderbirds could not force any more daylight into the margin. Near the end of the first period Lakewood pulled into its first tie at 9-9 but Wasson used three straight charity shots to a 12-11 lead into the second quarter.

The T-Birds continued to nurse a slim advantage until a pair of free shots by Bob Watson gave the Tigers their first lead of the contest at 19-18 with 3:25 left in the half. Twice after that the home club forged ahead by four points but Wasson pulled back each time. A drive by Stanley brought them within 31-29 with 21 seconds to go but the hefty Wasson junior then missed on a one-and-one opportunity at the charity line after time elapsed and the T-Birds were forced to carry that two-point deficit to the dressing room.

The fist-tight action continued in the third quarter with Lakewood zipping to another four-point margin before the T-Birds rushed back on a bucket by Martin and two free throws by Steel to force 33-33 deadlock. Another bucket by Martin with 4:21 to go in the period gave Wasson its first lead of the half at 37-35 and near the end of the stanza the Birds finally began to force some daylight into the margin.

By early in the fourth quarter the Thunderbirds had zoomed to a nine-point margin at 52-43 but it began to slip away as Lakewood again went to work at the free throw line. The Birds were still five points in front at 64-59 with 1:31 to go but three misses at the charity line gave the Tigers the opening they needed. Lakewood had closed to 65-63 when Spicklemeir was fouled with two seconds left. He missed the shot but Jones was there to tip it through at the buzzer and force the Thunderbirds into the ill-fated overtime.

IT'S MINE — St. Mary's forward John Van Horn holds onto a rebound in first quarter action at St. Mary's gym Saturday, but Pueblo Catholic's Charles McGee, 33 doesn't want to take no for an answer. Looking on are George Kaplan, (41) and Tome Socha, (24). The Pirates took the contest, 61-50.

Pirates Pull Stunning Win Over Irish, 61-50

By DICK FOSTER

Whether Dan Wright's St. Mary's Pirates confused the Pueblo Catholic Shamrocks into panic with their pressing defensive tactics, or the Steel City team just had a bad bad night is undecided. But the Pirates easily cruised over a ragged Irish five 61-50, in a Saturday match at St. Mary's.

St. Mary's did what they have been doing so far this season —pressed. The Shamrocks were plagued by bad shooting, constant floor mistakes, and mass confusion all night, fell after a game first quarter.

Tom McCarthy paced his Pirates with 19 points in the scoring column, while Sam Zavatti and John Van Horn each hit 10. Van Horn, along with Tom Socha, turned in a good performance on the rebound side.

The Shamrock's small guard, John Ottino, shot 15 points, and forwards Jim Reilly and Charles McGee sank 10 and 12 points respectively. The Pueblo trio also had the major portion of Irish rebounds, but the boards were controlled by St. Mary's, who played another of their "run-run" contests.

Pueblo Catholic managed to stay with the Pirates in the opening period. They fell behind early, as the Pirate press made the gym floor messy for the Shamrocks. Managing to regroup behind Ottino in the late first frame, through, the visitors edged ahead and then settled for a tie in that quarter, 13-13.

John Van Horn came to life in the seco nd quarter, and so did McCarthy, and so did the Pirates. Van Horn pumped in six, McCarthy eight, and the total St. Mary's output was 22. It put the Pirates in front 35-27.

After St. Mary's ran up a 22 point second quarter and an eight point bulge, they let down a little. Wright used his reserves in a considerable portion of the final quarter but in the second half, the Bucs still picked up three points on the Irish.

Pueblo began to rally somewhat on the boards and in ball control in the third period, but their cold shooting punctured any inflation of hopes. St. Mary's got only two rebounds in the third quarter, but Pueblo hit just five shots from the field. McCarthy at that time nailed another six points for St. Mary's.

The teams battled to an 11-11 standoff in the fourth quarter point-making. The Shamrock's Ottino and Reilly fouled out as time got scarce and Buc reserves carried the Pirate lead to the horn.

Tall Childs Lead Golden Quintet Over Air Academy Kadets, 94-72

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Six-foot-seven Brian Childs turned a 39-point performance as Golden's Demons outscored and outboarded Air Academy High, 94-72, Saturday night in the Kadet gymnasium.

Foul trouble and a lack of consistency from the field sent the Kadets down to their fifth loss in six outings. But, as coach John Deiventhal said following the game, "We learn a lot playing this games, even though we lose. It should help us in league play.

If playing Golden helped AAH learn anything, it was that a 6-7 center who pivots either way and shoots free throws with maddening accuracy will murder a team which can't field a player over 6-2.

Childs almost dominated the game completely until he was taken out in the fourth quarter. He pulled off 19 rebounds and canned 13 of 18 free throws, most in the last half as the Demons fed the big guy constantly for the long lead.

The Kadets led as late as the middle of the second quarter as Tony Blanchard and Mark Baker battered the Demons with 15-footers and free shots. The last time AAH led was at 4:37 of the second stanza after Baker scored a pair of free shots to pull ahead, 26-25. But Childs came back with a lay-in and the Demons ran the count to 40-31 at halftime.

After intermission, Childs added his team's first eight points and Golden took a 48-37 lead to sack the contest. The Big Blue battled all the way but the points sandwiched around halftime made the difference Golden needed.

Bert Spear, long-range bombing guard for the Kadets, led AAH with 16 points, but fired in only seven of 23 from the field. Randy Green added 14 points and Baker chipped in with 13.

Don Anderson, leader in Golden's usually-accurate fast break attack, scored 19 points and guard Darrell Wood added 17.

The Kadets fell into foul trouble and presented Golden with 33 attempts at the charity line. The Demons sank 24 of those. But AAH was no slouch at the free stripe itself. The Kadets made nine of 11 in the first half and finished with 18 of 25.

But it was at field goal firing that AAH failed to come through as needed. They managed only 27 field goals, although throwing up 83 shots, a 32.5 percentage.

Meanwhile, Golden sank 35 of 68 for better than 51 per cent, although many were layups and short bank shots.

St. John's Nips Notre Dame

NEW YORK (AP) — Seventh-ranked St. John's won its fourth game in five starts Saturday night, cooling off high-scoring Notre Dame 76-72.

The loss was the second straight on the road for the Irish after four straight victories at home. Notre Dame went into the game with a game average of 100.8 points, second highest in the nation.

St. John's went ahead to stay with 8½ minutes left in the first half on Brian Hill's field goal. That made the score 29-28.

Kansas Nets Win Over Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Three field goals by Del Lewis in the overtime gave Kansas a 63-61 victory over Maryland Saturday night as the Jayhawks staged a counter rally to win their fourth basketball game in seven starts.

Kansas had come from four points behind with 4:22 left in the regulation game, Jim Gough's two free shots with four seconds to go tying the game at 54-all.

Lewis, who topped the visitors with 20 points, gave his team a 56-54 lead with a 15-foot jumper after 1:09 of the overtime and hit again from the corner 40 seconds later.

Maryland narrowed the gap to a point on a field goal by Neil Brayton and Jay McMillen's free toss but the Jayhawks sewed it up when Al Lopes and Lewis made good on both chances of one-and-one situations.

Gary Ward, Maryland's leading scorer, paced both teams with 26 points but missed from the foul line for only the fifth time this year on a one-and-one situation which would have tied the score with 16 seconds left in the extra period.

It was Maryland's fourth defeat in seven games, its third by two points. The other two came in an extra period and by one point.

Dayton Cops Third Place

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — The Dayton Flyers overcame a West Virginia surge Saturday night to take third place in the University of Kentucky Invitational Basketball Tournament with a 71-67 victory.

Run-Gun Rams Stop Bonnies

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Fast-breaking Colorado State University overcame St. Bonaventure's second - half "blitz" Saturday night to hang on for an 86-81 basketball victory over the Brown Indians, winners of their first five games.

The game was the first of a War Memorial Auditorum doubleheader, which featured Canisius and Georgetown in the nightcap.

Colorado State, paced by 6-7 Sonny Bustion and 5-11 Tom Vidakovich, led from the outset and by halftime had built a 49-34 edge. But, when the Westerners had reached 63 points, the Bonnies employed what football fans would call a blitz and stifled the visitors' attack.

Little by little, with 5-8 John Riley and 6-8 Paul Stappenbeck in the driver's seat, the Bonnies whittled Colorado's lead until, with less than three minutes to play, Colorado was ahead by only two points.

Colorado, aided by five free throws, managed to stay ahead and boost its lead five points for the victory.

Bustion, whose height enabled him to click under the baskets, topped the scoring with 27 points. It was the two-handed shot of Vidakovich, however, that thrilled the crowd. He scored on eight of 14 shots from the field and with six free throws, netted a total of 22 points. Paul Stappenbeck, with 23, was high for the previously unbeaten Bonnies.

Colorado now has won five games and lost two.

Feste's chargers took a 35-19 commanding lead at halftime but the Trojans couldn't cope with the torrid shooting Castle Rock five in the final period.

Wildcats Overpower Salida Five

PUEBLO — Pueblo Central's South Central League Champions last year, had to stretch Saturday night before downing a game Salida team, 69-61 here. Central was paced by Bill Snider and Dan Kochevar who went for 20 points apiece.

Len Bustos and Pat Woods and John Lantz were all hot shooters for the Salida team. Bustos shot 10 points, Lantz 11, and Woods 17.

Central's starting five bore the brunt of chores in their checking of Salida. In fact, no one else scored, and only two others did much of anything, in fouling the Salida team.

Salida's Spartans used all but two men, and all broke into the scoring column.

Fairview Cagers Stop Gladiators

BOULDER — Behind the shooting of Fred Maulsby, who pumped in 25 points, the Boulder Fairview basketball team defeated the Widefield Gladiators here Saturday night in non-conference play, 68-52.

The visiting Gladiators managed to stay within striking distance as they were only down one point at intermission, 29-28.

But the Fairview cagers broke out in the third period with a 21-point scoring spree and followed with 19 points in the finale to wrap up the victory.

For the Gladiators, John Henke was high point man with 14 points, followed by Dave Smedsrud with 12 points and Dick Stevenson with 11 points.

Tulsa Stops Memphis State

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Tulsa was held back by Memphis State's rigid zone defense, but managed to spurt ahead in the second half to an 80-63 non-conference basketball victory Saturday night.

The Tiger defense held Tulsa within reach for most of the game, but a five-point burst mid-way in the second half gave the Hurricane a 62-50 lead and forced Memphis State out of its zone.

BETWEEN THE LINES

by Loy Holman

Beginning of the End?

Picking up the week's tidbits . . .

Making note of a squib over the news wires the other day, Mickey Mantle says he is looking forward to what could be a fine season next summer. The reason is simply that the New York Yankee's super-star has no surgery schedule this winter — for the first time in many a year.

Many have wondered just what the Mick could have accomplished he has been fortunate enough to play baseball with a whole body. As it was, taped from head to heel, Mantle still has to classed with the greatest of all time.

He was one of the Yankees that stood up for now departed Yogi Berra as erstwhile manager of the Bombers. Mantle claims that Yogi handled the players much better than he was credited, and without his decision to take Mickey out of the outfield for much of last summer to rest those torn legs it would have been a different story for the Oklahoma Kid.

I still can't help but wonder if Mickey is really looking forward to the coming season. The thought has been passed around that the end of American League dominance is near for the Yanks.

A source close to major league baseball hinted this beginning of the end for the Yankees, recently. He pointed out that many of the players who have been holding the team together for several years are no longer young and they could be on the verge of retirement.

He also said that there was more allegiance between the players and former owners Dan Topping and Del Webb — especially the latter — than was known, and that now under the control of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., this personal attachment is gone.

And so may be some of these key players in another year or so.

Among those on the way out of the game are Mantle, who certainly has enough other business interests for comfortable living; Bobby Richardson, who has already indicated he would like to leave the game and go into youth work with his church; and Whitey Ford, the backbone of the New York pitching staff whether on or off the mound.

The farm system isn't what it used to be and every year there are fewer bright prospects coming up through the chain. And for the past two years the cross-town Mets of the National League have out-drawn the Yanks at the gate despite being at the opposite end of the standings.

If the Mets should assure a sell-out on opening day with the most famous battery in the business — Warren Spahn pitching to Berra — watch for the magic eye of CBS to blink a few times in wonderment that they may have purchased a dying club from financial wizards who have never traded away anything but a washed-up player — or team.

This Monday could be a day of decision for the proposed horse racing track, located about midway between Colorado Springs and Pueblo, as it's the date set for a progress report to the state racing commission.

If the officials at Pikes Peak Meadows can prove they will be ready for a meet this spring the new track may get underway after all. If not, look for nothing but a white elephant to dot the landscape just off Highway 87 near the Hanover interchange.

Just recently the original investors reportedly sold out their interests in the Meadows to Kenith P. Herrington, owner of the Shamrock Engineering Co. of Gary, Ind. Shamrock supposedly took controlling interest in the plant in exchange for finishing the track and grandstand and other outstanding obligations.

The commission has set dates of April 29 through July 1 for the season at Pikes Peak Meadows, which isn't as far off as it would seem.

But the Meadows has been awfully hush-hush about everything it's done so far — which generally is a sign of trouble for anything that depends so much on public acceptance. We can take nothing but a pessimestic view toward the track until shown otherwise.

Just after Notre Dame had won the favor of the majority of football fandom this past season with their 9-1 record and exciting brand of ball after hitting the doldrums for the past few years, it seems they are "courting" an opposite reaction now.

That came from this week's announcement that the New York Supreme Court had granted Notre Dame University a temporary injunction against the showing of a new film called "John Goldfarb, Please Come Home."

Notre Dame's idea is that the film capitalizes on the school's name and prestige. One catch is that the picture was made before Coach Ara Parseghian brought the Irish back among the winners. And at that time, Notre Dame gridiron prestige was not exactly lofty.

Among the scenes, Notre Dame is beaten by an Arab school coached by a U-2 pilot forced down in Arabia. Before the game the Fighting Irish team is being intertained by a harem — one of the dancers being actress Shirley MacLaine, who also turns out to be the game's heroine with the winning touchdown the next day.

The school's contention was that the picture depicted the players as "undisciplined gluttons and drunks."

The author of the story happens to be a "practicing Roman Catholic and a graduate of a Jesuit school" and he confessed he couldn't understand what all the fuss was about.

It's agreed here that if officials of Notre Dame can't see that the film was made in a light-hearted mood and without malice then they must be pretty short-sighted. It's a miserable case of higher education when the brutal business of collegiate football can't include a little jest and a touch of the ridiculous.

Surely they don't think the public would be serious about seeing shapley Shirley running for a touchdown against their highly - heralded hired hands. It was intended a scomedy, but evidently counting all those gate receipits has blinded Notre Dame to humor.

Mack Jones of Syracuse led the International League in strikeouts last season with 121.

He also led in home runs with 39.

Lakewood's Tigers Dump Thunderbirds, 74-69

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

LAKEWOOD — Wasson's Thunderbrids borrowed a page from the past here Saturday night as they watched a nine-point lead melt away in the final period and the Colorado Springs team eventually dropped a 74-69 overtime decision to bitter rival Lakewood of the Jefferson County League.

The defeat was especially hard to take since it came on the heels of the Thunderbirds' loss in the state football finals to Lakewood less than a month ago. It left Wasson with a 2-3 mark for the campaign.

As happened so frequently to the fabled Thunderbird team of two years ago, Wasson was an apparent winner until the final seconds Saturday — but in this instance it was more a product of unkindly breaks than carelessness that prompted the downfall.

A splurge of Lakewood free throws in the final minutes ate away the lead which the T-Birds had worked so hard to produce earlier in the second half. And when a last-second tipin by the Tigers' Fred Jones flipped through the nets, the Birds were forced into an overtime with three regulars seated on the bench with five fouls. Guards Jim Smith and Mike Martin and forward Craig Gillette had all been whisteld out of the contest.

In the extra stanza it was unheralded Lakewood reserve Harold Monson who did the primary damage. His cripple with just over 20 seconds elapsed shot the Jeffco team ahead at 67-65 and after Randy Stanley had dropped a layup to force another deadlock with 1:28 to go, Monson whipped the length of the floor to put the Tigers back on top just four seconds later. Five free throws in the closing seconds that came as a result of Wasson desperation tactics sealed the verdict for the home club.

Despite the heartbreaking defeat Wasson had standout performances from several, including 6-3 Charlie Steel who finally hit his stride after sub-par evenings earlier. Steel rang in 18 points and yanked away 15 rebounds in addition to turning in a tight defensive job on Lakewood ace Greg Smith.

For the Tigers Eric Spicklemier was the top point producer with 17, while Jones led a fierce Tiger effort on the backboards with 17 caroms. It was this rebound work combined with excellent free throw accuracy and the ability to cope with the Wasson press which turned the trick for Lakewood.

Wasson jumped to an early 4-0 lead as Steel and Stanley flipped in a couple of quick tips. But the Tigers began making hay at the free throw line and the Thunderbirds could not force any more daylight into the margin. Near the end of the first period Lakewood pulled into its first tie at 9-9 but Wasson used three straight charity shots to a 12-11 lead into the second quarter.

The T-Birds continued to nurse a slim advantage until a pair of free shots by Bob Watson gave the Tigers their first lead of the contest at 19-18 with 3:25 left in the half. Twice after that the home club forged ahead by four points but Wasson pulled back each time. A drive by Stanley brought them within 31-29 with 21 seconds to go but the hefty Wasson junior then missed on a one-and-one opportunity at the charity line after time elapsed and the T-Birds were forced to carry that two-point deficit to the dressing room.

The fist-tight action continued in the third quarter with Lakewood zipping to another four-point margin before the T-Birds rushed back on a bucket by Martin and two free throws by Steel to force 33-33 deadlock. Another bucket by Martin with 4:21 to go in the period gave Wasson its first lead of the half at 37-35 and near the end of the stanza the Birds finally began to force some daylight into the margin.

By early in the fourth quarter the Thunderbirds had zoomed to a nine-point margin at 52-43 but it began to slip away as Lakewood again went to work at the free throw line. The Birds were still five points in front at 64-59 with 1:31 to go but three misses at the charity line gave the Tigers the opening they needed. Lakewood had closed to 65-63 when Spicklemeir was fouled with two seconds left. He missed the shot but Jones was there to tip it through at the buzzer and force the Thunderbirds into the ill-fated overtime.

Pirates Pull Stunning Win Over Irish, 61-50

By DICK FOSTER

Whether Dan Wright's St. Mary's Pirates confused the Pueblo Catholic Shamrocks into panic with their pressing defensive tactics, or the Steel City team just had a bad bad night is undecided. But the Pirates easily cruised over a ragged Irish five 61-50, in a Saturday match at St. Mary's.

St. Mary's did what they have been doing so far this season —pressed. The Shamrocks were plagued by bad shooting, constant floor mistakes, and mass confusion all night, fell after a game first quarter.

Tom McCarthy paced his Pirates with 19 points in the scoring column, while Sam Zavatti and John Van Horn each hit 10. Van Horn, along with Tom Socha, turned in a good performance on the rebound side.

The Shamrock's small guard, John Ottino, shot 15 points, and forwards Jim Reilly and Charles McGee sank 10 and 12 points respectively. The Pueblo trio also had the major portion of Irish rebounds, but the boards were controlled by St. Mary's, who played another of their "run-run" contests.

Pueblo Catholic managed to stay with the Pirates in the opening period. They fell behind early, as the Pirate press made the gym floor messy for the Shamrocks. Managing to regroup behind Ottino in the late first frame, through, the visitors edged ahead and then settled for a tie in that quarter, 13-13.

John Van Horn came to life in the second quarter, and so did McCarthy, and so did the Pirates. Van Horn pumped in six, McCarthy eight, and the total St. Mary's output was 22. It put the Pirates in front 35-27.

After St. Mary's ran up a 22 point second quarter and an eight point bulge, they let down a little. Wright used his reserves in a considerable portion of the final quarter but in the second half, the Bucs still picked up three points on the Irish.

Pueblo began to rally somewhat on the boards and in ball control in the third period, but their cold shooting punctured any inflation of hopes. St. Mary's got only two rebounds in the third quarter, but Pueblo hit just five shots from the field. McCarthy at that time nailed another six points for St. Mary's.

The teams battled to an 11-11 standoff in the fourth quarter point-making. The Shamrock's Ottino and Reilly fouled out as time got scarce and Buc reserves carried the Pirate lead to the horn.

Kansas Nets Win Over Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Three field goals by Del Lewis in the overtime gave Kansas a 63-61 victory over Maryland Saturday night as the Jayhawks staged a counter rally to win their fourth basketball game in seven starts.

Kansas had come from four points behind with 4:22 left in the regulation game, Jim Gough's two free shots with four seconds to go tying the game at 54-all.

Lewis, who topped the visitors with 20 points, gave his team a 56-54 lead with a 15-foot jumper after 1:09 of the overtime and hit again from the corner 40 seconds later.

Maryland narrowed the gap to a point on a field goal by Neil Brayton and Jay McMillen's free toss but the Jayhawks sewed it up when Al Lopes and Lewis made good on both chances of one-and-one situations.

Gary Ward, Maryland's leading scorer, paced both teams with 26 points but missed from the foul line for only the fifth time this year on a one-and-one situation which would have tied the score with 16 seconds left in the extra period.

It was Maryland's fourth defeat in seven games, its third by two points. The other two came in an extra period and by one point.

Tall Childs Lead Golden Quintet Over Air Academy Kadets, 94-72

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Six-foot-seven Brian Childs turned a 39-point performance as Golden's Demons outscored and outboarded Air Academy High, 94-72, Saturday night in the Kadet gymnasium.

Foul trouble and a lack of consistency from the field sent the Kadets down to their fifth loss in six outings. But, as coach John Deiventhal said following the game, "We learn a lot playing this games, even though we lose. It should help us in league play.

If playing Golden helped AAH learn anything, it was that a 6-7 center who pivots either way and shoots free throws with maddening accuracy will murder a team which can't field a player over 6-2.

Childs almost dominated the game completely until he was taken out in the fourth quarter. He pulled off 19 rebounds and canned 13 of 18 free throws, most in the last half as the Demons fed the big guy constantly for the long lead.

The Kadets led as late as the middle of the second quarter as Tony Blanchard and Mark Baker battered the Demons with 15-footers and free shots. The last time AAH led was at 4:37 of the second stanza after Baker scored a pair of free shots to pull ahead, 26-25. But Childs came back with a lay-in and the Demons ran the count to 40-31 at halftime.

After intermission, Childs added his team's first eight points and Golden took a 48-37 lead to sack the contest. The Big Blue battled all the way but the points sandwiched around halftime made the difference Golden needed.

Bert Spear, long-range bombing guard for the Kadets, led AAH with 16 points, but fired in only seven of 23 from the field. Randy Green added 14 points and Baker chipped in with 13.

Don Anderson, leader in Golden's usually-accurate fast break attack, scored 19 points and guard Darrell Wood added 17.

The Kadets fell into foul trouble and presented Golden with 33 attempts at the charity line. The Demons sank 24 of those. But AAH was no slouch at the free stripe itself. The Kadets made nine of 11 in the first half and finished with 18 of 25.

But it was at field goal firing that AAH failed to come through as needed. They managed only 27 field goals, although throwing up 83 shots, a 32.5 percentage.

Meanwhile, Golden sank 35 of 68 for better than 51 per cent, although many were layups and short bank shots.

St. John's Nips Notre Dame

NEW YORK (AP) — Seventh-ranked St. John's won its fourth game in five starts Saturday night, cooling off high-scoring Notre Dame 76-72.

The loss was the second straight on the road for the Irish after four straight victories at home. Notre Dame went into the game with a game average of 100.8 points, second highest in the nation.

St. John's went ahead to stay with 8½ minutes left in the first half on Brian Hill's field goal. That made the score 29-28.

Run-Gun Rams Stop Bonnies

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP)—Fast-breaking Colorado State University overcame St. Bonaventure's second - half "blitz" Saturday night to hang on for an 86-81 basketball victory over the Brown Indians, winners of their first five games.

The game was the first of a War Memorial Auditorum doubleheader, which featured Canisius and Georgetown in the nightcap.

Colorado State, paced by 6-7 Sonny Bustion and 5-11 Tom Vidakovich, led from the outset and by halftime had built a 49-34 edge. But, when the Westerners had reached 63 points, the Bonnies employed what football fans would call a blitz and stifled the visitors' attack.

Little by little, with 5-8 John Riley and 6-8 Paul Stappenbeck in the driver's seat, the Bonnies whittled Colorado's lead until, with less than three minutes to play, Colorado was ahead by only two points.

Colorado, aided by five free throws, managed to stay ahead and boost its lead five points for the victory.

Bustion, whose height enabled him to click under the baskets, topped the scoring with 27 points. It was the two-handed shot of Vidakovich, however, that thrilled the crowd. He scored on eight of 14 shots from the field and with six free throws, netted a total of 22 points. Paul Stappenbeck, with 23, was high for the previously unbeaten Bonnies.

Colorado now has won five games and lost two.

Wildcats Overpower Salida Five

PUEBLO — Pueblo Central's South Central League Champions last year, had to stretch Saturday night before downing a game Salida team, 69-61 here. Central was paced by Bill Snider and Dan Kochevar who went for 20 points apiece.

Len Bustos and Pat Woods and John Lantz were all hot shooters for the Salida team. Bustos shot 10 points, Lantz 11, and Woods 17.

Central's starting five bore the brunt of chores in their checking of Salida. In fact, no one else scored, and only two others did much of anything, in fouling the Salida team.

Salida's Spartans used all but two men, and all broke into the scoring column.

Royals Post Win Over N. Y., 133-105

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Royals exploded for a 50-21 final quarter, starting the spree with a 16-in-a-row burst, and beat the New York Knicks 133-105 in a National Basketball Association game Saturday night.

With less than 10 minutes remaining, the Knicks led 90-89. Oscar Robertson, high for the Royals with 30 points before being withdrawn from action with the rest of the Cincinnati starters in the final four minutes, started the runaway with a three-pointer.

Rookie Jim Barnes' foul shot after the royals scored their 16 straight to reach a 105-90 lead with six minutes left, interrupted the Royals who then scored another 11 in a row to reach 116-92.

The Knicks, led by Bob Boozer's 19 points, were ahead at halftime, 57-50, and led 73-62 in the third period.

Bears Sign Dick Gordon As Draft Pick

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Gordon, all-Big Ten halfback from Michigan State, was signed Saturday as the seventh draft pick of the Chicago Bears of the National football League.

The 185-pound Gordon, from Cincinnati, was Big Ten rushing runner-up behind fullback Jim Grabowski of Illinois last season. Gordon carried 81 times for 571 yards and a 7-yard average. He also returned nine kickoffs for 201 yards and a 22.3 average.

"Gordon is an outstanding prospect for offensive or defensive assignments," Bear owner-coach George Halas said. Gordon was not drafted in the American Football League.

Before shifting to offense this year, Gordon was rated a fine defensive back. He is credited with a 9.6 clocking in the 100-yard dash.

The Bears now have signed four of their top ten 1964 draft choices, including (No. 1) linebacker Dick Butkus of Illinois, (No. 2) halfback Gale Sayers of Kansas, and (No. 10) tackle Dennis Murphy of Florida.

Blue Devils Roll Past Virginia

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — Duke's sixth-ranked Blue Devils overcame their own mistakes with a 13-5 burst midway the second half Saturday night and rolled to a 104-91 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Virginia behind the 30-point scoring of Bob Verga.

The Blue Devils held a 46-45 advantage. The Cavaliers, who Mac Caldwell, went down to, their fourth straight defeat after two opening triumphs.

Duke, 3-0 in the ACC and 5-1 over-all, opened the second half with four quick points, but Virginia narrowed the deficit to 60-59 on baskets by Caldwell and Connelly.

After Duke built up a 70-61 lead, the Cavaliers cut it to 74-69 with 9:12 left. Vacendak scored four points in 17 seconds, Ron Herbster added a free throw and the Blue Devils never led by less than seven points again.

CROWLEY COUNTY The visiting Fowler cagers exploded in the second half to pull out a 60-49 non-league victory here Saturday night over Crowley County.

Hull Launches Hawks' Key Win

MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Hull continued his torrid pace Saturday night, scoring two goals in Chicago's 6-3 triumph over first-place Montreal in the National Hockey League.

The Black Hawks' victory helped create a three-way tie for second place. Deadlocked one point behind the Canadians are Chicago, idle Detroit and the Toronto Maple Leafs, who defeated New York 6-3.

Both of Hull's scores came after Montreal had slashed Chicago's lead to 4-3 with two goals in the third period. Hull now has tallied four goals in the last two games, giving him 27 in 27 games.

The league record for goals is 50. NHL teams play 70 games, leaving Hull 43 games in which to score 24 goals for a record.

The league's leading scorer fired the puck past goalie Charlie Hodge at 11:31 of the third period, then came back with a tally at 17:42. Hull earlier had two assists.

Ken Wharram's two goals in three-goal second period sparked Chicago to a 4-1 lead, but the Canadiens got to goalie Dennis Dejordy for a pair of goals in the first half of the final period.

Dave Balon came through at 6:52 for Montreal, and slightly more than three minutes later, at 10:13, Claude LaRose made the score 4-3. Hull then took over.

The Canadiens took a 1-0 lead in the first period on Bobby Rousseau's goal at 7:55. Keith McCreary, playing in only his second NHL contest, assisted along with Jean Beliveair on the goal.

Dennis Hull, Bobby's young brother, tied the game at 13:12 with Eric Nesterenko assisting.

Wharram put the Hawks ahead to stay with goals at the 1:00 and 10:07 marks of the second period. Stan Mikita assisted on both scores while Hull helped on the second. Hull also assisted on Phil Esposito's tally at 16:14.

DeJordy wound up with 35 saves while Hodge had 17.

Leafs Bombard New York, 6-3

TORONTO (AP) — Frank Mahovlich scored the go-ahead goal early in the second period and the Toronto Maple Leafs poured in three more in the final session for a 6-3 National Hockey League runaway over New York Saturday night.

Toronto's first victory of the season over the fifth-place Rangers pulled the Leafs into a three-way tie for second place in the NHL standings. Toronto, Detroit and Chicago — which defeated Montreal 6-3 in Saturday's other game — each trail the league-leading Canadiens by a single point.

The loss ran New York's winless string to four games. In six previous meetings with the Stanley Cup champion Leafs this season the Rangers had won three and tied three.

Mahovlich, recently recovered from a mystery ailment that sidelined him for more than a month, broke a 2-2 deadlock at 4:07 of the middle period. It was the Toronto star's eighth goal of the season.

Dave Keon had tied the score with 25 seconds one in the period while New York was shorthanded. Ranger defenseman Arnie Brown was serving a penalty for slashing when Keon tipped Kent Douglas' long shot past goalie Jacques Plante. Andy Bathgate, an ex-Ranger, drew an assist on the goal, Keon's seventh.

Bathgate also had a hand in Mahovlich's goal and helped set up a third-period score by Toronto captain George Armstrong.

Armstrong connected after defensemen Tim Horton and Carl Brewer boosted the Leafs' margin to 5-2 with a pair of goals less than a minute apart in the final period.

Bob Pulford scored Toronto's first goal at 15:55 of the opening period after Jean Ratelle had given New York an early 1-0 edge. Camille Henry's 12th goal, 1½ minutes after Pulford's ninth, put the Rangers ahead for the second — and last — time.

Vic Hadfield completed the New York scoring midway through the finale.

Plante made 28 saves for the Rangers, who have given up six or more goals in four of their last five starts. Toronto goalie Johnny Bower was credited with 24 stops.

Jones came off the bench with the Bullets trailing 67-63 in the third period. He scored one basket and fed assists on other baskets by Baily Howell and Gus Johnson as Baltimore ran off 12 straight points and never trailed afterward.

The game was marred frequently by turnovers, lost balls, poor shooting and fouling.

Royals Post Win Over N. Y., 133-105

NEW YORK (AP) — The Cincinnati Royals exploded for a 50-21 final quarter, starting the spree with a 16-in-a-row burst, and beat the New York Knicks 133-105 in a National Basketball Association game Saturday night.

The 50 points by the Royals in the last period were two short of the NBA record of 52 in one period, set by the Boston Celtics against Minneapolis in 1959.

With less than 10 minutes remaining, the Knicks led 90-89. Oscar Robertson, high for the Royals with 30 points before being withdrawn from action with the rest of the Cincinnati starters in the final four minutes, started the runaway with a three-pointer.

Rookie Jim Barnes' foul shot after the royals scored their 16 straight to reach a 105-90 lead with six minutes left, interrupted the Royals who then scored another 11 in a row to reach 116-92.

The Knicks, led by Bob Boozer's 19 points, were ahead at halftime, 57-50, and led 73-62 in the third period.

Lakers Lose Russo For Six Weeks

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rudy La Russo, 27-year-old forward for the Los Angeles Lakers, will be out of action for six to eight weeks with a fractured vertebra suffered in a National Basketball Association game Friday night against the Cincinnati Royals in Cincinnati.

Dr. Robert Kerlan said La Russo will have to wear a cast, but will not be hospitalized.

Bears Sign Dick Gordon As Draft Pick

CHICAGO (AP) — Dick Gordon, all-Big Ten halfback from Michigan State, was signed Saturday as the seventh draft pick of the Chicago Bears of the National football League.

The 185-pound Gordon, from Cincinnati, was Big Ten rushing runner-up behind fullback Jim Grabowski of Illinois last season. Gordon carried 81 times for 571 yards and a 7-yard average. He also returned nine kickoffs for 201 yards and a 22.3 average.

"Gordon is an outstanding prospect for offensive or defensive assignments," Bear owner-coach George Halas said. Gordon was not drafted in the American Football League.

Before shifting to offense this year, Gordon was rated a fine defensive back. He is credited with a 9.6 clocking in the 100-yard dash.

The Bears now have signed four of their top ten 1964 draft choices, including (No. 1) linebacker Dick Butkus of Illinois, (No. 2) halfback Gale Sayers of Kansas, and (No. 10) tackle Dennis Murphy of Florida.

Blue Devils Roll Past Virginia

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) — Duke's sixth-ranked Blue Devils overcame their own mistakes with a 13-5 burst midway the second half Saturday night and rolled to a 104-91 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Virginia behind the 30-point scoring of Bob Verga.

The Blue Devils held a 46-45 advantage. The Cavaliers, who Mac Caldwell, went down to, their fourth straight defeat after two opening triumphs.

Steve Vacendak gave Verga plenty of scoring help with 25 points and Jack Marin contributed 24. Jim Connelly scored 19 for the Cavaliers, now 1-2 in ACC play.

Duke, 3-0 in the ACC and 5-1 over-all, opened the second half with four quick points, but Virginia narrowed the deficit to 60-59 on baskets by Caldwell and Connelly.

After Duke built up a 70-61 lead, the Cavaliers cut it to 74-69 with 9:12 left. Vacendak scored four points in 17 seconds, Ron Herbster added a free throw and the Blue Devils never led by less than seven points again.

Fowler Tops Crowley County

CROWLEY COUNTY The visiting Fowler cagers exploded in the second half to pull out a 60-49 non-league victory here Saturday night over Crowley County.

Hull Launches Hawks' Key Win

MONTREAL (AP) — Bobby Hull continued his torrid pace Saturday night, scoring two goals in Chicago's 6-3 triumph over first-place Montreal in the National Hockey League.

The Black Hawks' victory helped create a three-way tie for second place. Deadlocked one point behind the Canadians are Chicago, idle Detroit and the Toronto Maple Leafs, who defeated New York 6-3.

Both of Hull's scores came after Montreal had slashed Chicago's lead to 4-3 with two goals in the third period. Hull now has tallied four goals in the last two games, giving him 27 in 27 games.

The league record for goals is 50. NHL teams play 70 games, leaving Hull 43 games in which to score 24 goals for a record.

The league's leading scorer fired the puck past goalie Charlie Hodge at 11:31 of the third period, then came back with a tally at 17:42. Hull earlier had two assists.

Ken Wharram's two goals in three-goal second period sparked Chicago to a 4-1 lead, but the Canadiens got to goalie Dennis Dejordy for a pair of goals in the first half of the final period.

Dave Balon came through at 6:52 for Montreal, and slightly more than three minutes later, at 10:13, Claude LaRose made the score 4-3. Hull then took over.

The Canadiens took a 1-0 lead in the first period on Bobby Rousseau's goal at 7:55. Keith McCreary, playing in only his second NHL contest, assisted along with Jean Beliveair on the goal.

Dennis Hull, Bobby's young brother, tied the game at 13:12 with Eric Nesterenko assisting.

Wharram put the Hawks ahead to stay with goals at the 1:00 and 10:07 marks of the second period. Stan Mikita assisted on both scores while Hull helped on the second. Hull also assisted on Phil Esposito's tally at 16:14.

DeJordy wound up with 35 saves while Hodge had 17.

Leafs Bombard New York, 6-3

TORONTO (AP) — Frank Mahovlich scored the go-ahead goal early in the second period and the Toronto Maple Leafs poured in three more in the final session for a 6-3 National Hockey League runaway over New York Saturday night.

Toronto's first victory of the season over the fifth-place Rangers pulled the Leafs into a three-way tie for second place in the NHL standings. Toronto, Detroit and Chicago — which defeated Montreal 6-3 in Saturday's other game — each trail the league-leading Canadiens by a single point.

The loss ran New York's winless string to four games. In six previous meetings with the Stanley Cup champion Leafs this season the Rangers had won three and tied three.

Mahovlich, recently recovered from a mystery ailment that sidelined him for more than a month, broke a 2-2 deadlock at 4:07 of the middle period. It was the Toronto star's eighth goal of the season.

Dave Keon had tied the score with 25 seconds one in the period while New York was shorthanded. Ranger defenseman Arnie Brown was serving a penalty for slashing when Keon tipped Kent Douglas' long shot past goalie Jacques Plante. Andy Bathgate, an ex-Ranger, drew an assist on the goal, Keon's seventh.

Bathgate also had a hand in Mahovlich's goal and helped set up a third-period score by Toronto captain George Armstrong.

Armstrong connected after defensemen Tim Horton and Carl Brewer boosted the Leafs' margin to 5-2 with a pair of goals less than a minute apart in the final period.

Bob Pulford scored Toronto's first goal at 15:55 of the opening period after Jean Ratelle had given New York an early 1-0 edge. Camille Henry's 12th goal, 1½ minutes after Pulford's ninth, put the Rangers ahead for the second — and last — time.

Vic Hadfield completed the New York scoring midway through the finale.

Plante made 28 saves for the Rangers, who have given up six or more goals in four of their last five starts. Toronto goalie Johnny Bower was credited with 24 stops.

Bullets Fire Past Pistons in NBA Contest

BALTIMORE (AP) — Rookie Wally Jones sparked a Baltimore rally late in the third period Saturday night to lead the Bullets to a 104-99 National Basketball Association victory over Detroit.

Walter Bellamy was the only consistent scorer in a sloppily played game. He scored 33 points.

Detroit's top point-maker, Reggie Harding, scored only 16.

Jones came off the bench with the Bullets trailing 67-63 in the third period. He scored one basket and fed assists on other baskets by Baily Howell and Gus Johnson as Baltimore ran off 12 straight points and never trailed afterward.

The game was marred frequently by turnovers, lost balls, poor shooting and fouling.

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Fred Hetzel scored 11 of 28 points in the first half to lead Davidson's basketball team to an 87-64 rout of Ohio State Saturday night.

The 6-8 senior had kept the Wildcats in contention by scoring all of their nine points in the games first seven minutes. The score was tied six times in the early going before Davidson went ahead to stay 21-20 with just over nine minutes left in the first half.

Hetzel wound up the first half with 16 points and got 12-point help, all in the last 12 minutes, from Dick Snyder, who staked Davidson to a 39-29 lead at the intermission.

Hetzel, who hit on 12 of 17 shots and snared 15 rebounds, broke the game open quickly with his one-man show in the opening minutes of the second half.

The Buckeyes, who matched Davidson's 4-1 record going into in the first five minutes of the the game, were outscored 13-1 second and dropped completely out of contention.

Grid Bowls Parade

EDITORS: This is the second in a series of dispatches sizing up college football's bowl participants.

By DAVE HASKELL
United Press International

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — Sugar Bowl viewers on New Year's Day will see one of college football's wildest running backfields when Syracuse tackles Louisiana State University in New Orleans.

Halfback Floyd Little, fullback Jim Nance, and quarterback Walley Mahle head the lineup that carried Syracuse to the top nationally this season in ground gaining, and it is this type of grinding attack that Syracuse is expected to use as compared to LSU's more rounded offense.

Little and Nance, perhaps the best running combo in college football since Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard played for Army 20 years ago, garnered 1,779 of Syracuse's 2,510 yards rushing this year, the most productive two-man total in Orange history.

Head Coach Ben Schwartzwalder knows that LSU will be primed to stop Little and Nance, and this creates a problem.

Attack Through Air

"If we can't move on the ground, we'll just have go go in the air," said Schwartzwalder, in his 16th season at the Orange helm.

Syracuse has not been a passing team in years, and Mahle, a senior from Waterford, Pa., who has been effective as a runner in his three years as starting quarterback, is about as accurate in the air as a bent arrow, although he does have his good days. Mahle led the team in rushing last year and this season ranked third behind Nance and Little.

If Syracuse's ground game stalls, and Schwartzwalder admits this is a possibility against LSU, "We'll probably have to throw more on them."

This is where second-string quarterback Rich King of Ransomville, N. Y., comes in, just as he has done effectively, on most occasions all year.

King Is Passer

King is the passer, but his services generally have not been required because of the success of the Orange ground game.

Schwartzwalder may solve the problem by moving Mahle to one of the halfback slots to take advantage of his running ability while at the same time playing King for most of the game at quarterback.

The bulk of the work, however, will still be up to Little and Nance. Little, a sophomore from New Haven, Conn., ("He excites even me when he runs": Schwartzwalder) eclipsed the Syracuse record for yards

'Lost Infantry' In Sun Bowl

By JIM IRWIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Georgia and Texas Tech, which play football like a lost infantry patrol — grinding it out with little aerial help — meet here Saturday in the Sun Bowl.

The nationally televised game will be the 30th renewal of the third oldest post-season football game. About 32,000 are expected in the newly expanded bowl carved into the desert hills rock.

Each club will bring 6-3-1 records into the Sun Bowl and quite similar defensive records — but the similarity ends there.

The Texas Tech offense is led by All-America halfback Donnie Anderson,, a 207-pound junior from the tiny West Texas county seat of Stinnett.

He led the Southwest Conference in rushing with 966 yards, was second in kickoff returns with 320 yards, averaged 38.2 yards punting for fourth and caught 32 passes for 396 yards and four touchdowns, also fourth in the league. He also carried the ball 211 times — more than twice as often as any other Tech back.

The Red Raiders passed conservatively, with quarterback Tom Wilson hitting 55 per cent of his 119 tosses for 777 yards this season and five touchdowns — four to Anderson.

The rest of the Tech tandem-Johnny Agan at the other halfback spot and a converted high T backfield has 182-pound junior school guard, 210-pound Jim Zanios, at fullback.

Coach J. T. King's so-called tandem-T offense has one halfback lined up behind the fullback and the other one set to either side of the fullback, in motion, flanked or in the slot.

Georgia's straight-T offense is somewhat less imaginative and only averaged 215 yards a game, with junior quarterback Preston Ridlehuber the leading ground gainer with a paltry 368 yards.

The slog-it-out philosophy of Georgia is exemplified by the fact its longest run from scrimmage this season was a 34-yard dash by No. 2 signal caller Lynn Hughes.

The Bulldogs just don5t pass except in dire emergency.

With 245-pound All-America tackle Jim Wilson to block for Coach Vince Dolley's cloud-of-dust drives they don't need to pass.

With their completion average they shouldn't.

Georgia hit on just 38 per cent of its attempts, completing 31 of 82 for just 582 yards and but one touchdown. Ridlehuger threw just 28 times this year, completed 14 for just 174 and had four intercepted.

Dooley's club made it into a bowl game in his first season a head coach and finished second in the Southeastern Conference race.

This will be Georgia's ninth bowl appearance and the first since a 14-0 Orange Bowl victory against Missouri in 1960. The Bulldogs are 5-2-1 in post-season

Tech is making its ninth bowl appearance and the sixth in the Sun Bowl where it has won just once. Its last bowl appearance was in a 21-14 loss to Wyoming in 1956.

The teams have never met.

An additional 20,000 seats were installed in the Sun Bowl this week in anticipation of an overflow crowd.

Colts Experiment With Gloves

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts are experimenting with surgical gloves for their ball handlers.

Cold weather in Cleveland, where the Browns and Colt meet for the National Football League championship Dec. 27, is behind the idea.

The only problem is, as any surgeon would know, that once a player puts them on he has to keep them on. It would be too difficult and time-consuming to keep putting them on and taking them off.

Whether the skin-tight rubber gloves would successfully combat finger-numbing cold remains to be seen. But the fact that it was tried this week shows that Colt Coach Don Shula is leaving nothing undone to prepare for the title game.

"If it is so cold that we can't do anything with our bare hands," he said, "we will have nothing to lose using gloves."

Flanker Jimmy Orr, one of quarterback John Unitas' favorite passing targets, said "They aren't as good as the bare warm hand but are better than the bare cold hand—anything is."

Gary Cuozzo, second-string quarterback, said he and Unitas found the gloves satisfactory "if the weather is such that we need something to protect us from the cold."

Other players dissented.

"My hands got colder with them on than off," said center Dick Szymanski.

"My hands sweated too much, they're not for me," said Jim Welch of the defensive backfield.

The Colt linemen also tried knitted gloves. The consensus was that they were all right for practice but not for a game.

The Colts worked out briefly Saturday with temperatures in the 20s. It was the last drill until Tuesday, when Shula will begin regular pre-game work.

College Football Oddities

By BEN OLAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

They flipped over John McClusky's nonchalant flip and the Harvard quarterback's premature gesture of success was selected today the college football oddity-of-the-year in the annual Associated Press poll.

The McClusky incident in Harvard's opening game against Massachusetts Sept. 26 was named on eight ballots in the voting by 53 writers and broadcasters.

There was scattered support for Dick Kenney, Michigan State's barefoot kicker, and kicking specialist Bob Etter of Georgia, who picked up a bad snap from center on a field goal situation and scored the winning touchdown against Florida.

However, McClusky's move drew more than twice the votes collected by any other.

It happened this way:

McClusky, making his varsity debut had scampered 82 yards for one of the touchdowns that gave his team a 14-0 lead.

However, it was 14-14 in the fourth quarter. The ball was on the Massachusetts' two yard line . . . fourth down and one to go for a first down.

Etter, a 150-pound sophomore sent in to try for a field goal picked up a bad pass from center and streaked in for the first touchdown of his college career that gave Georgia a 14-7 victory over the Gators Nov. 7.

Jerry Rhome Leads Win For Huricanes Over Rebs

By MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Jerry Rhome, Tulsa's pass wizard, ignored a series of hard knocks administered by a tough Mississippi defense while passing and running his Hurricanes to a 14-7 victory Saturday over the favored Rebels in the sixth Bluebonnet Bowl football game.

Mississippi was an 11-point favorite, but Tulsa combined Rhome's magic with a rough defense of its own to upset the Southeastern Conference bowl veteran Rebels in 40-degree weather before a crowd of 50,000.

Except for a 57-yard second period drive that gave Mississippi a 7-0 lead, the Hurricane defense permitted the Rebels to move inside the Tulsa 41 only once.

Mississippi enjoyed the lead less than five minutes, however, as Rhome, using only one pass, quickly directed a 72-yard surge to tie the score and then turned to long passes for the 74-yard go-ahead touchdown drive in the third period.

Rhome tied the score at 7-7 by plunging over from the one on fourth down after he had taken advantage of a perfect block by Brent Roberts to break through the middle for a 23-yard run to the Rebel five.

Rhome's go-ahead pass was a 35-yarder to Eddie Fisher four plays after he had hit Bob Daugherty with a 37-yarder at the Rebel 33.

Jim Weatherly scored the Mississippi touchdown from the one to climax a drive featuring Weatherly's 30-yard pass to Frank Kinard to the Tulsa 24.

Rhome's sparkling performance won him a unanimous vote of sports writers as the game's most out standing back, the first unanimous ballot for the honor in the bowl's history. He completed 22 of 36 tosses for 252 yards and had only one interception.

The 252-yard total was just three yards short of the Bluebonnet record set by Baylor's Don Trull last year.

The outstanding lineman award went to Willie Townes, 263-pound Tulsa tackle.

Rhome was slammed to the ground by Rebel defenders several times. One tackle late in the second period left him stretched out on the turf for several minutes, but he did not leave the game.

The Tulsa quarterback, a top draft choice of both the professional Houston Oilers and the Dallas Cowboys, carried the ball 22 times for a net gain of 29 yards.

Rhome, holder of 17 NCAA records, also claimed two other Bluebonnet records with a total offense of 281 and by handling the ball on 58 pass and run plays.

Holy Cross Names Grid Coach

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Holy Cross College named freshman Coach Melvin G. Massucco Saturday to succeed Dr. Eddie Anderson as varsity football coach.

Massucco, a former Holy Cross player who coached the freshmen for the past 10 years, signed a three-year contract. Salary terms were not disclosed.

Anderson retired at the end of last season after 39 years as a head football coach, 21 of them at Holy Cross.

A special advisory committee screened applicants for three months before choosing a member of Anderson's staff to succeed him.

Massucco, 39, a native of Arlington, Mass., was graduated from Holy Cross in 1952.

He played right halfback and set two all-time school rushing records. His record of 1,598 yards gained rushing during his career at Holy Cross still stands. His single-season record of 723 yards was broken last season by quarterback Jack Lentz, who gained 802 yards rushing.

After graduating from Holy Cross, Massucco spent two years at the University of Massachusetts as freshman football coach, varsity hockey coach and freshman baseball coach.

He returned to Holy Cross in 1954 and became the first Anderson-coached player to return to the school as a member of the coaching staff.

Explosive Utah Bombards West Virginia, 32 6

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Ron Coleman, a speedy halfback with more moves than a chess master, led explosive Utah through West Virginia's porous defenses for a 32-6 victory Saturday in college football's first indoor bowl game, the sixth annual Liberty Bowl inside spacious Convention Hall.

The 5-foot-8, 172-pound senior from San Francisco bolted 53 yards on a brilliant individual effort to give Utah a 19-0 half-time lead. He carried 15 times for 154 yards, picking his holes smartly behind crisp blocking.

With the offensive line opening monstrous gaps in West Virginia's forward wall and the always dry field providing sure footing for Coleman, his substitute, Andy Ireland, and fullback Allen Jacobs, Utah lost little time establishing its superiority.

Of the six times Utah had the ball in the first half, Coach Ray Nagel's team drove 45 and 77 yards for touchdowns and Roy Jefferson kicked field goals of 29 and 32 yards. One march faltered on the West Virginia one-yard line and an errant latral killed the other.

A crowd of 6,059 watched the nationally televised game in a comfortable 60-degree atmosphere. The temperature outside the mommoth oceanfront auditorium was 31.

Not only did Utah's offensive line push the Mountaineers all over the field, but its heralded defense throttled West Virginia quarterback Allen McCune and rarely permitted the Southern Conference champs to mount an attack.

The Redskins, co-champions of the Western Athletic Conference wasted little time in settling matters. A 50-yard drive the first time they had the ball ended in Jefferson's first field goal and a 16-point second period wrapped it up.

By then Utah had its 19-1 bulege, West Virginia had managed only two first downs, both on the opening series of plays after the kickoff.

Utah scored its first touchdown midway through the second period, after fielding a punt on the Mountaineer 45. From the 28, Coleman galloped 12 yards around his own right end.

Jacobs smashed to the 11 and on a keeper, quarterback Ernest (Pokey) Allen faked to Coleman and barreled the remaining distance to the end zone.

West Virginia was in more trouble on the first play after the ensuing kickoff. John Piscorik's fumble was recovered by Utah's Rudy Reschke on the Mountaineer 31.

Jefferson kicked his second field goal, this time from the 25. It was listed as a 32-yarder since the end zones were just a shade over seven yards deep instead of the usual 10.

That was followed by Coleman's great run the next time the Utes had the ball. From his own 47, Coleman shot through the line, broke away from West Virginia's Gordon Lambert on the Mountaineer 42 and outsprinted everyone to the right corner of the end zone.

Ireland, a 6-foot junior, replaced Coleman late in the third period. On the first play he ripped off a 47-yard touchdown outrunning the West Virginia defense down the left sideline.

The Mountaineers answered back with their only score of the game. It climaxed a 67-yard drive, with the touchdown coming on a six-yard pass from McCune to Milt Clegg. The big play of the march was a 19-yard pass from McCune to Clegg on a fourth-down-and-14 situation.

McCune, who set a West Virginia percentage record this season by completing 60 of 90 passes, was held to 13 of 28 by Utah's stiff defense. He gained 123 yards in the air but had four passes intercepted.

British Chap Claims He's a 'Gold Widower'

By JOHN FARROW
Associated Press Sports Writer

LONDON (AP) — You've heard most of the jokes about golf widows.

Now get ready for some new ones — about golf widowers.

Reason: That British divorce in mid-November for a husband who claimed his wife was spending too much time on the golf course.

He told the judge he had to cook his own breakfast and eat out for some other meals. The golf widower got his divorce.

A golfing official estimated that about 300,000 British women — most of them married — now play golf.

Take the case of Mrs. Joyce Shelmerdine who lives in the north of England in Manchester.

Often her husband comes home to find this note: "Casserole in the oven, potatoes to fry. I'm at club."

Mrs. Shelmerdine explained: "We bought an automatic cooker so I could put the food in the oven to be ready at a certain time. That made it much easier to play golf."

Her husband, a company director, commented: "I'm used to it. And I also understand it.

"I play golf myself so I don't feel neglected. Think of all the good conversation we can have."

Mrs. Judy Brown explained her philosophy this way: "I get up early, do all the housework — and then find time to go out for my own game of golf. I believe in working hard and playing hard."

Another woman golfer said she had decided on two good menus for the family on her golfing days — ham salad in the summer and steak casserole in the winter.

Mrs. Betty Lockhart from Cheshire came up with another thought.

"I play on Sunday afternoons," she said. "My husband plays on Sunday mornings. He leaves the car engine running on his return. And off I go to the golf course after leaving his meal on the table."

One golf widower who naturally asked not to be identified, mumbled: "Let 'er play. She can't cook anyway."

Grid Bowls Parade

EDITORS: This is the second in a series of dispatches sizing up college football's bowl participants.

By DAVE HASKELL
United Press International

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UPI) — Sugar Bowl viewers on New Year's Day will see one of college football's wildest running backfields when Syracuse tackles Louisiana State University in New Orleans.

Halfback Floyd Little, fullback Jim Nance, and quarterback Walley Mahle head the lineup that carried Syracuse to the top nationally this season in ground gaining, and it is this type of grinding attack that Syracuse is expected to use as compared to LSU's more rounded offense.

Little and Nance, perhaps the best running combo in college football since Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard played for Army 20 years ago, garnered 1,779 of Syracuse's 2,510 yards rushing this year, the most productive two-man total in Orange history.

Head Coach Ben Schwartzwalder knows that LSU will be primed to stop Little and Nance, and this creates a problem.

Attack Through Air

"If we can't move on the ground, we'll just have go go in the air," said Schwartzwalder, in his 16th season at the Orange helm.

Syracuse has not been a passing team in years, and Mahle, a senior from Waterford, Pa., who has been effective as a runner in his three years as starting quarterback, is about as accurate in the air as a bent arrow, although he does have his good days. Mahle led the team in rushing last year and this season ranked third behind Nance and Little.

If Syracuse's ground game stalls, and Schwartzwalder admits this is a possibility against LSU, "We'll probably have to throw more on them."

This is where second-string quarterback Rich King of Ransomville, N. Y., comes in, just as he has done effectively, on most occasions all year.

King Is Passer

King is the passer, but his services generally have not been required because of the success of the Orange ground game.

Schwartzwalder may solve the problem by moving Mahle to one of the halfback slots to take advantage of his running ability while at the same time playing King for most of the game at quarterback.

The bulk of the work, however, will still be up to Little and Nance. Little, a sophomore from New Haven, Conn., ("He excites even me when he runs": Schwartzwalder) eclipsed the Syracuse record for yards

'Lost Infantry' In Sun Bowl

By JIM IRWIN
Associated Press Sports Writer

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Georgia and Texas Tech, which play football like a lost infantry patrol — grinding it out with little aerial help — meet here Saturday in the Sun Bowl.

The nationally televised game will be the 30th renewal of the third oldest post-season football game. About 32,000 are expected in the newly expanded bowl carved into the desert hills rock.

Each club will bring 6-3-1 records into the Sun Bowl and quite similar defensive records — but the similarity ends there.

The Texas Tech offense is led by All-America halfback Donnie Anderson,, a 207-pound junior from the tiny West Texas county seat of Stinnett.

He led the Southwest Conference in rushing with 966 yards, was second in kickoff returns with 320 yards, averaged 38.2 yards punting for fourth and caught 32 passes for 396 yards and four touchdowns, also fourth in the league. He also carried the ball 211 times — more than twice as often as any other Tech back.

The Red Raiders passed conservatively, with quarterback Tom Wilson hitting 55 per cent of his 119 tosses for 777 yards this season and five touchdowns — four to Anderson.

The rest of the Tech tandem-Johnny Agan at the other halfback spot and a converted high T backfield has 182-pound junior school guard, 210-pound Jim Zanios, at fullback.

Coach J. T. King's so-called tandem-T offense has one halfback lined up behind the fullback and the other one set to either side of the fullback, in motion, flanked or in the slot.

Georgia's straight-T offense is somewhat less imaginative and only averaged 215 yards a game, with junior quarterback Preston Ridlehuber the leading ground gainer with a paltry 368 yards.

The slog-it-out philosophy of Georgia is exemplified by the fact its longest run from scrimmage this season was a 34-yard dash by No. 2 signal caller Lynn Hughes.

The Bulldogs just don5t pass except in dire emergency.

With 245-pound All-America tackle Jim Wilson to block for Coach Vince Dolley's cloud-of-dust drives they don't need to pass.

With their completion average they shouldn't.

Georgia hit on just 38 per cent of its attempts, completing 31 of 82 for just 582 yards and but one touchdown. Ridlehuger threw just 28 times this year, completed 14 for just 174 and had four intercepted.

Dooley's club made it into a bowl game in his first season a head coach and finished second in the Southeastern Conference race.

This will be Georgia's ninth bowl appearance and the first since a 14-0 Orange Bowl victory against Missouri in 1960. The Bulldogs are 5-2-1 in post-season

Tech is making its ninth bowl appearance and the sixth in the Sun Bowl where it has won just once. Its last bowl appearance was in a 21-14 loss to Wyoming in 1956.

The teams have never met.

An additional 20,000 seats were installed in the Sun Bowl this week in anticipation of an overflow crowd.

Colts Experiment With Gloves

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts are experimenting with surgical gloves for their ball handlers.

Cold weather in Cleveland, where the Browns and Colt meet for the National Football League championship Dec. 27, is behind the idea.

The only problem is, as any surgeon would know, that once a player puts them on he has to keep them on. It would be too difficult and time-consuming to keep putting them on and taking them off.

Whether the skin-tight rubber gloves would successfully combat finger-numbing cold remains to be seen. But the fact that it was tried this week shows that Colt Coach Don Shula is leaving nothing undone to prepare for the title game.

"If it is so cold that we can't do anything with our bare hands," he said, "we will have nothing to lose using gloves."

Flanker Jimmy Orr, one of quarterback John Unitas' favorite passing targets, said "They aren't as good as the bare warm hand but are better than the bare cold hand—anything is."

Gary Cuozzo, second-string quarterback, said he and Unitas found the gloves satisfactory "if the weather is such that we need something to protect us from the cold."

Other players dissented.

"My hands got colder with them on than off," said center Dick Szymanski.

"My hands sweated too much, they're not for me," said Jim Welch of the defensive backfield.

The Colt linemen also tried knitted gloves. The consensus was that they were all right for practice but not for a game.

The Colts worked out briefly Saturday with temperatures in the 20s. It was the last drill until Tuesday, when Shula will begin regular pre-game work.

Jerry Rhome Leads Win For Huricanes Over Rebs

By MAX B. SKELTON
Associated Press Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — Jerry Rhome, Tulsa's pass wizard, ignored a series of hard knocks administered by a tough Mississippi defense while passing and running his Hurricanes to a 14-7 victory Saturday over the favored Rebels in the sixth Bluebonnet Bowl football game.

Mississippi was an 11-point favorite, but Tulsa combined Rhome's magic with a rough defense of its own to upset the Southeastern Conference bowl veteran Rebels in 40-degree weather before a crowd of 50,000.

Except for a 57-yard second period drive that gave Mississippi a 7-0 lead, the Hurricane defense permitted the Rebels to move inside the Tulsa 41 only once.

Mississippi enjoyed the lead less than five minutes, however, as Rhome, using only one pass, quickly directed a 72-yard surge to tie the score and then turned to long passes for the 74-yard go-ahead touchdown drive in the third period.

Rhome tied the score at 7-7 by plunging over from the one on fourth down after he had taken advantage of a perfect block by Brent Roberts to break through the middle for a 23-yard run to the Rebel five.

Rhome's go-ahead pass was a 35-yarder to Eddie Fisher four plays after he had hit Bob Daugherty with a 37-yarder at the Rebel 33.

Jim Weatherly scored the Mississippi touchdown from the one to climax a drive featuring Weatherly's 30-yard pass to Frank Kinard to the Tulsa 24.

Rhome's sparkling performance won him a unanimous vote of sports writers as the game's most out standing back, the first unanimous ballot for the honor in the bowl's history. He completed 22 of 36 tosses for 252 yards and had only one interception.

The 252-yard total was just three yards short of the Bluebonnet record set by Baylor's Don Trull last year.

The outstanding lineman award went to Willie Townes, 263-pound Tulsa tackle.

Rhome was slammed to the ground by Rebel defenders several times. One tackle late in the second period left him stretched out on the turf for several minutes, but he did not leave the game.

The Tulsa quarterback, a top draft choice of both the professional Houston Oilers and the Dallas Cowboys, carried the ball 22 times for a net gain of 29 yards.

Rhome, holder of 17 NCAA records, also claimed two other Bluebonnet records with a total offense of 281 and by handling the ball on 58 pass and run plays.

Holy Cross Names Grid Coach

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Holy Cross College named freshman Coach Melvin G. Massucco Saturday to succeed Dr. Eddie Anderson as varsity football coach.

Massucco, a former Holy Cross player who coached the freshmen for the past 10 years, signed a three-year contract. Salary terms were not disclosed.

Anderson retired at the end of last season after 39 years as a head football coach, 21 of them at Holy Cross.

A special advisory committee screened applicants for three months before choosing a member of Anderson's staff to succeed him.

Massucco, 39, a native of Arlington, Mass., was graduated from Holy Cross in 1952.

He played right halfback and set two all-time school rushing records. His record of 1,598 yards gained rushing during his career at Holy Cross still stands. His single-season record of 723 yards was broken last season by quarterback Jack Lentz, who gained 802 yards rushing.

After graduating from Holy Cross, Massucco spent two years at the University of Massachusetts as freshman football coach, varsity hockey coach and freshman baseball coach.

He returned to Holy Cross in 1954 and became the first Anderson-coached player to return to the school as a member of the coaching staff.

Not only did Utah's offensive line push the Mountaineers all over the field, but its heralded defense throttled West Virginia quarterback Allen McCune and rarely permitted the Southern Conference champs to mount an attack.

The Redskins, co-champions of the Western Athletic Conference wasted little time in settling matters. A 50-yard drive the first time they had the ball ended in Jefferson's first field goal and a 16-point second period wrapped it up.

By then Utah had its 19-1 bulege, West Virginia had managed only two first downs, both on the opening series of plays after the kickoff.

Utah scored its first touchdown midway through the second period, after fielding a punt on the Mountaineer 45. From the 28, Coleman galloped 12 yards around his own right end.

Jacobs smashed to the 11 and on a keeper, quarterback Ernest (Pokey) Allen faked to Coleman and barreled the remaining distance to the end zone.

West Virginia was in more trouble on the first play after the ensuing kickoff. John Piscorik's fumble was recovered by Utah's Rudy Reschke on the Mountaineer 31.

Jefferson kicked his second field goal, this time from the 25. It was listed as a 32-yarder since the end zones were just a shade over seven yards deep instead of the usual 10.

That was followed by Coleman's great run the next time the Utes had the ball. From his own 47, Coleman shot through the line, broke away from West Virginia's Gordon Lambert on the Mountaineer 42 and outsprinted everyone to the right corner of the end zone.

Ireland, a 6-foot junior, replaced Coleman late in the third period. On the first play he ripped off a 47-yard touchdown outrunning the West Virginia defense down the left sideline.

The Mountaineers answered back with their only score of the game. It climaxed a 67-yard drive, with the touchdown coming on a six-yard pass from McCune to Milt Clegg. The big play of the march was a 19-yard pass from McCune to Clegg on a fourth-down-and-14 situation.

McCune, who set a West Virginia percentage record this season by completing 60 of 90 passes, was held to 13 of 28 by Utah's stiff defense. He gained 123 yards in the air but had four passes intercepted.

Local QB Club to Present 'Good Joe, Award Monday

Two of the top local athletic awards of the year are scheduled for presentation in the next few weeks by the Colorado Springs' Quarterback Club, according to club president Andy Gambucci.

The first will be given this Monday, Dec. 21, in the annual presentation of the "Good Joe Award" to the regional man judged to have best followed the example of the late Dr. Joe Lewis, after whom the award is named.

The Quarterback Club meets each Monday at noon in the banquet room of the Acacia Hotel. All Pikes Peak region sports enthusiasts are welcome to attend and join the club.

The other highly - regarded award coming up soon on the club's schedule is the 1964 Colorado Sports Achievement trophy, to the state resident who has gained the most accomplishment and recognition in athletics during the past year. This has been slated for the Monday night of Feb. 1 and will be held at the Broadmoor Hotel for the first time.

This year's "Good Joe Award" will be presented by Gib Funk, last year's recipient. Funk is football and baseball coach at Wasson High School and has devoted many hours beyond the call of duty to helping youth in the community.

Dr. Joe Lewis, who died Dec. 14, 1959, was one of the most colorful individuals this community has ever produced, and embodied all the best characteristics of enthusiasm and good sportsmanship. For many years he served as team physician for the local high schools without pay and he always supported all forms of athletics.

In his honor, the "Good Joe" plaque is given to the citizen who best fulfills the criteria of (1) friendliness, (2) service to youth, and (3) promotion of athletics through attendance and devotion of time behind the scenes.

Past winners of the "Good Joe Award" have been Virgil Justis, Garry Berry, The Rev. Arthur Pierpoint and Funk. Mayor Harry Hoth will speak and introduce Funk, who will announced this year's winner, as judged by the Quarterback Club's board of directors.

The following Monday, Dec. 28, the Quarterback Club will have as guests the players and managers of the three ice hockey teams which will be competing for the Walter A. Brown Memorial Trophy tournament at the Broadmoor World Arena, Dec. 26 through 31. Representatives from the Canadian, Russian cational teams will be present.

Club president Gambucci has been named as one of the referees for this International Hockey Tournament. At this Monday's meeting, several sets of series tickets to these games will be given to members.

Plans are also being finalized for the Sports Achievement Award banquet at the Broadmoor. Gov. John Love is expeced to introduce the finalists in the competition, and a nationally-known sports figure will be present to speak to the club and make the presentation.

The evening banquet is expected to be an annual affair, and if reflects the growth in prestige throughout the state of the Sports Achievement Award. Tickets will be sold to the general public as well as Quarterback Club members.

The list of semi-finalists for this annual award will be announced at a later date. Several of the past winners, including 1963 awardee Coach Sox Walseth of Colorado University, are expected to attend.

'Fatso' Becomes Slugger

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Remember the kid they used to call "Fatso" in your neighborhood?

In Joe Torie's neighborhood, that kid grew up to become one of the National League's top sluggers.

"I was so heavy nobody wanted me when I g o t out of high school," laughed the Milwaukee catcher-first baseman, who has trimmed down considerably since then. "I weighed 240 pounds when I was 16 years old."

When Joe went to thebeach as a kid and tried floating on the water, people used to wave handkerchiefs. They thought it was a boat race.

Now 24 years old and only 215 pounds, Torre is on his way toward becoming one of the high-salaried performers in baseball.

Had Fine Year

He appeared in 154 games for the Braves last season, catching when he wasn't at first base, and had the kind of year that should make him a pretty rough customer at the bargaining table.

Torre wound up the NL's fourth leading hitter with his .321 average, and his 193 safeties weren't all singles. Twenty of his blows were homers, 36 doubles and five triples. His 109 RBI's were topped by only three others.

Torre, who was born in Brooklyn and still lives there, showed up Thursday for the screening of the 1964 World Series film and was pretty much the center of attention even though a number of other baseball personalities were present.

Everyone came over to congratulate him on his great year.

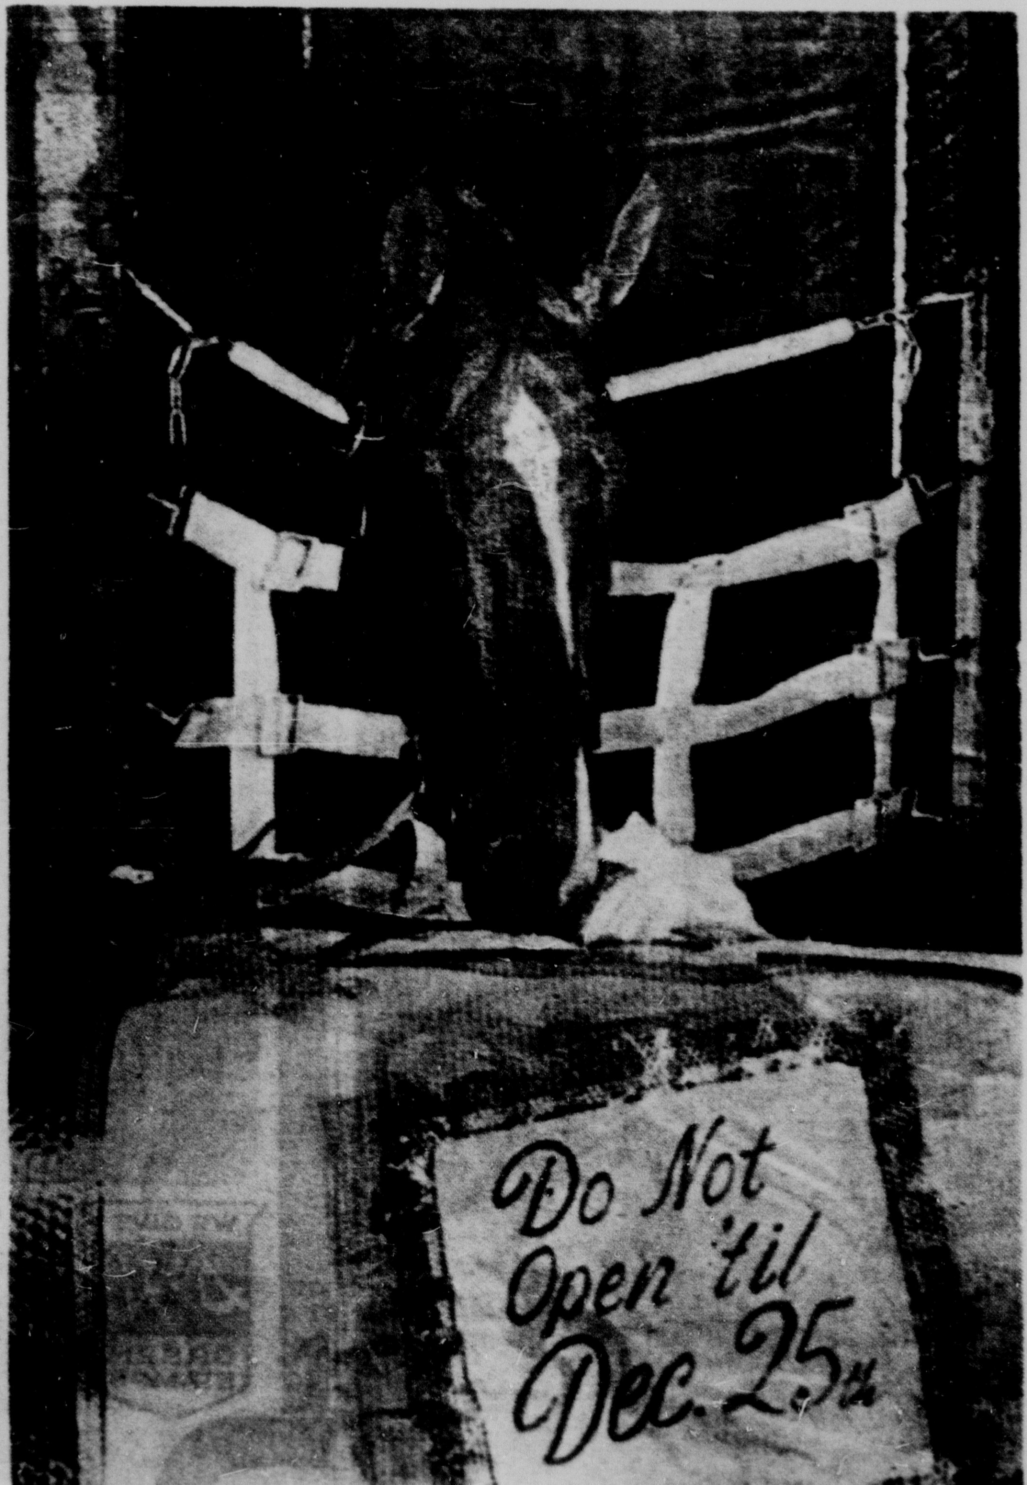
"It's a nice feeling," he admitted, "but I know I still don't have it made."

In any conversation with Torre, he immediately brings in the name of two men: His older brother, Frank, who played for the Braves before him and with whom he now is in the sporting goods business, and Milwaukee batting coach Dixie Walker.

Listens To Frank

"Frank was the one who made me into a catcher," Joe said. "Like I said, nobody wanted me when I got out of high school. I played first base, third base and did some pitching, but I didn't really have a n y set position.

"Frank said: 'They need catching. Everyone needs catching.' So I became a catcher. I always listen to Frank."



THEM THAT HAS GETS—Bold Lad, a racehorse who can afford to buy his own hay, nibbles appreciately at a choice bale sent to him by an admiring fan at Hialeah Park. The champion 2-year-old colt has earned $387,473 in 1964, which ain't hay! (AP Wirephoto)

Pats Must Win Today for AFL Title

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's blitzing Patriots bank on Babe Parilli's passing and Gino Cappelletti's kicking to counter the power of Buffalo's Cookie Gilchrist in Sunday's game for the Easters Division title of the American Football League.

Buffalo, leading by one-half game with an 11-2 record to Boston's 10-2-1, can clinch the division crown by winning or tying this final game of the regular season. The home town Patriots must win. At stake is the role of host team in the AFL championship game with San Diego, Saturday, Dec. 26.

On the basis of an earlier 36-28 victory at Buffalo, the home field edge and Coach Mike Holovak's hex over the Bills, Boston is a slight favorite.

The Patriots, who beat Buffalo in a tie playoff game last year and then were routed by San Diego, have fired the imagination of Boston fans, who will turn out some 38,000 strong for the most important pro game here in years.

Game time is 2 p.m., EST, with ABC television coverage in most areas except the Boston area and the Pacific time zone.

The weather man advised long flannels and ear muffs at Fenway Park but forecast no snow or rain or a field that has been covered for three weeks by tons of straw and several tarpaulins. Both coaches have been pulling for good weather and no strong winds.

Holovak, named coach of the year by an Associated Press panel, succeeded Lou Saban at Boston during the 1961 season. In six previous meetings with Saban, who took over as Buffalo coach in 1962, Holovak holds a 4-1-1 edge.

It was Holovak's team that broke the Bills' nine-game winning streak Nov. 15, ending their term as the only unbeaten team in pro football.

Buffalo will be stronger than in the first game for Elbert Dubenion, the fleet flanker who missed that contest, is ready to go. So is Glenn Bass, the split end who played only the first half against Boston and sat out last week's game in Denver, Bass and Ed Rutkowski probably will share the job.

Colts Ruled One TD Favorite

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, who have never lost a title game, ruled a one-touchdown favorite to keep that record unblemished against the Cleveland Browns next Sunday in the National Football League's championship game.

The game, before a sell-out crowd of 78,000 in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium, is scheduled for national television, CBS-TV, with the Cleveland area blacked out, starting at 1:30 p.m., EST.

The game shapes up as a match of Baltimore's solid running game, Johnny Unitas' passing and an excellent defense against Cleveland's devastating ground game built around Jimmy Brown and the occasionally brilliant passing of Frank Ryan.

The Colts, who won league championships in 1958 and 1959 in their only previous appearances in title games, stormed through the 1964 season with a 12-2 record, including 11 straight victories, win winning the Western Conference championship.

Cleveland compiled a 10-3-1 record in winning its first Eastern Conference title since 1957. The Browns clinched the conference crown on the final weekend of the season, blasting New York 52-20 with Ryan throwing five touchdown passes.

The big gun in Cleveland's offense is Brown, the all-everything fullback. The 230-pounder again led the league in rushing, with 1,446 yards and an average of 5.2 yards per carry. He had seven touchdowns rushing and another two receiving.

Ryan, whose passing was complimented by the ground threat of Brown and Ernie Green, completed 174 of 334 for 2,404 yards and 25 touchdowns. Green had 491 yards rushing.

The Colts' big weapon was their stingy, blitzing defense. The Colts suffered a let-down after clinching the title and lost to Detroit 31-14 two weeks ago, then regained their stride in a closing 45-17 romp over Washington.

"I was particularly pleased that we were able to put such a strong rush on the Redskins' passers last Sunday after being slowed down the week before against Detroit," Colt defensive line Coach Bill Arnsparger said.

"We dumped Sonny Jurgensen and Dick Shiner eight times for 58 yards and were really firing out," he added.

"Our big guys up front will have to stay hot if we're going to control Ryan. We just can't afford to give him time to set up. Of course, we are well aware of the ground problems that Jim Brown and Ernie Green can create."

That veteran defense, which allowed only 225 points in 14 games, is one of the principal reasons the Colts were installed as an eariy favorite.

The Colts have four defensive starters returning from the championship teams of 1958 and 1959.

Raiders Set for Season's Finale

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Revenge and the hope of partially redeeming a disappointing season will motivate Oakland's Raiders as they meet the San Diego Chargers Sunday in the regular season windup for both.

San Diego thumped the Chargers 31-17 earlier. Victory would help ease the pain of a season that saw Oakland slump from a 10-4 record last year to 4-7-2.

The Chargers have won the Western Division title of the American Football League. They'll meet the winner of Sunday's Buffalo-Boston game for the loop crown.

In their most recent outing, however, San Diego was clobbered 48-6 by Kansas City and Coach Sid Gillman will be trying to make sure his club does not get in a losing rut.

Both teams have been hit by injuries. Quarterback Cotton Davidson and guard Bob Mishak are doubtful Raider starters, while backs Keith Lincoln and George Blair of San Diego may miss action.

Since Lincoln and Blair are the Charger kickers, Gillman may call on 45-year-old Ben Agajanian.

Despite the injuries, both teams retain plenty of offensive punch. Speedy Paul Lowe heads a strong Charger running game and quarterbacks John Hadl and Tobin Rote have the likes of All-League Lance Allworth as receivers.

Clem Daniels and fullback Billy Cannon are the Raider runners, and Art Powell is one of the AFL's most feared receivers. Powell needs just two catches and five yards to break the club records of 73 and 1,304 he set last year.

AFL Cellar Dwellers To Clash

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston and Denver, in the cellar of their respective divisions, meet in an American Football League game Sunday — the Oilers' last under head Coach Sammy Baugh.

Baugh, who was hired last June, announced his resignation Friday, effective after the Oiler-Bronco game. He said he wanted to devote more time to his West Texas ranch.

The resignation was unexpected in that Baugh's one-year contract had been extended through 1965.

Baugh, former Texas Christian University and Washington Redskin passing great, said he would consider a backfield assistant coaching job under the new head coach, and Owner K. S. Adams Jr., said Baugh was an applicant.

The Oiler-Bronco game also will be the final pro game in Jeppesen Stadium.

Schollander Wins Event

MARSEILLE, FRANCE (AP) —Olympic swimming star Don Schollander, 18 year-old winner of four gold medals in the Tokyo Olympics, won the 100-meter international free style in an exhibition swim meet here Saturday night.

The Lake Oswego, Ore., athlete won the event in 53.8. Alain Gotvalles of rence, did not compete as expected.

Schollander is in Marseille to participate Sunday in the annual Coupe de Noel (Christmas Cup) Classic. He is accompanied by Yale University Swimming Coach Phil Moriarity and a former high school teammate, Gary Ilman.

The Cheyenne Mountain swim team walked off with two victories Saturday during a double dual swim meet at the Air Force Academy Prep School pool.

The Cheyenne tankers, spearheaded by double winner Bill Kinner who won the 50-yard and 100-yard Freestyle events, defeated Arapahoe (Littleton) team, 73-22 and the Indians followed with a 66-29 triumph over Air Academy High.

Behind their ace swimmer, Ron Gibson,, the Kadets of Academy High dumped Arapahoe, 74-21, as Gibson took first place in the 200-yard and 400-yard Freestyle events. Gibson established a new pool record in the 400-yard Freestyle, 4:57.7.

Despite a brilliant effort by their sophomore flash Ralph Butcher, who won the 200-yard Individual Medley and 100-yard Butterfly events in record time, the Arapahoe team finished last. Butcher was clocked one minute flat in the 100)-yard Butterfly event and was timed 2:19.5 in the 200-yard Individual Medley race.

'Fatso' Becomes Slugger

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Remember the kid they used to call "Fatso" in your neighborhood?

In Joe Torie's neighborhood, that kid grew up to become one of the National League's top sluggers.

"I was so heavy nobody wanted me when I got out of high school," laughed the Milwaukee catcher-first baseman, who has trimmed down considerably since then. "I weighed 240 pounds when I was 16 years old."

When Joe went to thebeach as a kid and tried floating on the water, people used to wave handkerchiefs. They thought it was a boat race.

Now 24 years old and only 215 pounds, Torre is on his way toward becoming one of the high-salaried performers in baseball.

Had Fine Year

He appeared in 154 games for the Braves last season, catching when he wasn't at first base, and had the kind of year that should make him a pretty rough customer at the bargaining table.

Torre wound up the NL's fourth leading hitter with his .321 average, and his 193 safeties weren't all singles. Twenty of his blows were homers, 36 doubles and five triples. His 109 RBI's were topped by only three others.

Torre, who was born in Brooklyn and still lives there, showed up Thursday for the screening of the 1964 World Series film and was pretty much the center of attention even though a number of other baseball personalities were present.

Everyone came over to congratulate him on his great year.

"It's a nice feeling," he admitted, "but I know I still don't have it made."

In any conversation with Torre, he immediately brings in the name of two men: His older brother, Frank, who played for the Braves before him and with whom he now is in the sporting goods business, and Milwaukee batting coach Dixie Walker.

Listens To Frank

"Frank was the one who made me into a catcher," Joe said. "Like I said, nobody wanted me when I got out of high school. I played first base, third base and did some pitching, but I didn't really have any set position.

"Frank said: 'They need catching. Everyone needs catching.' So I became a catcher. I always listen to Frank."

Pats Must Win Today for AFL Title

BOSTON (AP) — Boston's blitzing Patriots bank on Babe Parilli's passing and Gino Cappelletti's kicking to counter the power of Buffalo's Cookie Gilchrist in Sunday's game for the Easters Division title of the American Football League.

Buffalo, leading by one-half game with an 11-2 record to Boston's 10-2-1, can clinch the division crown by winning or tying this final game of the regular season. The home town Patriots must win. At stake is the role of host team in the AFL championship game with San Diego, Saturday, Dec. 26.

On the basis of an earlier 36-28 victory at Buffalo, the home field edge and Coach Mike Holovak's hex over the Bills, Boston is a slight favorite.

The Patriots, who beat Buffalo in a tie playoff game last year and then were routed by San Diego, have fired the imagination of Boston fans, who will turn out some 38,000 strong for the most important pro game here in years.

Game time is 2 p.m., EST, with ABC television coverage in most areas except the Boston area and the Pacific time zone.

The weather man advised long flannels and ear muffs at Fenway Park but forecast no snow or rain or a field that has been covered for three weeks by tons of straw and several tarpaulins. Both coaches have been pulling for good weather and no strong winds.

Holovak, named coach of the year by an Associated Press panel, succeeded Lou Saban at Boston during the 1961 season. In six previous meetings with Saban, who took over as Buffalo coach in 1962, Holovak holds a 4-1-1 edge.

It was Holovak's team that broke the Bills' nine-game winning streak Nov. 15, ending their term as the only unbeaten team in pro football.

Buffalo will be stronger than in the first game for Elbert Dubenion, the fleet flanker who missed that contest, is ready to go. So is Glenn Bass, the split end who played only the first half against Boston and sat out last week's game in Denver, Bass and Ed Rutkowski probably will share the job.

Colts Ruled One TD Favorite

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, who have never lost a title game, ruled a one-touchdown favorite to keep that record unblemished against the Cleveland Browns next Sunday in the National Football League's championship game.

The game, before a sell-out crowd of 78,000 in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium, is scheduled for national television, CBS-TV, with the Cleveland area blacked out, starting at 1:30 p.m., EST.

The game shapes up as a match of Baltimore's solid running game, Johnny Unitas' passing and an excellent defense against Cleveland's devastating ground game built around Jimmy Brown and the occasionally brilliant passing of Frank Ryan.

The Colts, who won league championships in 1958 and 1959 in their only previous appearances in title games, stormed through the 1964 season with a 12-2 record, including 11 straight victories, win winning the Western Conference championship.

Cleveland compiled a 10-3-1 record in winning its first Eastern Conference title since 1957. The Browns clinched the conference crown on the final weekend of the season, blasting New York 52-20 with Ryan throwing five touchdown passes.

The big gun in Cleveland's offense is Brown, the all-everything fullback. The 230-pounder again led the league in rushing, with 1,446 yards and an average of 5.2 yards per carry. He had seven touchdowns rushing and another two receiving.

Ryan, whose passing was complimented by the ground threat of Brown and Ernie Green, completed 174 of 334 for 2,404 yards and 25 touchdowns. Green had 491 yards rushing.

The Colts' big weapon was their stingy, blitzing defense. The Colts suffered a let-down after clinching the title and lost to Detroit 31-14 two weeks ago, then regained their stride in a closing 45-17 romp over Washington.

"I was particularly pleased that we were able to put such a strong rush on the Redskins' passers last Sunday after being slowed down the week before against Detroit," Colt defensive line Coach Bill Arnsparger said.

"We dumped Sonny Jurgensen and Dick Shiner eight times for 58 yards and were really firing out," he added.

"Our big guys up front will have to stay hot if we're going to control Ryan. We just can't afford to give him time to set up. Of course, we are well aware of the ground problems that Jim Brown and Ernie Green can create."

That veteran defense, which allowed only 225 points in 14 games, is one of the principal reasons the Colts were installed as an early favorite.

The Colts have four defensive starters returning from the championship teams of 1958 and 1959.

Raiders Set for Season's Finale

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Revenge and the hope of partially redeeming a disappointing season will motivate Oakland's Raiders as they meet the San Diego Chargers Sunday in the regular season windup for both.

San Diego thumped the Chargers 31-17 earlier. Victory would help ease the pain of a season that saw Oakland slump from a 10-4 record last year to 4-7-2.

The Chargers have won the Western Division title of the American Football League. They'll meet the winner of Sunday's Buffalo-Boston game for the loop crown.

In their most recent outing, however, San Diego was clobbered 48-6 by Kansas City and Coach Sid Gillman will be trying to make sure his club does not get in a losing rut.

Both teams have been hit by injuries. Quarterback Cotton Davidson and guard Bob Mishak are doubtful Raider starters, while backs Keith Lincoln and George Blair of San Diego may miss action.

Since Lincoln and Blair are the Charger kickers, Gillman may call on 45-year-old Ben Agajanian.

Despite the injuries, both teams retain plenty of offensive punch. Speedy Paul Lowe heads a strong Charger running game and quarterbacks John Hadl and Tobin Rote have the likes of All-League Lance Allworth as receivers.

Clem Daniels and fullback Billy Cannon are the Raider runners, and Art Powell is one of the AFL's most feared receivers. Powell needs just two catches and five yards to break the club records of 73 and 1,304 he set last year.

AFL Cellar Dwellers To Clash

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston and Denver, in the cellar of their respective divisions, meet in an American Football League game Sunday — the Oilers' last under head Coach Sammy Baugh.

Baugh, who was hired last June, announced his resignation Friday, effective after the Oiler-Bronco game. He said he wanted to devote more time to his West Texas ranch.

The resignation was unexpected in that Baugh's one-year contract had been extended through 1965.

Baugh, former Texas Christian University and Washington Redskin passing great, said he would consider a backfield assistant coaching job under the new head coach, and Owner K. S. Adams Jr., said Baugh was an applicant.

The Oiler-Bronco game also will be the final pro game in Jeppesen Stadium.

The Lake Oswego, Ore., athlete won the event in 53.8. Alain Gotvalles of rence, did not compete as expected.

Schollander is in Marseille to participate Sunday in the annual Coupe de Noel (Christmas Cup) Classic. He is accompanied by Yale University Swimming Coach Phil Moriarity and a former high school teammate, Gary Ilman.

HINTS FROM Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Heloise:

Here's another way to use your nylon net dishcloth . . . I tuck one in the pocket of each kitchen apron I send as a Christmas gift!

I have even received second phone calls expressing thanks for this item! Since then I have found other uses for these nylon net squares:

When washing white gloves put the gloves on your hands and use the nylon net dishcloth for cleaning the fingertips of them!

I also crumple one of the net dishcloths and use it for rubbing streaks on collars and cuffs of dresses and shirts, etc.

I also use them for removing those stains from the heels and toes of teenagers white sox! They really do the job. net dish cloth.—L. Moore

Dear Folks:

Just buy a good grade of nylon net at your local store, and cut it up into 18-inch squares. No need to hem. Net doesn't ravel. (Should cost less than 40 cents a yard and because it's 72 inches wide —that makes it half-price - eh? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

My husband wears white shirts all the time and had so many with French cuffs which he did not like . . because he likes to turn up his sleeves when working.

I removed the cuffs, cut them into two, sewed the "lower half" back on, added a button, and they are just like regular cuffs. Rachelle Sanders

Wow . . . Dear Rachelle:

This is a fantastic way to save shirts for those who have WORN French cuffs too!

Bless you from the bottom of our hearts.

The worn thin line . . . where a French cuff usually wears . . . can be used for a cutting line, then turned under and restitched back to that perfectly good shirt sleeve—perfect! —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Spreading colds is my biggest problem: mainly from the drinking cups in the bathroom. With four children how could I keep this many cups and still have a neat bathroom?

I finally solved this problem when I got a set of measuring cups . . . the kind that look like little saucepans and will hang on the wall. I put a little decal on the bottom of each little pan to identify the owner and hung them beside our washbasin.

Now, everyone has their own drinking cup and they look so pretty. Identification is no problem. The biggest cup is for the oldest child and so on according to age . . . —Mrs. C. S. Mosher

You are absolutely precious to give us this hint. I'm sure anybody could use plastic cups to match the decor in their bathroom or the metal ones.

Give each of your four children a big kiss, hug and squeeze! And tell them that I and all of our readers said to throw their arms around your neck and tell you how we love you. We [illegible]! —Love, Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Please tell your readers that the next time they turn the mattress on the bed . . . to place a piece of plastic (the kind that comes as a cover on drycleaned garments) "between" the box springs and the mattress.

The heavy mattress will slide easily over the plastic and you won't find mattress - turning-time such a chore. —Edna

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

For the lady who had trouble with her cat playing with the Christmas tree:

Start training the cat now. When he does something wrong, say "No," emphasized with a squirt of water from a water gun.

This takes several days of watching constantly. But soon the cat is trained so that your word "no" is sufficient.

I believe our psychologist friends would call this conditioning, but it sure works.

A word of caution: Don't let the children make a game out of it or it will lose all of it's effect! —Mrs. S. D. G.

Dear Heloise:

If I have to walk on ice I have found that if I will pull an old stocking or a sock over my shoes or boots I will not slip! —Anna Willis

Dear Heloise:

I have an eleven-month-old baby who has insisted on feeding himself since he was nine months old.

Naturally, this means the use of fingers so he has very messy shirt sleeves after eating, and stained sleeves after they are washed.

I found terry cloth, stretch glass coasters are excellent sleeve covers. They slip right over his hand onto the lower part of his arm and protect the sleeve.

After he has eaten, the coasters are easily removed and just thrown into the washer.

This keeps baby sweet and clean with a nice, bright, unstained shirt. —Mrs. Wesniewski

Honey, this is a terrific idea. And I'll bet your little boy loves looking at the bright colors of the coasters, too, doesn't he? —Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Do your nerves jangle every time you open the refrigerator door and all those bottles on the door shelves hit against the front of the shelves?

If you tape a narrow strip of foam rubber along the inside of the metal front, you will have no more clanging bottles when you open the refrig. —The Quiet One

Dear Heloise:

When you wash a large throw rug, instead of putting it over the clothesline (which will cause a crease in the rug), try inserting drapery hooks about seven or eight inches apart in the sides of the rugs. Hook these over two parallel lines. Secure the drapery hooks to the line with clothespins.

When the rug is dry, it will be nice and straight with no crease. —Mrs. Kreinhagen

Judges Ponder Indictment Legal Tangle

ATLANTA (UPI)—Seven federal judges listened to morning-long arguments today and then took under advisement the crucial legal question of whether a federal prosecutor can reject a grand jury's request to prepare indictments.

The judges, sitting as the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, had before them a Mississippi case in which U.S. Atty. Robert Hauberg refused on orders of acting Atty. Gen. Nicholas D. Katzenbach to process perjury indictments against two Negroes.

Hauberg had been directed by U.S. District Judge Harold Cox to prepare the indictment.

Earl T. Thomas, president of the Mississippi Bar Association and former Chancellor L. Arnold Pyle argued that Cox had every right to insist that the U.S. attorney prepare and sign the indictments.

Pyle said the issue boiled down to this:

"Can the attorney general sitting in his ivory tower up in Washington stymie the functions of a grand jury by directing his assistant not to assist the grand jury in preparing an indictment?"

MARSEEILLE, France (UPI) —Three masked bandits held up the local tax office today and made off with nearly $30,000 of French currency.

Bail Hiked For Three Facing Theft Charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bail for three men accused of stealing $400,000 in precious jewels from the American Museum was increased Friday by $30,000 each when prosecuting attorneys told the court they had received information the gems were about to be sold.

State Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich set the new bail figures when Assistant States Attorney Maurice Nadjari revealed that the FBI told him that someone acting on behalf of the three defendants was trying to dispose of the jewels stolen last Oct. 31.

"With plenty of money in their pockets, if the sale is consumated, these men become poor bail risks," Nadjari said.

He had asked for $100,000 bail each but Markewick decided to set the lower figure.

Two of the defendants, Jack (Murf the Surf) Murphy and Allen Dale Kunn, are currently free on $20,000 bail. The third, Roger Clark, is free in $17,500 bail. All live in Miami.

Dear Heloise:

Spreading colds is my biggest problem: mainly from the drinking cups in the bathroom. With four children how could I keep this many cups and still have a neat bathroom?

I finally solved this problem when I got a set of measuring cups . . . the kind that look like little saucepans and will hang on the wall. I put a little decal on the bottom of each little pan to identify the owner and hung them beside our washbasin.

Now, everyone has their own drinking cup and they look so pretty. Identification is no problem. The biggest cup is for the oldest child and so on according to age . . . —Mrs. C. S. Mosher

---

You are absolutely precious to give us this hint. I'm sure anybody could use plastic cups to match the decor in their bathroom or the metal ones.

Give each of your four children a big kiss, hug and squeeze! And tell them that I and all of our readers said to throw their arms around your neck and tell you how we love you. We d[illegible]! —Love, Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Please tell your readers that the next time they turn the mattress on the bed . . . to place a piece of plastic (the kind that comes as a cover on drycleaned garments) "between" the box springs and the mattress.

The heavy mattress will slide easily over the plastic and you won't find mattress - turning-time such a chore. —Edna

---

Letter Of Laughter

Dear Heloise:

For the lady who had trouble with her cat playing with the Christmas tree:

Start training the cat now. When he does something wrong, say "No," emphasized with a squirt of water from a water gun.

This takes several days of watching constantly. But soon the cat is trained so that your word "no" is sufficient.

I believe our psychologist friends would call this conditioning, but it sure works.

A word of caution: Don't let the children make a game out of it or it will lose all of it's effect! —Mrs. S. D. G.

Dear Heloise:

If I have to walk on ice I have found that if I will pull an old stocking or a sock over my shoes or boots I will not slip! —Anna Willis

Dear Heloise:

I have an eleven-month-old baby who has insisted on feeding himself since he was nine months old.

Naturally, this means the use of fingers so he has very messy shirt sleeves after eating, and stained sleeves after they are washed.

I found terry cloth, stretch glass coasters are excellent sleeve covers. They slip right over his hand onto the lower part of his arm and protect the sleeve.

After he has eaten, the coasters are easily removed and just thrown into the washer.

This keeps baby sweet and clean with a nice, bright, unstained shirt. —Mrs. Wesniewski

---

Honey, this is a terrific idea. And I'll bet your little boy loves looking at the bright colors of the coasters, too, doesn't he? —Heloise

---

Dear Heloise:

Do your nerves jangle every time you open the refrigerator door and all those bottles on the door shelves hit against the front of the shelves?

If you tape a narrow strip of foam rubber along the inside of the metal front, you will have no more clanging bottles when you open the refrig. —The Quiet One

Dear Heloise:

When you wash a large throw rug, instead of putting it over the clothesline (which will cause a crease in the rug), try inserting drapery hooks about seven or eight inches apart in the sides of the rugs. Hook these over two parallel lines. Secure the drapery hooks to the line with clothespins.

When the rug is dry, it will be nice and straight with no crease. —Mrs. Kreinhagen

Judges Ponder Indictment Legal Tangle

ATLANTA (UPI)—Seven federal judges listened to morning-long arguments today and then took under advisement the crucial legal question of whether a federal prosecutor can reject a grand jury's request to prepare indictments.

The judges, sitting as the Fifth U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, had before them a Mississippi case in which U.S. Atty. Robert Hauberg refused on orders of acting Atty. Gen. Nicholas D. Katzenbach to process perjury indictments against two Negroes.

Hauberg had been directed by U.S. District Judge Harold Cox to prepare the indictment.

Earl T. Thomas, president of the Mississippi Bar Association and former Chancellor L. Arnold Pyle argued that Cox had every right to insist that the U.S. attorney prepare and sign the indictments.

Pyle said the issue boiled down to this:

"Can the attorney general sitting in his ivory tower up in Washington stymie the functions of a grand jury by directing his assistant not to assist the grand jury in preparing an indictment?"

TAX OFFICE ROBBED

MARSEEILLE, France (UPI)—Three masked bandits held up the local tax office today and made off with nearly $30,000 of French currency.

Bail Hiked For Three Facing Theft Charges

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bail for three men accused of stealing $400,000 in precious jewels from the American Museum was increased Friday by $30,000 each when prosecuting attorneys told the court they had received information the gems were about to be sold.

State Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich set the new bail figures when Assistant States Attorney Maurice Nadjari revealed that the FBI told him that someone acting on behalf of the three defendants was trying to dispose of the jewels stolen last Oct. 31.

"With plenty of money in their pockets, if the sale is consumated, these men become poor bail risks," Nadjari said.

He had asked for $100,000 bail each but Markewick decided to set the lower figure.

Two of the defendants, Jack (Murf the Surf) Murphy and Allen Dale Kunn, are currently free on $20,000 bail. The third, Roger Clark, is free in $17,500 bail. All live in Miami.

Experts See Liu Replacing Mao as Top Man

TAIPEI (UPI)—Nationalist China's experts on affairs in Communist China said Friday President Liu Shao-chi may replace Mao Tze-tung as party leader when the third national people's congress meets in Peking Sunday.

Mao would be expected to become "honorary chairman" of the party in a maneuver to help settle the dispute between Moscow and Peking. Kremlin leaders had wanted both Mao and Nikita S. Khrushchev to step down as a condition for settlement.

The experts said a reshuffle of the top ranking personnel in China is inevitable because Khrushchev's downfall alone proved insufficient to patch up Moscow-Peking relations. Many Chinese Communist leaders were said to want relations restored with the Soviet Union.

They said evidence of a possible major shakeup came on Sept. 4 when Mao, in an unprecedented move, discussed his possible successor in official publications. The experts reported similar discussion of a successor were encouraged in party meetings at lower levels.

Mao, who will be 71 on Dec. 26, has been leader of the Communists since the 1920's. He first alienated the Soviet directed Comintern by remolding orthodox Marxist doctrine to make the Chinese peasantry rather than the urban factory workers the backbone of his revolution.

Freight Rate Cuts For Wheat Sought

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Representatives from nine Midwest states will meet Monday to discuss a recent freight rate reduction on wheat without a similar cut for flour.

Gov. John Anderson called the conference of farm, milling, transportation and government leaders.

In advance of the conference, the Committee of Kansas Farm Organizations Friday called for the Committee of Kansas Farm Organizations Friday called for elimination of "unwarranted disparity in rates between bulk agricultural products and processed or partly processed products."

The committee said it wanted to encourage the processing of agricultural products in Kansas.

Milling officials have contended the freight rate reduction on wheat without an accompanying cut for flour rates would ruin the milling industry in Kansas.

The Committee of Farm Organizations said it did not support a broadened regulation of all forms of transportation.

"Increasing regulatory measures would superimpose cumbersome, costly, time consuming, inflexible methods of rate regulation and would compound an already complicated system," the committee said.

The committee said truck and rail transportation conditions were so different that identical regulations would be impractical.

Your Outdoors

By MARY SHIRER

For the Pikes Peak Group of the Colorado Mountain Club

Winter is here and what will it bring? It may call all the snow clouds together for a good blizzard, which we all hope for. Or it may bring subzero weather, and again it may bring springlike days. It may be a mixture of all weather. We are always sure of one thing in Colorado, that cold weather does not last.

Winter calls us out in the great outdoors for all kinds of winter sports, giving us good exercise in the crisp cold air. What is more invigorating than a brisk walk on a cold, cold winter day, giving cheeks a bright glow! When winter comes to rule how quickly the springlike days disappear. So soon icicles hang from the roofs and the sky is cheerless. Winter spreads over the whole landscape and we seek the warmth. Vegetation lies dead but winter does have bright scenes and splendors beyond description — the sparkling snow and frost on every bush and tree and even the grass has long since turned brown, the twittering birds play in the snow and fly from tree to tree as though enjoying it all.

The deer leaps and bounds over mountain sides and cottontails scamper through the snow, stopping to pause for awhile long enough to look at you and bound away over the snow to their homes in the thicket. Winter's call tells us to prepare for cold weather. Warmer homes and clothing are essential. All vegetation heeds the call and snuggles closer to the deep, dark earth for a winter nap. There comes the call when the great sun turns its face and we must obey that call for it is stern.

Wild winds blow across the mountains and over the plains, protecting the valleys for the wild folk. The streams are fast bound but still retain their beauty, glistening in the sunshine like precious gems. The aspen trees stand naked but there is beauty in their graceful forms, throwing their long shadows across the snow. All nature seems to feel their renovation force of winter and the whole outdoors is refreshed and gathers vigor for the coming spring and summer. We cheer for snow and what is more desirable right now! The hills are crowned with glittering diadems. Have you noticed how snow covers everything? Nothing escapes the white blanket. The day is ending on the winter day. The sun has dropped behind the mountain, leaving red streaks of sunset in the western sky. Night soon settles over everything after the sunset fades. A cold winter night which sends everybody hurrying to their homes to warm fires. Winter calls and we crown him King.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Dean McIntosh cites some very glowing figures on church attendance by his Baptist college youth, but I wish the other 2,000 Liberal Arts colleges could do as well. Take a close look at the total church membership of various states even in the "Bible Belt!" Discuss this case at Sunday School.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE U-460: Prof. Richard T. McIntosh is the dynamic Dean of Students at Cedarville College in Ohio.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "the wife of one of our students read your former column in the Akron BEACON JOURNAL.

"In it you hazarded the guess that except for the Mormon colleges and possibly the Roman Catholic schools, probably not more than 10 per cent of college students are in church on any given Sunday.

"Our Baptist liberal arts college encourages all students to be regular in church attendance and to submit weekly reports thereof.

"Almost 100 per cent of our students attend at least one church service each week.

"And 75 per cent attend two or more services per week.

'Many of our students are also active in hristian service work, such as teaching Sunday School classes, assisting in youth work, conducting religious services in rest homes, penal institutions and a large state orphanage.

"Many of our students also make a vital contribution to the musical and educational programs of the area churches.

"So you see our Baptist college students, as well as Mormons and Catholics, are faithful in their church responsibilities."

In this case I wish all 2,000 of our Liberal Arts colleges would come forth and prove me wrong in my 10 per cent guess.

It is a pleasure to have Dean McIntosh's splendid report on his fine college.

A few such church schools, including Bob Jones University, Wheaton College and others, may boast of a high church attendance record.

Alas, I'm afraid to ask about our mammoth state universities and even a supposedly noted Methodist school such as my Alma Mater, Northwestern University.

And I am dubious about the recent figures showing over 63 per cent church membership for our entire United States.

For last Springs, the newspapers ran a map of the various states with the percentage of

CHURCH MEMBERSHIP
U-460

people who claimed church membership in any type of faith, including Jewish, Catholic and Protestant.

And only seven states claimed over 60 per cent membership while the remainder ran down as low as Oregon, with only 28 per cent.

Notice the following percentages of total church membership:

Rhode Island—75, Utah—73, Massachusetts — 67, North Dakita — 64, Wisconsin — 64, Minnesota — 62, Connectucutt—60, New York — 60, Oregon — 28, Washington — 30, Arkansas — 31, West Virginia — 32, Mississippi — 33, Georgia — 34, Indiana — 43, Ohio — 46.

The source of these data is "The Lutheran Witness."

It is shocking to see many of our "Bible Belt" states with much less than a 50 per cent total church membership.

And the date above would seem to belie that report of over 63 per cent total church membership for the entire U. S. A.

Florida, for example, claims a total of only 36 per cent membership in ALL church denominations! Virginia has only 39 per cent and South Carolina, 40 per cent.

So it is time we began to stress "home missionary" work and maybe fret less about Africa, India and South America.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Doctor Warns Against Too Much Drinking

NEW YORK (UPI) — A thought for the beginning of Christmas week and to mingle with anticipations of the big New Year week-end to follow is that out of every 70 drinkers, nine will drink too much and three will become alcoholics.

It was provided by Dr. Paul Gal, an authority on alcoholism in suggesting (1) that healthy-of-mind is the person who knows when to stop and (2) one reason why the disease alcoholism is so much on the upgrade is because so many possible therapists refuse to deal with it.

A therapist is any person who treats disease, and for alcoholism he admitted clergymen, social workers and psychologists to that status, and gave a lay, non-medical organization, Alcoholics Anonymous, a top rank. Doctors of medicine, and Gal is one, rarely are so generous.

The AA's are enthusiastically eager to cope with alcoholism, as is well known. But 60 per cent of physicians and other possible therapists won't touch it, Gal estimated. Making this bad situation worse, is the blind reluctance of potential and actual alcoholics to accept any therapy.

The best therapy is "total push therapy," Gal said. It is applied by a team of therapists "in a great community or in an institution," which is made up of physician, psychiatrist, psychologist, social worker, occupational therapist, vocational counselor and the AA. Gal is on such a team in the Veterans Administration hospital in Los Angeles.

In appealing to members of the American Geriatrics Society for more therapeutic push against alcoholism, he emphasized that not every one—whether phsyician or clergyman or whatever—is capable of doing the work.

"It demands a special personality qualification for the understanding of the illness," he said. "First of all, the therapist must have the capacity to give affection, warmth and friendliness. He has to combine acceptance with firmness, strength and consistency without unfair domination."

Two State Colleges Submit Their Budgets

DENVER (AP)—Adams State College at Alamosa and Western State College at Gunnison were among four state colleges that submitted combined operating budgets Friday for the 1965-66 fiscal year totaling $12.6 million.

The request, made in a hearing before the Legislature's Joint Budget Committee, was said to represent an increase of $2.9 million over the current year.

Dr. H. Grant Vest, executive secretary of the State Board of Trustees, said the cost hike is largely the result of a 15.9 per cent increase in enrollment at the four institutions.

The other two institutions supervised by the board are Southern Colorado State College at Pueblo and Colorado State College at Greeley.

ESKIMOS NOW NEED DRILLING

EDMONTON, Alta. (AP) — Eskimos, apparently, once needed dentists like a hole in the head.

Now they get cavities like everyone else. Dr. C. H. Carley, a senior federal government dental officer, said that the Eskimo once existed on a high-protein, low-carbohydrate diet. His teeth rarely decayed. But now, many Eskimos eat the same refined high-carbohydrate foods as other Canadians—and they're paying for it in cavities.

Dr. Carley is one of six dentists employed by the federal Health and Welfare Department to work in the vast area of northern Alberta, the Yukon and the MacKenzie District of the Northwest Territories.

COFFEE PROVES COSTLY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Circuit Judge John U. Bird ruled that a coffee cup is not a deadly weapon. But using one for a weapon can still prove costly.

Charles Robinson, 26, formerly of St. Petersburg, was charged with aggravated assault (assault with a deadly weapon), following a fight in a restaurant in which he hit three men with a cup. The judge found Robinson guilty of a lesser charge of assault and battery.

Judge Bird upheld the defense contention that a deadly weapon is a gun, knife, or some other heavy or sharp object that obviously can cause death.

But he fined Robinson $900 on the lesser charge.

OUTLOOK GOOD

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Small Business Administrator Eugene P. Foley reported Saturday that continued prosperity is causing a heavy demand for small business loans.

He said the outlook has given little businessmen confidence and that they are investing in machinery and other goods.

During October the SBA approved 1,542 business loans worth $58.2 million. In addition it made 600 disaster loans for $12.2 million; 20 loans totalling $3.2 million to local development companies, and 11 loans more operating revenue.

Johnson refuses to reveal the name of his tailor. He has some London-made suits. There is a tailor in Texas who keeps his measurements on file and he is said to sometimes order two suits at a time from a Washington firm.

What to give Children at Christmas

Because children believe, our own beliefs are deepened.

The gifts they give us are enormous, being nothing less than faith, wonder, love, laughter, trust. They give in innocence and without question what cannot be bought in any store for any money — themselves.

What are we to give in return? Surely it must be more than things—the games, the toys, the candy. And more indeed than can be given in a single day.

It must be that which only we can create, alone and with others . . . a better, much better, world for these our children to inherit.

To this hope, we rededicate ourselves.

CC Symposium to Feature Nine Specialized Seminars

Nine specialized science seminars will be conducted at Colorado College during the week-long symposium on the New Science in January.

The seminars will cover areas such as The Significance of Investigations of Brain Mechanisms for a Modern Technological Society; Exploration of Atomic and Nuclear Structure through Resonance; Isozymes: Multiple Molecular Forms of Biological Catalysts; Studies on Radiation Response on Mammalian Cells; Biological Time Measurement; Scientific Writing; Photosynthesis and World Needs for Food and Energy; Geochemistry of Volcanic Activity; and Computers in Science.

More than 30 leading American and European scientists scholars will take part in the symposium at Colorado College Jan. 10-16. It is the third annual week-long symposium at the independent liberal arts college.

The seminars, to be held on four afternoons, will be conducted by some of the country's leading scientists. Students and others registered for the symposium also may attend.

A seminar on The Significance of Investigations of Brain Mechanisms for a Modern Technological Society will be conducted at 2 p.m. Jan. 11 in Olin Lecture Hall by three research scientists.

They are Dr. Mary Brazier, a member of the Brain Institute at the University of California at Los Angeles and a professor in residence in the departments of anatomy, biophysics and physiology at the university's College of Medicine; Dr. Robert Livingston, associate chief for program development at the National Institutes of Health; and Dr. Walter Rosenblith, professor of communications biophysics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Three seminars will be conducted Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 12, in Olin Hall. Dr. I. I. Rabi, Prize-Winning physicist will hold a seminar on Exploration of Atomic Nuclear Structure Through Resonance. Robert V. Ormes, managing editor of SCIENCE, will conduct a seminar on Scientific Writing. And Dr. Frank Salisbury, professor of plant physiology at Colorado State University, will talk about Biological Time Measurement.

Two seminars on Jan. 13 include one on Isozymes: Multiple Molecular Forms of Biological Catalysts by Dr. Richard O. Moore, professor of biochemistry at Ohio State University, and one on Photosynthesis and World Needs for Food and Energy by Dr. Eugene Rabinowitch, professor of botany and biophysics at the University of Illinois and editor of the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists.

On Jan. 14, the three afternoon seminars are Studies in Radiation Response on Mammalian Cells by Dr. Gordon Whitmore, physicist at the Ontario Cancer Institute and associate professor of medical biophysics at the University of Toronto; Computers in Science by Dr. Stanislaw Ulam, research adviser at Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory in New Mexico and developer of the Monte Carlo Method; and Geochemistry of Volcanic Activity, conducted by Dr. Konrad Krauskopf, associate dean of the School of Mineral Sciences at Stanford University.

Ideamen, throughout the command, will find greater rewards for their efforts from now on.

Adopted management suggestions at command level will reap as much as $600 according to the newest Air Defense Command supplement to Air Force regulation 35-12.

Formerly, the maxium amount of cash which could be given for a suggestion was $175.

Division, under the new ADC program, can reward suggestors a total of $300.

Base level management suggestion boards can fill out checks for an aggregate of $150.

The new supplement outlines specific scales, based on tangible savings, for amounts to be paid to suggestors. This, of course, is subject to evaluation of the idea, consideration of what has been suggested by others before, and what effect the idea will have on other areas.

Purpose of the raise in ideamen's recognition awards is to gain greater participation and interest in the command's management suggestion program.

Size of the check to be awarded is also dependent upon the availability of welfare fund which are non-appropriated monies accumulated through base exchanges, theaters and other concession activities.

Through the collection of recognition awards in intangible and tangible savings areas, a suggestor could earn a maximum of $1,050. This does not include Air Force recognition and could raise the total higher. And this would be possible only if the Air Force adopted the suggestion as did all levels of command below.

Colleges Give State Budgets

DENVER (AP) — Southern Colorado State College at Pueblo and Colorado State College at Greeley were among four state colleges that submitted combined operating budgets Friday for the 1965-66 fiscal year totaling $12.6 million.

The request, made at a hearing before the legislature's Joint Budget Committee, was said to represent an increase of $2.9 million over the current year.

Dr. H. Grant Vest, executive secretary of the State Board of Trustees, said the cost hike is largely the result of a 15.9 per cent increase in enrollment at the four institutions.

The other two institutions supervised by the board are Adams State College at Alamosa and Western State College at Gunnison.

Globe Travel Agency Now Open for Business

"Air, rail or sea, your travel is our business." That is one way of describing the services offered by the new Globe Travel Service, 16 E. Kiowa St.

Owned and operated by George K. Kurronen., Globe Travel Service first opened its doors to the public Dec. 1.

Kurronen, a native of Finland who now lives in Chipita Park, previously owned the Imperial "400" Motel. He has been in the region for about three years.

Because of his extensive European background, Kurronen states that trips to Europe will be a specialty at Globe, although international and domestic trips will be given just as much attention.

In charge of the domestic end the business is William O. Lennox, 44 Friendship Lane. Lennox has had five years experience with travel agencies. He was owner of World-Wide Travel, 130 Pikes Peak Ave., for three years and owned the Lennox Travel Service, Pueblo, for two years.

He also served for more than 15 years with Continental Airlines as a district sales manager and a reservations sales manager. Lennox is native of Colorado Springs.

Services at Globe Travel include transportation, sightseeing tours, information of hotels and restaurants along the travel route and a complete innerary, if desired. "We try to plan the type of travel that will best suit the client", says Kurronen.

Travel agents are "commissioned retailers of transportation," which simply means that their services are free to the public.

Globe Travel is equipped to finance trips, both domestic and international. Also, most nationally recognized credit cards are accepted.

A "tickets by mail" plan has been initiated at Globe, meaning a prospective traveller may call the Globe agent, plan the trip over the telephone and receive tickets and itinerary in the mail.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Martin Luther King, following a call on President Johnson at the White House Friday, quoted the chief executive as saying he is determined to eliminate discrimination in voting.

King, accompanied by his wife, visited Johnson following his return from Stockholm where he received the Nobel peace prize. The Negro integration leader said he had a "very fruitful and friendly discussion with the President."

The presentation was made at the company's annual awards banquet at the Diplomat Hotel here Wednesday.

Lorig's New Store Front Soon to Be Completed

The store fronts at Lorig's, 107 S. Tejon St., and the rental space beside it, 109 S. Tejon St., were recently renovated in keeping with the modernization of downtown Colorado Springs.

Both buildings are owned by Mr. and Mrs. Marx Lorig. The Lorig store is the second oldest building in the city, according to Marx Lorig. He says it was built in 1882. The Lorig family bought their present building in 1950.

The building at 109 S. Tejon St. is now vacant. It formelry housed Todd's Shine Shop.

Remodelling the fronts of the two shops included an entirely new store front at the vacant address, while the Lorig store received a facelifting on its upper portion.

The 60-day renovating task was handled by Bickley Construction Co.

A white plaster, with vertical metal strips was used on the Lorig store front, while the vacant shop was redone with aluminum and glass across the entire front.

In January or February, further remodelling will be done at Lorig's. Moss-rock will be inset below all the windows and the single door in front will be replaced by double, swinging doors. The moss-rock is being used to further add to the store western atmospher.

Lorig's was first established by Marx's father in 1934. His father first came to Colorado Springs in 1883. The Lorig business developed out of a wholesale business owned by the elder Lorig.

According to Marx Lorig, remodelling is being done on downtown stores, such as his, "as expressions of faith in downtown Colorado Springs."

Plans Well Underway For New Shopping Center

Plans for the full development of the Circle Fair Shopping Center at the intersection of Circle Drive and Airport Road are now nearing completion and construction is already underway, according to a joint announcement by Smartt Realty Co., 2502 E. Bijou St. and Godwin Bevers Co., Inc., 109 Fillmore St.

Other commercial buildings in the center are soon to be started, and are expected to be ready for occupancy about May 1, 1965. The Circle Fair Shopping Center will offer a full range of professional medical, dental and pharmical services, banking services, and a wide variety of shops surrounding a pleasant landscaped mall, all planned for completion in its entirety for the summer of 1965. The Commercial Department of Smartt Realty Company, is acting as the leasing agent for the new shopping center.

The Southside Medical Building, now being built by Godwin Bevers in the Circle Fair Center will be occupied by seven doctors, two dentists, a clinical laboratory and a pharmacy. This building is scheduled for completion about March 1, 1965.

Plans are also now completed for an unusual bank building to be constructed soon in the new shopping center. Adjacent to the west end of the Southside Medical Building now under construction in that area, the new bank will express strength and dignity with its massive brick walls and curved corners. Side walls of the building will be treated with a random pattern of colored sculptured glass modules, giving a sparkle to its interior.

The warm rustic wood character planned throughout the shopping center will also be reflected in the building with laminated timber beams and wood deck.

Plastic domes will fill the central lobby with glowing skylight. The building will be constructed by the Godwin Bevers Co., Inc., as a complete design-construction service. Mowry C. Gilbert is architect for the project, and interior decoration and furnishings will be by Kistler's of Denver.

Human carelessness and forgetfulness causes 75 per cent of all fires, the National Board of Fire Underwriters estimates.

Sno-White Laundry Opens 7th City Location

Sno-White Laundry and Dry Cleaners opened a seventh city location Tuesday at 696 N. Circle Dr. A Grand Opening was held Saturday.

The new outlet is housed at the extreme north end of the new North Circle Drive Business Center. It will contain complete laundry and dry cleaning services, as in the other six branches. The opening ends about two years of looking for an ideal northeast location.

According to George H. Brickell, vice-president in-charge of sales, an ideal location for a laundry is on the right hand (or driving) side of the street on a road to the city. These locations are sought because, as Brickell puts it, "people are in a hurry in the morning going to work so they have to stop at a laundry on the side they are driving on."

Brickell went on to say that when coming home from work, people aren't in a hurry and don't mind crossing over to the other side of the street to pick-up the laundry.

The main plant of Sno-White is located at 2515 W. Colorado Ave. Business offices and a dry cleaning plant are located around the corner at 110 S. 25th St.

Part of Brickell's job as sales manager was posting weekly "witty" sayings on the side of the Sno-White at 731 W. Colorado Ave., at the corner of 8th Street. He says that job isn't as easy as people think and he often enlists the aid of friends.

Sno-White, at 116 S. Cascade, serves as a second dry cleaning plant, besides also serving as a laundry facility. Between the two dry cleaning plants, Sno-White can dry clean any type of garment. Brickell says Sno-White Laundries are "specialists in fabric care."

Other Sno-White Laundry and Dry Cleaners locations are at 440 E. Pikes Peak Ave., 1701 S. Tejon St. and 1701 N. Weber St.

Sno-White is owned by Harold Gates. He opened his first laundry 14 years ago in a small section of the present main Colorado Avenue location. He had previously owned a laundry business in Seminole, Tex.

Gates employs about 120 persons at Sno-White but that number soars to around 200 during the summer months.

At present, about half of their business is family laundry and cleaning. The other half is composed of a rental service. This is available only at the main plant.

Rental items range from bed linens to restaurant linens and from industrial uniforms to dry cleaning rentals. A new service at Sno-White's main plant is a "shirt valet" or rental of white dress shirts.

Sno-White also features a pick-up and delivery service, with six established family routes. The company presently has 14 trucks used for delivery purposes.

The new Sno-White outlet measures 30 feet across the front, by 28 and a half feet deep. The North Circle Drive Business Center was built by Scandaliato Building Co. The colonial-styled building also features air conditioning and ample parking space.

Sno-White Laundry and Dry Cleaners' seven outlets are all open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., weekdays, and from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Local Bank Declares Surplus Increase

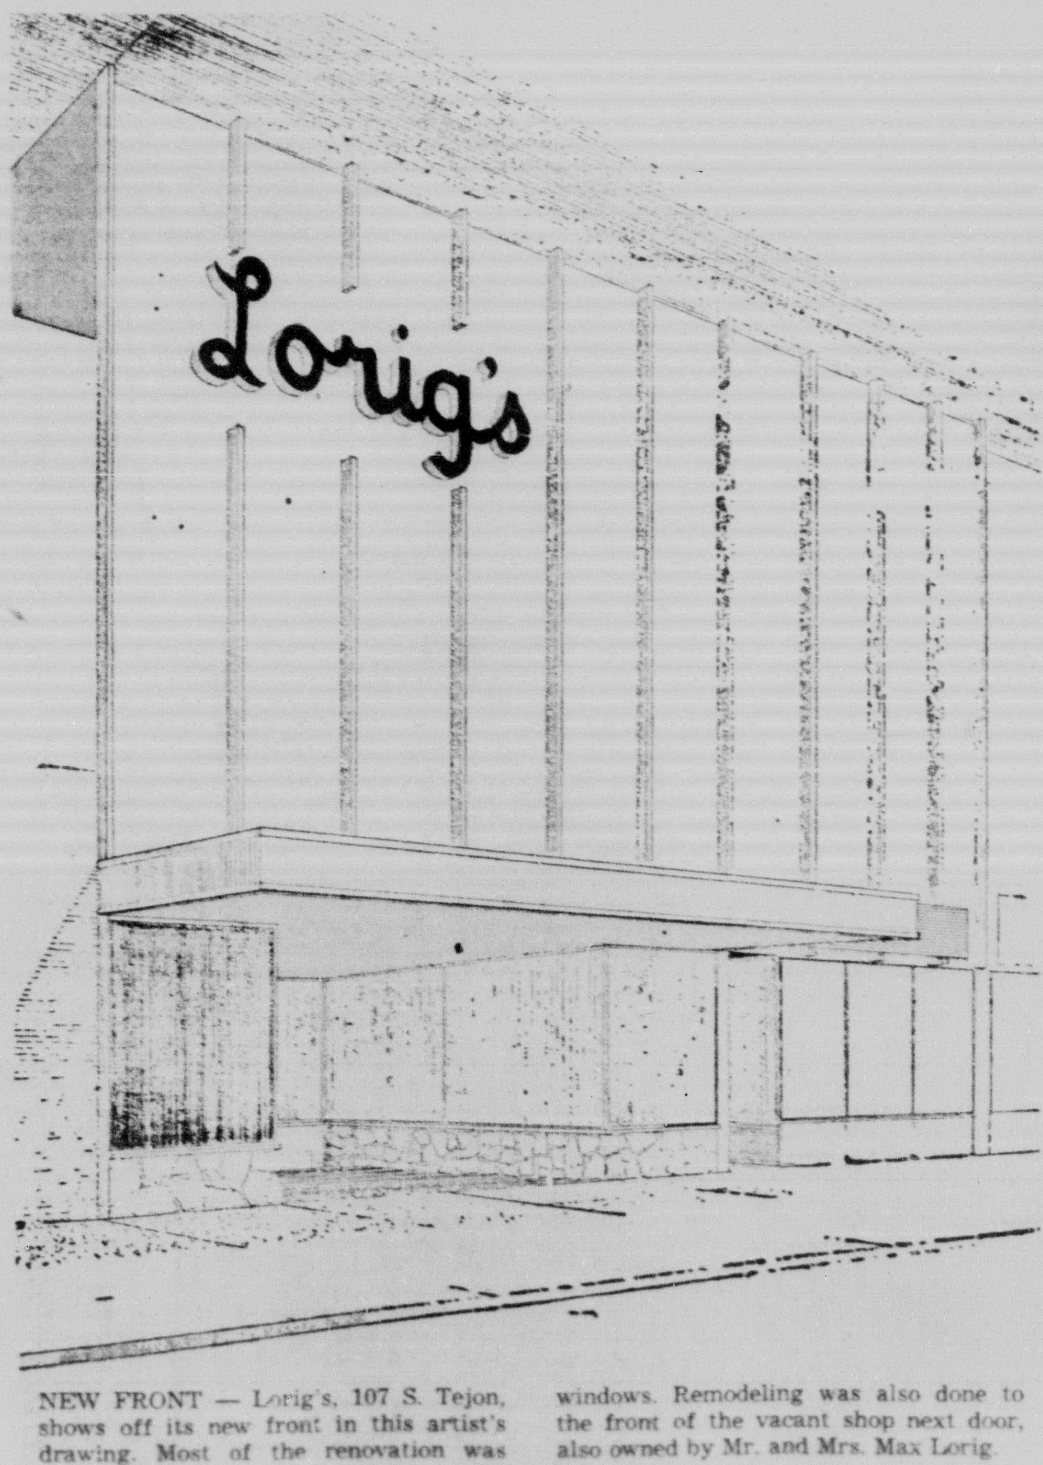
Frank D. Arnold, president of Colorado Commercial Bank, announced today that the directors of the bank at their recent December meeting voted an increase of $50,000 in the surplus account of the bank.

After this transfer the capital structure of the bank consists of $300,000 capital stock, $300,000 surplus and approximately $275,000 undivided profits and reserves.

Arnold stated, "This new increase in our permanent capital accounts again raises our legal lending limit and permits us to give more adequate service to the credit requirements of the community. We are also ertaining our profits in this manner so as to provide for the growth our bank is experiencing.

In the past year and a half we now have, through transfers from profits, increased our combined capital and surplus accounts by $150,000, or from $450,000 in July of 1963 to the present $600,000."

The tallest tree in the U.S. is a 367-foot high "coast redwood", growing on the tree farm of the Arcata Redwood Co. near Orick, Calif. The tree is believed to be about 700 years old.



NEW FRONT — Lorig's, 107 S. Tejon, shows off its new front in this artist's drawing. Most of the renovation was done above the marque and below the windows. Remodeling was also done to the front of the vacant shop next door, also owned by Mr. and Mrs. Max Lorig.

A LANDMARK TOPPLES—Excavation is almost completed on the Monarch Laundry building, at the southwest corner of Cucharras and Tejon Streets. A 120-space parking lot will take its place. It will be operated by the All-Right Parking Co. of Denver. Razing of the 70-year-old building is being done by Adams Excavating So., a local concern. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

CHANGED TO RUBBLE—A Colorado Springs landmark, the Monarch Laundry building, is now down to its bare walls. The 70-year-old building is going the way of many others in the city. It makes way for a new 120-space parking lot at the Tejon and Cucharras Streets location. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Side walls of the building will be treated with a random pattern of colored sculptured glass modules, giving a sparkle to its interior.

The warm rustic wood character planned throughout the shopping center will also be reflected in the building with laminated timber beams and wood deck.

Plastic domes will fill the central lobby with glowing skylight. The building will be constructed by the Godwin Bevers Co., Inc., as a complete design-construction service. Mowry C. Gilbert is architect for the project, and interior decoration and furnishings will be by Kistler's of Denver.

Phil Long Man Completes Safety Service Course

Boyd M. DeGarmp of 2822 West Cacharras St. has just completed his training at Bear Manufacturing Company's world-famous Automotive Safety Service School in Rock Island, Illinois.

DeGarmo received intensive training in Alinement, Balancing and Frame Straightening, learning the latest techniques in this important Safety Service. The Bear School is the largest of its kind anywhere and attracts students from all over the world.

DeGarmo will apply his expert ability to make cars run safer, smoother, more comfortably and more economically at Phil Long Ford Fountain Creek Blvd.

Human carelessness and forgetfulness causes 75 per cent of all fires, the National Board of Fire Underwriters estimates.

Sno-White Laundry Opens 7th City Location

Sno-White Laundry and Dry Cleaners opened a seventh city location Tuesday at 696 N. Circle Dr. A Grand Opening was held Saturday.

The new outlet is housed at the extreme north end of the new North Circle Drive Business Center. It will contain complete laundry and dry cleaning services, as in the other six branches. The opening ends about two years of looking for an ideal northeast location.

According to George H. Brickell, vice-president in-charge of sales, an ideal location for a laundry is on the right hand (or driving) side of the street on a road to the city. These locations are sought because, as Brickell puts it, "people are in a hurry in the morning going to work so they have to stop at a laundry on the side they are driving on."

Brickell went on to say that when coming home from work, people aren't in a hurry and don't mind crossing over to the other side of the street to pick-up the laundry.

The main plant of Sno-White is located at 2515 W. Colorado Ave. Business offices and a dry cleaning plant are located around the corner at 110 S. 25th St.

Part of Brickell's job as sales manager was posting weekly "witty" sayings on the side of the Sno-White at 731 W. Colorado Ave., at the corner of 8th Street. He says that job isn't as easy as people think and he often enlists the aid of friends.

Sno-White, at 116 S. Cascade, serves as a second dry cleaning plant, besides also serving as a laundry facility. Between the two dry cleaning plants, Sno-White can dry clean any type of garment. Brickell says Sno-White Laundries are "specialists in fabric care."

Other Sno-White Laundry and Dry Cleaners locations are at 440 E. Pikes Peak Ave., 1701 S. Tejon St. and 1701 N. Weber St.

Sno-White is owned by Harold Gates. He opened his first laundry 14 years ago in a small section of the present main Colorado Avenue location. He had previously owned a laundry business in Seminole, Tex.

Gates employs about 120 persons at Sno-White but that number soars to around 200 during the summer months.

At present, about half of their business is family laundry and cleaning. The other half is composed of a rental service. This is available only at the main plant.

Rental items range from bed linens to restaurant linens and from industrial uniforms to dry cleaning rentals. A new service at Sno-White's main plant is a "shirt valet" or rental of white dress shirts.

Sno-White also features a pick-up and delivery service, with six established family routes. The company presently has 14 trucks used for delivery purposes.

The new Sno-White outlet measures 30 feet across the front, by 28 and a half feet deep. The North Circle Drive Business Center was built by Scandaliato Building Co. The colonial-styled building also features air conditioning and ample parking space.

Sno-White Laundry and Dry Cleaners' seven outlets are all open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., weekdays, and from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays.

Local Bank Declares Surplus Increase

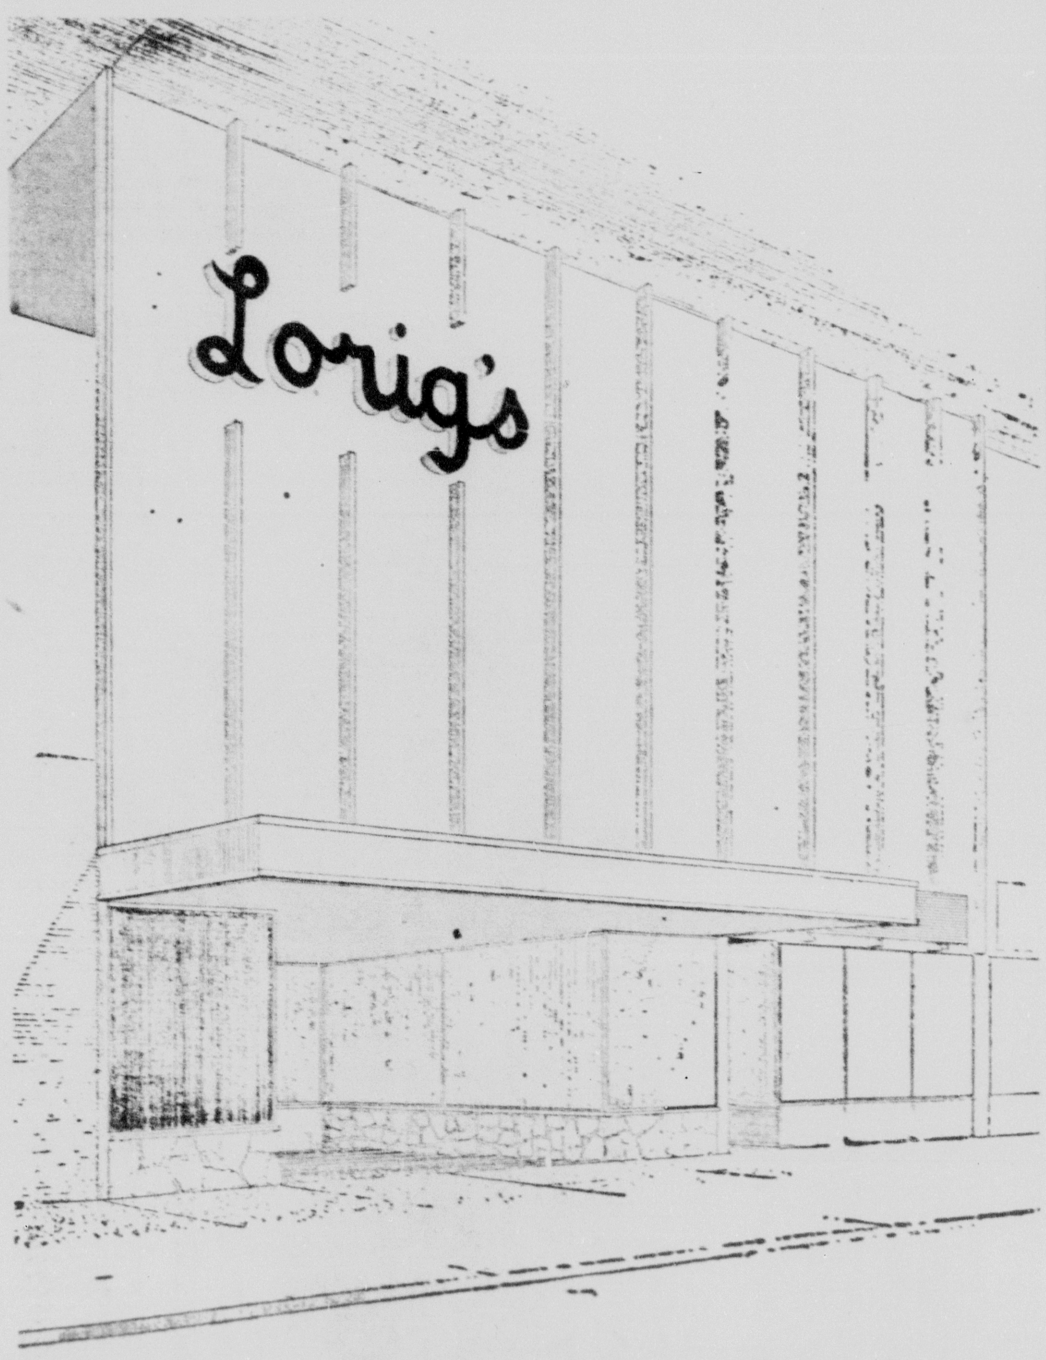
Frank D. Arnold, president of Colorado Commercial Bank, announced today that the directors of the bank at their recent December meeting voted an increase of $50,000 in the surplus account of the bank.

After this transfer the capital structure of the bank consists of $300,000 capital stock, $300,000 surplus and approximately $275,000 undivided profits and reserves.

Arnold stated: "This new increase in our permanent capital accounts again raises our legal lending limit and permits us to give more adequate service to the credit requirements of the community. We are also ertaining our profits in this manner so as to provide for the growth our bank is experiencing.

In the past year and a half we now have, through transfers from profits, increased our combined capital and surplus accounts by $150,000, or from $450,000 in July of 1963 to the present $600,000."

The tallest tree in the U.S. is a 367-foot high "coast redwood", growing on the tree farm of the Arcata Redwood Co. near Orick, Calif. The tree is believed to be about 700 years old.



NEW FRONT — Lorig's, 107 S. Tejon, shows off its new front in this artist's drawing. Most of the renovation was done above the marque and below the windows. Remodeling was also done to the front of the vacant shop next door, also owned by Mr. and Mrs. Max Lorig.

A LANDMARK TOPPLES—Excavation is almost completed on the Monarch Laundry building, at the southwest corner of Cucharras and Tejon Streets. A 120-space parking lot will take its place. It will be operated by the All-Right Parking Co. of Denver. Razing of the 70-year-old building is being done by Adams Excavating So., a local concern. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

CHANGED TO RUBBLE—A Colorado Springs landmark, the Monarch Laundry building, is now down to its bare walls. The 70-year-old building is going the way of many others in the city. It makes way for a new 120-space parking lot at the Tejon and Cucharras Streets location. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

CF&I Developes Tar-Rubber Blend For Jet Aircraft

A tar-rubber blend has been developed by The Colorado Fuel and Iron Corporation as a surface coating for jet aircraft parking and maintenance areas. The new CF&I product was used recently for partial or complete re-surfacing jobs at Air Force bases in Colorado Springs (Ent), Fairbanks, Alaska (Eielson) and Anchorage, Alaska (Elmendrof.)

Unlike asphalt, the blend is immune to the solvent action of jet fuel, gasoline and oils. In asphalt-coated parking areas, this action causes the surface to break up and release the aggregate rock, sand and gravel, which then can be sucked in by costly jet engines Use of the CF&I blend eliminates both the possibility of damage to aircraft and the need for major surfacing repairs — two expensive items in the Air Force budget. Similar applications in public or private projects should result in considerable savings

Manufactured in the facilities of the Chemical Section of the Coke Plant in Pueblo, where a number of coal chemicals are produced, the tar-rubber blend is made of 97 per cent CF&I road tar and 3 per cent dry rubber.

The two components are mixed in a large tank. The road tar is piped into the tank and maintained at a temperature sufficient to facilitate blending of the dry rubber, which is added slowly while agitation continues. Additional heat is supplied as needed by steam coils in the tank.

For application on site, the blend is hot-mixed with aggregate at the ratio of approximately 6 per cent blend to 94 per cent aggregate. One thousand gallons of tar-rubber blend mixed with aggregate will cover about 10,000 square feet. than asphalt, the coating can be applied with standard road paving equipment. Once rolled flat, it sets up in minutes.

At both the Eielson and Elmendorf bases, the tar-rubber blend and aggregate mix was applied over a tack coat of CF&I RT-6, a light road tar. On the Ent job, the 8-inch thick concrete foundation pad was sprayed with a tack coat of RT-6, a 2½-inch layer of CF&I RT-12 road tar and aggregate, and a 11-inch coat of tar-rubber blend and aggregate.

Designer Starts New Blueprint, Design Business

As the city grows, so grow its builders . . . . And the men connected with the building trades. This growth in Colorado Spirngs has prompted "Butch" Douma into starting his own blueprint and design business.

Douma is an architectural designer who specializes in planning homes and small commercial layouts. His office opened for business Oct. 1.

His office is presently located in the Weller West-Side Lumber Co. building at 2732 W. Colorado Ave.

A graduate of the Engineering Drafting School in Denver, Douma served a hitch in the Army and was stationed at Fort Carson. While there, he began working in 1961 as a draftsman and designer for Vrooman Construction Co.

After discharge from the Army, Douma continued working for Vrooman until opening his new business.

Presently, he is doing most of his design work for building contractors, but also works with private parties who wish to build a new home, expand a present one or even remodel a single room.

The other facet of his business, blueprint service, includes making copies of original drawings. The latest blue-line print method is used for the blueprint duplicates. Blue-line, of course, is the latest method of blueprint reproduction, featuring blue drawing on white paper, instead of vice-versa.

Douma, a member of the Homebuilder's Association of Colorado Springs, has office hours from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., six days a week and can fulfill blueprint requirements at almost anytime. He also features a pick-up and delivery service.

Originally from Sioux City, Iowa, Douma currently lives with his wife and two children at 3120 W. Platte Ave.

The first seat belt was used in 1910 when Lt. Benjamin D. Foulis of the U.S. Army obtained a leather strap made by a saddlemaker and installed it in an army airplane.

Chilean Gov. May Take Over Kennecott Copper

By United Press International

NEW YORK: The Chilean government may assume controlling interest of Kennecott.

Copper Corp.'s big subsidiary in that country and purchase a sizable but not majority stock participation in the properties of Anaconda, according to industry sources in Santiago.

Payment in both cases, it was said, would be mainly in the form of long-term bonds. Frank R. Milliken, president of Kennecott, would neither confirm nor deny the report. Anaconda President C. M. Brinckerhoff was not available for comment.

Firestone Has Reported Best Year in History

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company today reported the best sales and earnings in its history for the fiscal year which ended Oct. 31.

Harvey S. Firestone Jr., chairman, and E. B. Hathaway, president, reported net sales of $1,448,830,863 and earnings of $79,030,245.

They said sales and income records were set in each quarter of the 1964 fiscal year. The company exceeded last year's sales of $1,382,049,301 by 4.8 per cent and 1963 earnings of $63,384,604 by 24.7 per cent.

Of the 11 native or resident Pennsylvanians who have been on a ticket as president or vice president of the United States—all have lost except two. They were President Buchanan and George M. Dallas, vice president under President James Polk.

MPR Branch Orders 150 Freight Cars

The American Refrigerator Transit Co., a majority-owned subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, today placed an order for 150 mechanically-refrigerated freight cars at a cost of approximately $4,500,000, Downing B. Jenks, president, announced.

To be built by the Pacific Car and Foundry Co., Seattle, Wash., the cars are scheduled for delivery beginning in March, 1965.

This new order brings to 2,216 the number of new freight cars being purchased by the Missouri Pacific and subsidiaries in 1965, along with 50 new diesel locomotives, at a cost of almost $45,000,000, Jenks said. Expenditures for capital improvements in 1965 will be approximately $60,000,000, he added.

CF&I Developes Tar-Rubber Blend For Jet Aircraft

A tar-rubber blend has been developed by The Colorado Fuel and Iron Corporation as a surface coating for jet aircraft parking and maintenance areas. The new CF&I product was used recently for partial or complete re-surfacing jobs at Air Force bases in Colorado Springs (Ent), Fairbanks, Alaska (Eielson) and Anchorage, Alaska (Elmendrof.)

Unlike asphalt, the blend is immune to the solvent action of jet fuel, gasoline and oils. In asphalt-coated parking areas, this action causes the surface to break up and release the aggregate rock, sand and gravel, which then can be sucked in by costly jet engines Use of the CF&I blend eliminates both the possibility of damage to aircraft and the need for major surfacing repairs — two expensive items in the Air Force budget. Similar applications in public or private projects should result in considerable savings

Manufactured in the facilities of the Chemical Section of the Coke Plant in Pueblo, where a number of coal chemicals are produced, the tar-rubber blend is made of 97 per cent CF&I road tar and 3 per cent dry rubber.

The two components are mixed in a large tank. The road tar is piped into the tank and maintained at a temperature sufficient to facilitate blending of the dry rubber, which is added slowly while agitation continues. Additional heat is supplied as needed by steam coils in the tank.

For application on site, the blend is hot-mixed with aggregate at the ratio of approximately 6 per cent blend to 94 per cent aggregate. One thousand gallons of tar-rubber blend mixed with aggregate will cover about 10,000 square feet. than asphalt, the coating can be applied with standard road paving equipment. Once rolled flat, it sets up in minutes.

At both the Eielson and Elmendorf bases, the tar-rubber blend and aggregate mix was applied over a tack coat of CF&I RT-6, a light road tar. On the Ent job, the 8-inch thick concrete foundation pad was sprayed with a tack coat of RT-6, a 2½-inch layer of CF&I RT-12 road tar and aggregate, and a 11-inch coat of tar-rubber blend and aggregate.

Designer Starts New Blueprint, Design Business

As the city grows, so grow its builders . . . . And the men connected with the building trades. This growth in Colorado Spirngs has prompted "Butch" Douma into starting his own blueprint and design business.

Douma is an architectural designer who specializes in planning homes and small commercial layouts. His office opened for business Oct. 1.

His office is presently located in the Weller West-Side Lumber Co. building at 2732 W. Colorado Ave.

A graduate of the Engineering Drafting School in Denver, Douma served a hitch in the Army and was stationed at Fort Carson. While there, he began working in 1961 as a draftsman and designer for Vrooman Construction Co.

After discharge from the Army, Douma continued working for Vrooman until opening his new business.

Presently, he is doing most of his design work for building contractors, but also works with private parties who wish to build a new home, expand a present one or even remodel a single room.

The other facet of his business, blueprint service, includes making copies of original drawings. The latest blue-line print method is used for the blueprint duplicates. Blue-line, of course, is the latest method of blueprint reproduction, featuring blue drawing on white paper, instead of vice-versa.

Douma, a member of the Homebuilder's Association of Colorado Springs, has office hours from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., six days a week and can fulfill blueprint requirements at almost anytime. He also features a pick-up and delivery service.

Originally from Sioux City, Iowa, Douma currently lives with his wife and two children at 3120 W. Platte Ave.

The first seat belt was used in 1910 when Lt. Benjamin D. Foulis of the U.S. Army obtained a leather strap made by a saddlemaker and installed it in an army airplane.

The opening of Dividend's fifth station, at North Circle Drive and St. Vrain, is another milestone in the home-owned company's nearly seven years of service.

Chilean Gov. May Take Over Kennecott Copper

By United Press International

NEW YORK: The Chilean government may assume controlling interest of Kennecott.

Copper Corp.'s big subsidiary in that country and purchase a sizable but not majority stock participation in the properties of Anaconda, according to industry sources in Santiago.

Payment in both cases, it was said, would be mainly in the form of long-term bonds. Frank R. Milliken, president of Kennecott, would neither confirm nor deny the report. Anaconda President C. M. Brinckerhoff was not available for comment.

Firestone Has Reported Best Year in History

The Firestone Tire & Rubber Company today reported the best sales and earnings in its history for the fiscal year which ended Oct. 31.

Harvey S. Firestone Jr., chairman, and E. B. Hathaway, president, reported net sales of $1,448,830,863 and earnings of $79,030,245.

They said sales and income records were set in each quarter of the 1964 fiscal year. The company exceeded last year's sales of $1,382,049,301 by 4.8 per cent and 1963 earnings of $63,384,604 by 24.7 per cent.

Of the 11 native or resident Pennsylvanians who have been on a ticket as president or vice president of the United States—all have lost except two. They were President Buchanan and George M. Dallas, vice president under President James Polk.

MPR Branch Orders 150 Freight Cars

The American Refrigerator Transit Co., a majority-owned subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, today placed an order for 150 mechanically-refrigerated freight cars at a cost of approximately $4,500,000, Downing B. Jenks, president, announced.

To be built by the Pacific Car and Foundry Co., Seattle, Wash., the cars are scheduled for delivery beginning in March, 1965.

This new order brings to 2,216 the number of new freight cars being purchased by the Missouri Pacific and subsidiaries in 1965, along with 50 new diesel locomotives, at a cost of almost $45,000,000, Jenks said. Expenditures for capital improvements in 1965 will be approximately $60,000,000, he added.

Mary Kaye Trio Separates at Last

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — After 18 years together, the Mary Kaye Trio came to an amicable parting Friday.

Following the group's four-week run in the show lounge of a Las Vegas hotel, Mary Kaye plans to continue as a soloist. Her brother Norman said he will tend to his real estate business, while singer-comic Frank Ross plans to team with another comedian.

The trio is known for recordings of "My Funny Valentine" and "Lonesome Road."

UN Charter Incompatible With World Trade Rise

By SAM CAMPBELL

Officials of the U. S. Rubber Co. called on this reporter to give news of a plant expansion. In course of the discussion, they showed the firm's new typographical logo "UniRoyal" which is to replace the company name. They were kind enough to ask me what I thought of it.

"It makes me think," I replied, "that your president George Vila is trying to rename the company United Nations Rubber Co."

This was good for a laugh, because it was a reference to Mr. Vila's well known views favoring the world government now headquartered in New York. I was then assured that Mr. Vila's support of the U. N. was genuine and sincere because he is a strong believer in world trade.

At that point, I wished I had been face to face with the president of "UniRoyal," as the company will come to be known, for I think it only takes a few observations to show that the United Nations goes in a direction that is opposite to world trade.

In the first place, is it not true that the present-day hindrances to world trade — the tariffs, the red tape, the regulations — are created by governments?

After the American Revolution, is it not a fact of history that trade between the states was interrupted when the governments of those states imposed customs, tariffs and prohibitions on one another?

Is it not a matter of record that the U. S. Constitution was written for the purpose of suppressing internal trade barriers?

The answer to each question is "yes." So apparently what Vila and many prominent businessmen of like mind hope to accomplish through the United Nations is a repeat performance. As the U. S. Constitution suppressed internal trade barriers so they expect the U. N. Charter to suppress international trade barriers. They hope, in other words, to establish an umbrella of legal protection under which the products of all nations may freely move.

The objective is magnificent, but unfortunately for all — and especially for themselves — these gentlemen are less versed in the science of government than were the framers of The Constitution. They have not taken into consideration one vital point that was foremost in the minds of the founders of this country. The omission is crucial, and it dashes all reasonable expectation of profitable increase in world trade.

The authors of The Constitution understood that the regulation of commerce ought not to go so far as to interfere with the production of goods. So they set forth certain rights that pertain to the individual's personal freedom which includes his freedom to produce and to profit.

The U. N. Charter, on the other hand, embodies no such guarantees, either specifically or by implication. To the contrary, both the Charter itself and the United Nation's Declaration of Human Nights assert that the individual's rights are conditional. This means the individual has no certain guarantee of his freedom to produce and to profit.

Under such a "legal umbrella" as that, can you envision that production can continue on the same abundant scale as at present?

Is it not the height of folly to suppose that goods never created can ever be exchanged?

Christmas 1964

We wish to share our testimony with you at this Christmas Season. For the One promised of God the Father to Israel and the world is none other than His Son the Lord Jesus Christ, the Saviour of all who would accept Him. This we have done and are rejoicing in Him today.

In thinking back upon God's preparation for His Son's coming, we note with interest the following facts:

That the first announcement in the New Testament concerning the coming Messiah was made to Zacharias, a godly priest doing service in the temple, has unusual significance. For the last prophecy of the Old Testament told of the day when the Lord should "suddenly return to His temple". (Mal. 3:1) Also, that it was to Zacharias that a son, John, was to be born and that he should "go before the Lord, turning the hearts of the people". (Luke 1:5-17) This was the fulfillment of the prophecy found in the last words of the Old Testament which spoke of such a one. (Mal. 4:5)

That the second announcement was made to Mary, the virgin of the house of David. She was informed that she would bear a son by the Holy Ghost, that this son would be the fulfillment of the promises made to David in that one of his descendents would become the Lord's ruler over the Kingdom of which there would be no end. (I Chron. 17:11-14 with Luke 1:26-37)

Lastly, that the third announcement was made to Joseph, not as a father, but as a foster father. A penitent Israelite into whose home this Son was to be received. For to Joseph was revealed the fact that this Child should be named "Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins." (Matt. 1:21,22)

It is this Son, this Jesus, that we have invited into our hearts to become our Saviour. He it is that is the Prince of Peace and as such has brought peace into our hearts and lives that the world cannot take away.

It is to this One that we invite all who do not have this peace to come. Come as a penitent sinner and receive Him into your heart and He will become to you all that you need in this Christmas Season and throughout all the years ahead...yes, throughout all eternity.

May God bless you with a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Cafe Business Aided by Yule Shopping

You probably think families dine out more during pleasant summer weather — but that's not exactly the case.

Right now is just about as popular a time for eating out — especially at lunch and especially for mothers and children.

This was revealed in a study by the McDonalds' chain of hamburger restaurants, which numbers 645 units in 45 states.

The catch is Christmas shopping, McDonald's found.

Busy with shopping and other holiday preparations, more and more mothers are squeezing an extra hour or so into a jam-packed day by eliminating the time it takes to fix lunch and clean up afterward. If they're downtown, either alone or with children in tow, they stay down to eat. Or they schedule a lunch stop coming or going.

And this is the one time of year when children coming home from school at noon for a hot lunch are most likely to end up being taken out for a hamburger, McDonald's discovered.

Although the biggest rush is at noon, early dinner business is up too, with stores staying open evenings for Christmas shopping and families stocking up on hamburgers first, McDonald's also found. At dinner time, Dad is along too.

Big difference between eating out now and in summer time when the living is easy is in the ways families look at it. In summer, it's primarily an outing. Now, from mother's viewpoint anyhow, the big pull is convenience.

NEW 4-4-2 FOR '65—Oldsmobile for 1965 is introducing dimensions of performance—responsiveness, handing dimensions of performance — responsiveness, handling and road sense, it was announced today by Harold N. Metzel, the division's general manager and a vice president of General Motors. "The 4-4-2, derives its name from its specially developed 400 cubic inch engine, its 4-barrel carburetor and its two exhausts. "To match its performance," Metzel added, "the car is also equipped with heavy-duty drive train and suspension components, heavy-duty wheels and special tires for exceptional ride and handling characteristics."

Cafe Business Aided by Yule Shopping

You probably think families dine out more during pleasant summer weather — but that's not exactly the case.

Right now is just about as popular a time for eating out — especially at lunch and especially for mothers and children.

This was revealed in a study by the McDonalds' chain of hamburger restaurants, which numbers 645 units in 45 states.

The catch is Christmas shopping, McDonald's found.

Busy with shopping and other holiday preparations, more and more mothers are squeezing an extra hour or so into a jam-packed day by eliminating the time it takes to fix lunch and clean up afterward. If they're downtown, either alone or with children in tow, they stay down to eat. Or they schedule a lunch stop coming or going.

And this is the one time of year when children coming home from school at noon for a hot lunch are most likely to end up being taken out for a hamburger, McDonald's discovered.

Although the biggest rush is at noon, early dinner business is up too, with stores staying open evenings for Christmas shopping and families stocking up on hamburgers first, McDonald's also found. At dinner time, Dad is along too.

Big difference between eating out now and in summer time when the living is easy is in the ways families look at it. In summer, it's primarily an outing. Now, from mother's viewpoint anyhow, the big pull is convenience.

Following the group's four-week run in the show lounge of a Las Vegas hotel, Mary Kaye plans to continue as a soloist. Her brother Norman said he will tend to his real estate business, while singer-comic Frank Ross plans to team with another comedian.

The trio is known for recordings of "My Funny Valentine" and "Lonesome Road."

UN Charter Incompatible With World Trade Rise

By SAM CAMPBELL

Officials of the U. S. Rubber Co. called on this reporter to give news of a plant expansion. In course of the discussion, they showed the firm's new typographical logo "UniRoyal" which is to replace the company name. They were kind enough to ask me what I thought of it.

"It makes me think," I replied, "that your president George Vila is trying to rename the company United Nations Rubber Co."

This was good for a laugh, because it was a reference to Mr. Vila's well known views favoring the world government now headquartered in New York. I was then assured that Mr. Vila's support of the U. N. was genuine and sincere because he is a strong believer in world trade.

At that point, I wished I had been face to face with the president of "UniRoyal," as the company will come to be known, for I think it only takes a few observations to show that the United Nations goes in a direction that is opposite to world trade.

In the first place, is it not true that the present-day hindrances to world trade — the tariffs, the red tape, the regulations — are created by governments?

After the American Revolution, is it not a fact of history that trade between the states was interrupted when the governments of those states imposed customs, tariffs and prohibitions on one another?

Is it not a matter of record that the U. S. Constitution was written for the purpose of suppressing internal trade barriers?

The answer to each question is "yes." So apparently what Vila and many prominent businessmen of like mind hope to accomplish through the United Nations is a repeat performance. As the U. S. Constitution suppressed internal trade barriers so they expect the U. N. Charter to suppress international trade barriers. They hope, in other words, to establish an umbrella of legal protection under which the products of all nations may freely move.

The objective is magnificent, but unfortunately for all — and especially for themselves — these gentlemen are less versed in the science of government than were the framers of The Constitution. They have not taken into consideration one vital point that was foremost in the minds of the founders of this country. The omission is crucial, and it dashes all reasonable expectation of profitable increase in world trade.

The authors of The Constitution understood that the regulation of commerce ought not to go so far as to interfere with the production of goods. So they set forth certain rights that pertain to the individual's personal freedom which includes his freedom to produce and to profit.

The U. N. Charter, on the other hand, embodies no such guarantees, either specifically or by implication. To the contrary, both the Charter itself and the United Nation's Declaration of Human Nights assert that the individual's rights are conditional. This means the individual has no certain guarantee of his freedom to produce and to profit.

Under such a "legal umbrella" as that, can you envision that production can continue on the same abundant scale as at present?

Is it not the height of folly to suppose that goods never created can ever be exchanged?

Christmas 1964

PAUL HESSE

We wish to share our testimony with you at this Christmas Season. For the One promised of God the Father to Israel and the world is none other than His Son the Lord Jesus Christ, the Saviour of all who would accept Him. This we have done and are rejoicing in Him today.

In thinking back upon God's preparation for His Son's coming, we note with interest the following facts:

That the first announcement in the New Testament concerning the coming Messiah was made to Zacharias, a godly priest doing service in the temple, has unusual significance. For the last prophecy of the Old Testament told of the day when the Lord should "suddenly return to His temple". (Mal. 3:1) Also, that it was to Zacharias that a son, John, was to be born and that he should "go before the Lord, turning the hearts of the people". (Luke 1:8-17) This was the fulfillment of the prophecy found in the last words of the Old Testament which spoke of such a one. (Mal. 4:5)

That the second announcement was made to Mary, the virgin of the house of David. She was informed that she would bear a son by the Holy Ghost, that this son would be the fulfillment of the promises made to David in that one of his descendents would become the Lord's ruler over the Kingdom of which there would be no end. (I Chron. 17:11-14 with Luke 1:26-37)

Lastly, that the third announcement was made to Joseph, not as a father, but as a foster father. A penitent Israelite into whose home this Son was to be received. For to Joseph was revealed the fact that this Child should be named "Jesus, for He shall save His people from their sins." (Matt. 1:21,22)

It is this Son, this Jesus, that we have invited into our hearts to become our Saviour. He it is that is the Prince of Peace and as such has brought peace into our hearts and lives that the world cannot take away.

It is to this One that we invite all who do not have this peace to come. Come as a penitent sinner and receive Him into your heart and He will become to you all that you need in this Christmas Season and throughout all the years ahead...yes, throughout all eternity.

May God bless you with a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Pikes Peak Santa Proves Kindly Elf to Needy

Santa Claus is a mighty kindly old elf, and no one realizes this quite as well as the many orphans, underprivileged young people, and the mentally disturbed whom Santa at the North Pole, home of Santa's Workshop, has hosted this holiday season.

Operation Toylift is an annual affair. Money for this project comes from Santa's Workshop Corporation, from money visitors throw into the wishing well during the year, and from suppliers for the North Pole shops.

On December 7th, Santa, the magician and his helper, also George Haggard of the North Pole, and a gnome left by air on a trip that took them to five cities, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Dallas, Ft. Worth, and Wichita.

There they were met at the airports by orphans from 21 different homes. Over 1100 appropriate presents were given, and the children very much enjoyed the program arranged for them. Trucking firms meet the plane at each stop with the wrapped packages of toys.

Earlier this year over 300 orphans from six different Denver orphanages were guests of Santa's at the Workshop. Each had a gift, rides, and cookies and hot chocolate on the house. They came by train and bus.

The Colorado State Psychopathic Hospital comes in for its share of festivities each year.

Four groups of adults, and one group of Cub and Boy Scouts from the institution in Pueblo, as well as about 100 patients fromt he Denver-Arapahoe Center have visited North Pole as guests this year.

This bit of normal, fun activity seems to do wonders for these folks. Then, in December a troop of people and pets from the Pole visited the childrens' ward at the hospital in Pueblo to put on a wonderful party for them with gifts and good things to eat. About 124 youngsters atended this party.

Locally, there have been visitors from Hope House, from the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind, and from the Day Nursery and Stratton Home. These folk enjoy the privileges of the place, at no expense to them, and they love it.

Since Santa's Worskhop is a corporation; these charities, necessarily, must show some return, other than the satisfaction received from doing something nice for somebody. The return is in the form of advertising. Our correspondents, for the most part, are most generous with their publicity given these projects, and good publicity is worth the world and all to a corporation of this kind.

Despite the many paid ads and billboards and brochures, the best publicity is still favorous with their publicity given able personal comment. This means the employees at the workshop must at all times be friends to the visitors, and be attractive. Summer time sees from 70 to 77 employes working at Santa's Workshop, many of them young college age people.

They are carefully screened from the three to 500 applications that come in from all over the country, then notified, if they are hired, in February or March. They, too, become publicity agents in their own part of the country when they return.

On a busy summer day over 3000 visitors go through the magic portals of Santa's Workshop in one day. This entails a cleanliness problem, of course, and many of the employees are on clean-up detail, only, during this busy season.

The gate fee entitles a visitor to the privileges of the park, i. e., the showmen and artisans, the pets, the attractive atmosphere and many things to see and enjoy, and the indefinable something that puts a glow into a day. Perhaps it's peace. We like to think so. A free gate pass is offered any visitor who pays the gate fee once in a season.

The workshop will be open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., through Dec. 24. It is closed Mondays.

Person's Hopes Are Blasted Once More

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) —The failure of a 48-hour Peronist "general strike" appeared today to have blasted ex-President Juan D. Peron's last hope of returning to power in Argentina.

Labor ministry officials said barely 12 per cent of Argentina's 9 million workers heeded the strike call issued by the 62 Peronist-dominated unions which control the CGT union federation. A few factories were forced to close, but the walkout had almost no other effect on daily life.

Right Kind of Spending Now Means Tax Savings

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of people can save money by spending more right now. The money will be saved in taxes. The money spent must be for the right things, in the right way: charitable contributions, doctor bills, interest due, state and local tax bills due.

If you're in love, you could save tax money by getting married before New Year's Day. If you're moving to a new job in another town and the costs are up to you, you might save by transferring now rather than waiting to celebrate the New Year with your present neighbors.

Or you might save in the long run by the money you don't take in right now — by delaying to mail bills, or to dun people for interest due, or to cash in those paper profits to get money for the holidays. You might save by admitting you picked some sour ones this year in the stock market and selling the stock and taking your loss — now, not sometime next year.

These possibilities arise because the federal income tax rates, which were cut on 1964 incomes, go down another notch in 1965. In 1963 the tax brackets ran from 20 per cent to 91 per cent. This year you pay from 16 to 77 per cent depending on how much income is subject to tax. The drop next year isn't that steep, but it's still something to consider. The 1965 rates will range from 14 to 70 per cent — and Congress could always get still more generous.

So you'll pay less on the same amount of income next year. Therefore, any deduction this year will mean more money left over after taxes. And any income that can legally be put over till next year will be subject to a smaller bite from the U.S. Treasury.

Many people can't do much about it. But many can. And here are some of the possibilities:

Study your profit and loss sheet. Time is growing short. If you have paper losses on stocks or other investments, you can take the loss and use it to offset any capital gains up to $1,000. And under the new law, losses above $1,000 taken now can be carried forward to future years.

You may want to take profits now if you're among the really lucky ones sure of much higher income next year that will be pushing you into a higher bracket than you're in now.

Pay all the bills now that are deductible — doctors and dentists, taxes and interest due this year. Don't put it off till next year just because your creditor is lenient.

Remember, under the new law, contributions to all public charities are now allowed as deductible up to 30 per cent. This actually cuts the cost to the giver by the amount of tax saved — and the saving will be more under this year's tax rate than next.

Some people may be working at cross purposes just now. Some will be anxious to pay bills by Dec. 31, while others may want to delay sending such bills till January, so the receipts will be subject to the new rates.

Weddings may cost the father of the bride plenty. But the bridegroom will get another exemption, plus a lower assessment schedule.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

Pikes Peak Santa Proves Kindly Elf to Needy

Santa Claus is a mighty kindly old elf, and no one realizes this quite as well as the many orphans, underprivileged young people, and the mentally disturbed whom Santa at the North Pole, home of Santa's Workshop, has hosted this holiday season.

Operation Toylift is an annual affair. Money for this project comes from Santa's Workshop Corporation, from money visitors throw into the wishing well during the year, and from suppliers for the North Pole shops.

On December 7th, Santa, the magician and his helper, also George Haggard of the North Pole, and a gnome left by air on a trip that took them to five cities, Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Dallas, Ft. Worth, and Wichita.

There they were met at the airports by orphans from 21 different homes. Over 1100 appropriate presents were given, and the children very much enjoyed the program arranged for them. Trucking firms meet the plane at each stop with the wrapped packages of toys.

Earlier this year over 300 orphans from six different Denver orphanages were guests of Santa's at the Workshop. Each had a gift, rides, and cookies and hot chocolate on the house. They came by train and bus.

The Colorado State Psychopathic Hospital comes in for its share of festivities each year.

Four groups of adults, and one group of Cub and Boy Scouts from the institution in Pueblo, as well as about 100 patients fromt he Denver-Arapahoe Center have visited North Pole as guests this year.

This bit of normal, fun activity seems to do wonders for these folks. Then, in December a troop of people and pets from the Pole visited the childrens' ward at the hospital in Pueblo to put on a wonderful party for them with gifts and good things to eat. About 124 youngsters atended this party.

Locally, there have been visitors from Hope House, from the Colorado School for the Deaf and Blind, and from the Day Nursery and Stratton Home. These folk enjoy the privileges of the place, at no expense to them, and they love it.

Since Santa's Worskhop is a corporation; these charities, necessarily, must show some return, other than the satisfaction received from doing something nice for somebody. The return is in the form of advertising. Our correspondents, for the most part, are most generous with their publicity given these projects, and good publicity is worth the world and all to a corporation of this kind.

Despite the many paid ads and billboards and brochures, the best publicity is still favorous with their publicity given able personal comment. This means the employees at the workshop must at all times be friends to the visitors, and be attractive. Summer time sees from 70 to 77 employes working at Santa's Workshop, many of them young college age people.

They are carefully screened from the three to 500 applications that come in from all over the country, then notified, if they are hired, in February or March. They, too, become publicity agents in their own part of the country when they return.

On a busy summer day over 3000 visitors go through the magic portals of Santa's Workshop in one day. This entails a cleanliness problem, of course, and many of the employees are on clean-up detail, only, during this busy season.

The gate fee entitles a visitor to the privileges of the park, i. e., the showmen and artisans, the pets, the attractive atmosphere and many things to see and enjoy, and the indefinable something that puts a glow into a day. Perhaps it's peace. We like to think so. A free gate pass is offered any visitor who pays the gate fee once in a season.

The workshop will be open from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., through Dec. 24. It is closed Mondays.

Dear Abby--

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Leading Question

DEAR ABBY: My husband died in 1951 and he left in excess $700,000, and I was cheated out of every dime of it. None of the lawyers in this town will touch my case with a tenfoot pole. My husband had liver trouble. He was operated on for it, and his doctor told me himself that the operation was successful, but in nine days my husband was dead. I refused to pay the bill because that doctor had lied to me. When my husband's will was read I was cut out of it except for a few dollars I was supposed to live on. When I protested, they tried to prove I was crazy. They are still trying to prove it. His sisters got everything. THEY are the crazy ones. Money crazy. Can you help me get out of here?—CHEATED

DEAR CHEATED: Where are you?

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with this boy for two years and we recently became engaged. He suddenly was notified that he has an opportunity to go to West Point. I knew he always wanted a military career but I never though he'd get an appointment to West Point. If he goes, it means we can't get married for four years. I plan to go to college, and the thought of my sitting in the dorm for four years does not appeal to me. I love him, Abby, but I don't know whether to let him accept this appointment or not. I am 19 and he is 20. This is quite a shock to me as it wasn't in our plans. I would like some advice about what to do. — UPSET.

DEAR UPSET: If you really loved him, you'd not only "let" him accept the appointment, you'd encourage him, knowing that he always wanted an Army career. Your chief concern seems to be the unhappy prospect of "sitting in the dorm for four years." A career man's wife needs more understanding than you appear to have. Level with him. And ask him to level with you. I think you could both probably do better in the choice of lifetime partners.

DEAR ABBY: I just found out my girl friend kept a diary of our dates and she wrote a bunch of stuff in it that never happened. It was all out of her imagination. Her mother read it and now refuses to let her date me. Abby, we never did anything wrong. What can I do? —NOT GUILTY

DEAR NOT GUILTY: Proclaim your innocence and hope her mother believes you. And next time you become interested in a girl who goes in for creative writing, suggest she use an outlet other than her diary for her talents.

FPC Hears Arguments in Gas Sales Case

WASHINGTON (AP)— A Federal Power Commission examiner heard argument Friday on proposals for construction of facilities for the sale of natural gas to Cities Service Gas Co. of Oklahoma City.

An attorney for one of the companies said the additional gas would be used by Cities Service to meet expected demands of distributor companies in the Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Nebraska area.

Transwestern Pipeline Co., Houston, Tex., and Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., Shreveport, La., propose to sell 50 million cubic feet of gas a day to Cities Service in 1965, increasing the amount to 100 million cubic feet a day each in 1966.

Cities Service proposes to build a 36-mile line from its Saginaw compressor station in Newton County, Mo., to Jane, Mo., and install other facilities which would be used to receive and transport the additional gas, to be purchased from Arkansas Louisiana and Transwestern.

Colorado Interstate Gas Co., Colorado Springs, Colo., has proposed sale to Cities Service of volumes of gas equivalent to those which Arkansas Louisiana and Transwestern seek to provide in the pending case.

Examiner Max L. Kane heard attorneys for the various companies support their respective applications.

Cities Service expressed an unwillingness at this time to accept the Colorado Interstate proposal for supplying the gas. It took the position that supplies should come from Transwestern and Arkansas Louisiana, through Cities Service's proposed facilities.

The FPC staff recommended approval of Colorado Interstate's application.

Duty assignments include staff legal officer at air stations, naval bases, fleet staffs, district headquarters, and the Office of the Judge Advocate General. Detailed literature available.

Public Information Officer: Works with public information services to aid Navy public relations such as arranging for Navy participation in ceremonies, displays and guest cruises. He ensures that all newsworthy naval events are brought to the attention of communications media. Other assignments may range to speech writer, historian, or cameraman. PEO specialists are assigned to fleet and district staffs in the U.S. and abroad.

Civil Engineer Corps: Officers are the Navy's Seabees of World War II fame. They work as engineers, architects, public works administrators, and contract inspectors. They supervise the maintenance repair of all vehicles including autos, trucks and heavy industrial equipment. They maintain naval housing. A CEC officer is described as a Leader - Engineer Administrator - Industrialist - Financier-Diplomat.

Individuals with degrees in the healing arts meeting the general qualifications outlined below are also eligible.

Agrarian Reform Dimmed in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Eduardo Frei would like to use the revenue from a planned capital tax for agrarian reform but prospects of getting the tax through congress seem dim.

The capital tax bill would be imposed on personal assets of all persons living in Chile and would range from 1.5 to 3 per cent annually. Business firms would not be included.

Frei's government has successfully concluded an agreement to become a major stockholding partner of the U.S.-owned Anaconda and Kennecott companies. Both are copper mining concerns.

Businessmen Do Not See 'Problem Year'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of business executives held a long White House conference with President Johnson Friday and afterward a spokesman said he and his colleagues do not regard 1965 as a "problem year" for the nation's economy.

Frederick Kappel, chairman of the board of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., made this remark when told there have been some predictions of a letdown in the economy in mid-year. He said some business leaders expressed more optimism about the year than did others.

Kappel, who is chairman of the blue-ribbon business council, said that the business community feels Johnson has been "extremely wise in his thoughtful evaluation of business and the economy."

FPC Hears Arguments in Gas Sales Case

WASHINGTON (AP)— A Federal Power Commission examiner heard argument Friday on proposals for construction of facilities for the sale of natural gas to Cities Service Gas Co. of Oklahoma City.

An attorney for one of the companies said the additional gas would be used by Cities Service to meet expected demands of distributor companies in the Kansas, Missouri, Arkansas and Nebraska area.

Transwestern Pipeline Co., Houston, Tex., and Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., Shreveport, La., propose to sell 50 million cubic feet of gas a day to Cities Service in 1965, increasing the amount to 100 million cubic feet a day each in 1966.

Cities Service proposes to build a 36-mile line from its Saginaw compressor station in Newton County, Mo., to Jane, Mo., and install other facilities which would be used to receive and transport the additional gas, to be purchased from Arkansas Louisiana and Transwestern.

Colorado Interstate Gas Co., Colorado Springs, Colo., has proposed sale to Cities Service of volumes of gas equivalent to those which Arkansas Louisiana and Transwestern seek to provide in the pending case.

Examiner Max L. Kane heard attorneys for the various companies support their respective applications.

Cities Service expressed an unwillingness at this time to accept the Colorado Interstate proposal for supplying the gas. It took the position that supplies should come from Transwestern and Arkansas Louisiana, through Cities Service's proposed facilities.

The FPC staff recommended approval of Colorado Interstate's application.

The amount received will be commensurate with credits earned through participation in training programs and completion of correspondence courses. Opportunity is afforded for advancement and to receive full credit for inactive service when computing longevity pay. Each officer may apply for two weeks training each year, during which full pay and allowances of his rank is received. At the time of commissioning application may be made for active duty with augmentation into the Regular Navy.

The following restricted line officer specialties are open:

Agrarian Reform Dimmed in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Eduardo Frei would like to use the revenue from a planned capital tax for agrarian reform but prospects of getting the tax through congress seem dim.

The capital tax bill would be imposed on personal assets of all persons living in Chile and would range from 1.5 to 3 per cent annually. Business firms would not be included.

Frei's government has successfully concluded an agreement to become a major stockholding partner of the U.S.-owned Anaconda and Kennecott companies. Both are copper mining concerns.

Businessmen Do Not See 'Problem Year'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of business executives held a long White House conference with President Johnson Friday and afterward a spokesman said he and his colleagues do not regard 1965 as a "problem year" for the nation's economy.

Frederick Kappel, chairman of the board of American Telephone and Telegraph Co., made this remark when told there have been some predictions of a letdown in the economy in midyear. He said some business leaders expressed more optimism about the year than did others.

Kappel, who is chairman of the blue-ribbon business council, said that the business community feels Johnson has been "extremely wise in his thoughtful evaluation of business and the economy."

Stronger Fair Housing Law Is Proposed

DENVER (AP) — The Colorado Anti-Discrimination Commission has approved a number of recommendations to strengthen the state's fair housing law.

The major proposals, announced after a meeting Friday by the chairman of the commission, Mrs. Dora Piccoli of Durango, included:

A misdemeanor fine of from $100 to $500 for violations of the Fair Housing Act of 1959.

Giving the commission the power to seek injunctions, limited to 60 days, to enforce the act.

Making violators subject to civil damages for violations of the law.

Elimination of a loophole in the law which exempts those homes still occupied by the owner. Proponents of a stronger law contend this permits owners to discriminate in the sale of the property on the basis of race, color, creed, sex, national origin or ancestry.

The proposals will be submitted to Gov. John Love. They go further than the suggestions of a special committee Love appointed to study the 1959 act. Love's action came after civil rights organizations and a group of legislators petitioned the governor to put fair housing on the 1964 session of the Legislature. He declined, pending the study.

Several housing bills are expected during the session of the Legislature opening Jan. 6. One will come from the governor's committee. Another has been drafted by a newly elected House Democrat, Gerald Kopel of Denver.

The 1959 act generally prohibits discrimination in the sale and rental of housing in Colorado, though the State Supreme Court has held that the commission has less power than its members thought it had.

Under the commission's proposal, a person seeking remedy for violations of the act would have three courses of action.

He could go to court seeking civil damages; he could file a complaint under the criminal section, or he could complain to the commission in an attempt to settle the dispute.

County Residents Buying More New Cars Than Ever

Residents of El Paso County have gone in for automobile buying in a big way in the last two or three years, the figures show.

As a result, there are more smart-looking new cars to be seen on the local streets and roads and fewer of the old vintage models.

Also noted, as another effect of the buying surge, only a small proportion of the local population are now without cars. The trend in many families, in fact, has been toward two-car ownership.

The details are reported in a nationwide market study, published by the Standard Rate and Data Service.

It shows that El Paso County's auto population is bigger today than it has ever been. As of the beginning of this year, there were 121 cars locally for every 100 families.

This was a larger ratio than was noted in 1960, when the average was 115 cars per 100 families.

The steady rise in car ownership reflects the economic wellbeing in the United States during the past few years. Incomes have gone up for most people and, therefore, their ability to spend more money for cars.

In El Paso County, the net effect of the automobile boom has been an increase of 14.0 percent in passenger car registrations since 1960.

The growing number of two-car families is credited by the industry with having contributed in no small measure to the record-breaking volume of sales.

The Automobile Manufacturers Association notes that about one out of every six families in the country has more than one car. The number of such families has doubled in the last nine years.

Much of the increase has been due to the teen-agers, who try to get behind the wheel of a car the moment they reach the driver-license age.

In El Paso County, almost 21 percent of the families now have more than one car, the report shows.

Hopes that car operators would get a tax break next year as a result of the plan to cut excise taxes on various items, received a jolt recently when Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillion indicated that it wouldn't be possible.

He pointed out that taxes on gasoline, oil, tires and the like are earmarked to pay for the

Yule Regret Putting off Dental Visit Till Holidays

"Christmas is a'coming, and the geese are getting fat.
Please to put a penny in the old man's hat.
If you haven't got a penny,
then a ha'penny will do.
If you haven't got a ha'penny,
then God bless you.

My kids used to recite this at Christmas time, when they were little. We often talk about the fun and presents, family reunions and good food. But for thousands of students coming home for this holiday it means something else: whirlwind dentistry.

It's incredible that most of these charming young people were around all summer and couldn't find time to have their teeth fixed. So this vacation is turned into a tooth-cleaning, cavity-filling, wisdom tooth extracting-orgy.

Who's to blame? I suppose we're all to blame: dentists, mothers, children. We three share the responsibility, and so must share the blame.

Dentists attempt to recall patients at regular intervals. They lay aside time before school starts in September and also during holidays to specially care for prep school and college students. Pressure of the usual workload makes it somewhat difficult to fit in last-minute appointments, and some really are last-minute.

Mothers are so busy with various activities plus household duties that concentration on needs of children is sometimes diluted.

In some families, children are made responsible for their own dental appointments. But children are apt to be careless about their general health and body care, especially teeth.

Unless front teeth are involved and they look awful, or they've had a toothache for a month, there is little motivation for tooth care. Even brushing is a nuisance.

Some children have two dentists: the family dentist and one in the college town. These kids never seem to get their dentistry completed, because they assure each dentist that the other will finish the work. And so it goes.

Children who are away most of the year should have teeth cleaned, examined, and all dentistry completed before returning to school in the fall.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letter of general interest will be answered in this column.

Bullet Removed From Lung of Georgia Man

By KATHRYN JOHNSON

ATLANTA (AP) — A 35-year-old man who accidentally shot himself in the thigh has had the bullet removed — from his lung.

The bullet, washed through the bloodstream, passed through his heart and into his lung.

Herbert Fowler, manager of a private club at Rome, Ga., underwent surgery last week at Emory University Hospital here, two weeks after accidentally shooting himself when his pistol fell out of his pocket.

Fowler, at the club when the accident occurred, received immediate treatment from his doctor. An X-ray showed the 22-caliber bullet lodged in his thigh and it was decided to leave it there where it was unlikely to do any harm.

Fowler then went back to work. Two weeks later he had sharp chest pains. He again consulted his doctor who X-rayed his chest. The doctor saw the same 22-caliber bullet, this time in Fowler's lung.

His surgeon, who declined to be named, said "the bullet must first have lodged near a large vein in Fowler's thigh. It then obviously worked itself into the vein and traveled the vein route with his blood all the way up through his heart and into the lung.

"It's a very unusual case," the doctor added. "Even more unusual than the case last week in Portland, Maine, in which a bullet traveled from a man's head into his heart, where it was removed. At least that bullet flowed down, with the pull of gravity."

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

Yule Regret Putt'ng off Dental Visit Till Holidays

"Christmas is a'coming, and
the geese are getting fat.
Please to put a penny in the old man's hat.
If you haven't got a penny,
then a ha'penny will do.
If you haven't got a ha'penny,
then God bless you.

My kids used to recite this at Christmas time, when they were little. We often talk about the fun and presents, family reunions and good food. But for thousands of students coming home for this holiday it means something else: whirlwind dentistry.

It's incredible that most of these charming young people were around all summer and couldn't find time to have their teeth fixed. So this vacation is turned into a tooth-cleaning, cavity-filling, wisdom tooth extracting-orgy.

Who's to blame? I suppose we're all to blame: dentists, mothers, children. We three share the responsibility, and so must share the blame.

Dentists attempt to recall patients at regular intervals. They lay aside time before school starts in September and also during holidays to specially care for prep school and college students. Pressure of the usual workload makes it somewhat difficult to fit in last-minute appointments, and some really are last-minute.

Mothers are so busy with various activities plus household duties that concentration on needs of children is sometimes diluted.

In some families, children are made responsible for their own dental appointments. But children are apt to be careless about their general health and body care, especially teeth.

Unless front teeth are involved and they look awful, or they've had a toothache for a month, there is little motivation for tooth care. Even brushing is a nuisance.

Some children have two dentists: the family dentist and one in the college town. These kids never seem to get their dentistry completed, because they assure each dentist that the other will finish the work. And so it goes.

Children who are away most of the year should have teeth cleaned, examined, and all dentistry completed before returning to school in the fall.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letter of general interest will be answered in this column.

Bullet Removed From Lung of Georgia Man

By KATHRYN JOHNSON

ATLANTA (AP) — A 35-year-old man who accidentally shot himself in the thigh has had the bullet removed — from his lung.

The bullet, washed through the bloodstream, passed through his heart and into his lung.

Herbert Fowler, manager of a private club at Rome, Ga., underwent surgery last week at Emory University Hospital here, two weeks after accidentally shooting himself when his pistol fell out of his pocket.

Fowler, at the club when the accident occurred, received immediate treatment from his doctor. An X-ray showed the 22-caliber bullet lodged in his thigh and it was decided to leave it there where it was unlikely to do any harm.

Fowler then went back to work. Two weeks later he had sharp chest pains. He again consulted his doctor who X-rayed his chest. The doctor saw the same 22-caliber bullet, this time in Fowler's lung.

His surgeon, who declined to be named, said "the bullet must first have lodged near a large vein in Fowler's thigh. It then obviously worked itself into the vein and traveled the vein route with his blood all the way up through his heart and into the lung.

"It's a very unusual case," the doctor added. "Even more unusual than the case last week in Portland, Maine, in which a bullet traveled from a man's head into his heart, where it was removed. At least that bullet flowed down, with the pull of gravity."

Driver Education Film Series To Bear Fruit

A two - year program of development, test and evaluation will bear fruit this fall with the nationwide distribution of a driver education film series to high schools desiring the program.

Produced as a public service by Standard Oil Division American Oil Company in cooperation with the National Education Association's Commission on Safety Education, the series consist of eight, 4½ minute film covering specific hard-to-teach situations. Topics include: freeway driving, sudden emergencies, the power train, and other subjects requiring moving picture interpretation as an aid to classroom instruction.

Decision to expand the program's scope to the national level comes as the result of a six - month test program in four midwestern states, according to Robert L. Uttley, Supervisor, Youth and Educational Activities in the oil company's Chicago general office. Concluded last spring, the test indicated highly favorable teacher acceptance and student response.

The film set is offered in three versions . . . cartridge-contained 8mm., standard 8mm. and sound 16mm., Uttley said. Direct mailing of descriptive brochures and order blanks to educators across the nation begins this week and advertisements are being placed in educator periodicals. The complete package, including teacher's guide, is available to schools at cost.

Uttley noted also that numerous requests for the films have been received from law enforcement agencies, insurance companies, and other safety-minded organizations.

Dr. Norman Key, executive secretary of the National Commission Safety Education, points out that one of the limitations of classroom presentation of driver education has been the inadequacy of words in creating a mental image of typical highway situations.

ARADCOM

Almost any day of our life we can look at the sky and see the wonders of aviation. We see aircraft ranging from the odd-looking helicopter with its rotary blade churning to the graceful, multi-engine jet liner leaving its vapor trail patterns behind.

If you're like this writer, your thoughts probably go no further than the glamour of the pilot, if that far. 8

The job of putting a plane in the air is not only confined to the aviator. On the ground, a complete crew of personnel is responsible for the capability of an airplane to fly. Most important are the mechanics.

ftaff Sgt. Darwin L. Teter, line chief with the Army Air Defense Command Aviation Section, has the responsibility of immediate supervision over the section's eight mechanics.

The sergeant and his crew command aircraft in constant ARADCOM headquarters' five command aircraft inconstant flying condition. The planes, which are the U-8 type, known in civilian aviation as the Twin Bonanza made by Beechcraft, are used to transport members of the command headquarters throughout the country.

In addition to supervising the dchanics, Sergeant Teter, a highly qualified mechanic himself, is the one that makes the "in-flight" inspection of aircraft after the maintenance work has been completed. These inspections are made to insure the plane is airworthy.

Sergeant Teter also travels with the Command Maintenance Inspection Team to the various headquarters of ARADCOM's five regions, located throughout the country, inspecting their aircraft for air worthiness.

The sergeant entered the service in 1952 with the Marine Corps. It was during his tour of duty with the Marines that he received his aviation training at the Naval Air Training Center, Memphis, Tenn.

His first major assignment with the Marines was in Korea as an aviation mechanic, from 1953 to 1954. Upon his return from Korea he was assigned to the Great Lakes Naval Air Station, Ill., where he served until his discharge in 1955.

During the time from his discharge from the Marines until his reenlistment in the Army in 1956, he worked as an aviation mechanic for the Remmit-Warner Aircraft Corp., in Cleveland, Ohio.

Sergeant Teter, who has spent his entire military career in aviation, first joined ARADCOM in 1959 at Selfridge Air Force Base, Mich., with the 28th Air Defense Artillery Group, which provides Army missile units for the protection of Detroit against air attack.

In 1960, he was transferred from Selfridge to ARADCOM headquarters in Colorado Springs.

Second tour of duty in Korea, with the 7th Logistics Command's Aviation Detachment, came in 1962.

He returned to Colorado Springs and his present assignment in 1963.

Sergeant Teter, a native of Adrian, Mich., says his career in aviation came by choice not chance and that he wouldn't change it for any other type of work. Of the experience he has that the military has given him "an opportunity to work with a large variety of aircraft," among which are the L-19 (Pipper Cub), helicopter of various types, the multi-engine DC-6 and the U-8.

"This kind of experience in only 12 years would be rather hard to find elsewhere," says Sergeant Teter.

The sergeant, who likes to spend his spare time on a "runway" of a bowling alley, his wife, Loretta, and their 5-month-old son, Eric, live at 3100 North Wood Ave.

23-Year-Old Woman Finds Her Father

BATON ROUE, La. (UPI)—A 23-year-old woman who vowed at the age of eight to find the father she never knew will be with him Christmas day, thanks to a merchant's generosity.

Mrs. Norman McAtee was born in California after her parents separated. It was this year before she learned the name of her grandmother in Denver. Her grandmother arranged the reunion with her father, who lives near Denver.

But Mrs. McAtee's long illness had drained the family finances, and the reunion appeared impossible. Her husband is a draftsman and the couple has three children.

Covenant Makes Auto Safety Family Affair

An unusual campaign to help curb the nation's highway death toll has been undertaken by The Ohio Casualty Group of Insurance Companys, according to Louis J. Teeuwen of Smartt Realty & Insurance Company, local representative of the insurance group.

The campaign introduces a "Family Covenant" in which all driving-age members of a family pledge to each other strict observance of the rules of traffic safety. The covenant includes the seven basic principles of safe driving. It is to be signed by each member of the family, and is printed on a card which may be attached to a sun visor as a constant reminder of promises made.

"This campaign points up the fact that traffic safety must be a family affair," said Mr. Teeuwen. "Those of us who are parents should set the example for our young people and join with them in practicing safe driving habits."

National Safety Council figures show that deaths on the highway reached an all - time high of 43,000 in 1963. Yet for the first nine months of this year the number of motor vehicle fatalities is up another 10 per cent over the corresponding period of 1963.

Signers of Ohio Casualty's Family Covenant make their pledge not to some outside authroity, not to the father or mother of the family, but to each other — "because of our love for each other and regard for the lives and safety of our fellow citizens." The covenant's seven rules of safety are:

(1) We will drive always at reasonable speeds, being specially careful to keep within specified speed limits and ever alert for children who dart into our path. (2) We will never be tempted to "show off" or to race with other cars — or railroad trains. (3) We will slow down at intersections and look both ways before proceeding, and even though we may have the right of way we will never contest it with another. (4) We will observe all highway markings designed to promote safety, and will never cross a yellow line or similar marking in our lane. (5) In passing another car, we will remember always to "look ahead of the car ahead." We will not pass another car on a hill or within 100 feet of an intersection. (6) If the car we are driving is equipped with seat belts, we will use them at all times. (7) We will not drive while under the influence of intoxicants or ride in a car driven by one who is under the influence of intoxicants.

Copies of Ohio Casualty's Family Covenant pledge card may be obtained by calling or writing to Smartt Realty and Insurance Company, 2502 East Bijou St., Phone 633-5541.

Florence Swept By Final Yule Activities

Swept by the usual rush and press of final Christmas shopping, plays, concerts, parties, drawings, and school programs, residents of Florence and eastern Fremont County braced for the last-minute "everything" this week.

John Fox, chairman of the Florence Chamber of Commerce Retail Merchant's division, announced that the final four days of the annual Greenback Days will be staged beginning Saturday.

The annual school district Christmas concert was staged Thursday at the Florence High School auditorium, and Tuesday the Florence Elks Lodge will play host to children of the trade area at a free show to be held at 10 a.m. at the Florence high school auditorium.

School will let out for all children in district Re-2 (J) at noon Wednesday. There will be no hot lunch on this date, according Barto Babitz, superintendent of schools.

All school parties at Fremont elementary school will be held Wednesday morning, according to Lynn Lancaster, principal.

The Florence Lions club home lighting contest will be judged Wednesday night with prizes going to the top three homes. No entry blank is needed for judging.

Held annually since 1957, the Old Timers' Safety Award dinner, was staged Friday by the Ideal Cement company at the Presbyterian Church Parlors with top company officials in attendance.

On hand for the dinner was Warren Brown, regional production manager from Denver; Robert T. Nelson, plant manager at Portland; and Robert L. Halliday, assistant plant manager who served as master of ceremonies. Also present was Dr. T. A. Davis, long-time company physician who has headed the company's Boettcher Clinic at Portland since about 1911.

The awards dinner is held to make presentation of awards to employes of the company who have achieved at least 20 years of accident free service. The men are awarded a pin for the accredited service accumulated.

At the banquet Friday night, 30 pins were awarded for services ranging from 20 years to 44 years. Five of the awards went to salaried personnel and the remainder to hourly employes.

The retired employes, who have achieved the same goal, were invited to the party as guests of the company.

The five salaried employes who received pins were Gerald Moore, Avery Watkins, 28 years; Richard Kissell, Morris John, and Hugh Irvine, 23 years.

Retired salaried employes invited to the dinner were H. Cozard, 49 years; and William Daniels, 24 years.

In Ireland, Christmas eve often is called the Night of Cakes. This name is based on an ancient custom, still practiced, of baking special Christmas cakes spiced with caraway seeds for eating on the night before Christmas.

MATERNALLY YOURS

SHREWSBURY, England (UPI)—Bert James, a 56-year-old grandfather, thanked the Pensions Ministry today for the $8 "maternity benefit" check he received in the mail.

"For me to become a mom would be a remarkable achievement. I am 56 years old, supposedly male and a grandfather twice. . ." James said in a letter to the ministry.

"Carefully thinking back over the last nine months, I cannot remember indulging in any activities that could have had their climax in this achievement.

"Do I return your postal draft and sacrifice my motherhood—or am I to expect a balance of payment: Yours Maternally."

The five salaried employes who received pins were Gerald Moore, Avery Watkins, 28 years; Richard Kissell, Morris John, and Hugh Irvine, 23 years.

Retired salaried employes invited to the dinner were H. Cozard, 49 years; and William Daniels, 24 years.

In Ireland, Christmas eve often is called the Night of Cakes. This name is based on an ancient custom, still practiced, of baking special Christmas cakes spiced with caraway seeds for eating on the night before Christmas.

MATERNALLY YOURS

SHREWSBURY, England (UPI)—Bert James, a 56-year-old grandfather, thanked the Pensions Ministry today for the $8 "maternity benefit" check he received in the mail.

"For me to become a mom would be a remarkable achievement. I am 56 years old, supposedly male and a grandfather twice. . ." James said in a letter to the ministry.

"Carefully thinking back over the last nine months, I cannot remember indulging in any activities that could have had their climax in this achievement.

"Do I return your postal draft and sacrifice my motherhood—or am I to expect a balance of payment: Yours Maternally."

23-Year-Old Woman Finds Her Father

BATON ROUE, La. (UPI)—A 23-year-old woman who vowed at the age of eight to find the father she never knew will be with him Christmas day, thanks to a merchant's generosity.

Mrs. Norman McAtee was born in California after her parents separated. It was this year before she learned the name of her grandmother in Denver. Her grandmother arranged the reunion with her father, who lives near Denver.

But Mrs. McAtee's long illness had drained the family finances, and the reunion appeared impossible. Her husband is a draftsman and the couple has three children.

CC Prof Seeking to Give Mountains Official Names

"Half of the mountains in Colorado tend to have the same few names, such as Bear, Red, Deer, Baldy, Elk, etc.," says a Colorado College professor who is researching the history of the state's mountains in a step toward giving them appropriate names.

The research is being conducted by Prof. Robert M. Ormes of the English department at Colorado College, and an experienced mountain man. He is doing the work under a research grant from the college.

Professor Omes says there probably are more than 200 mountain summits in Colorado which should receive official names.

In order to make recommendations for mountain names, Professor Ormes will work first in libraries and with historical associations and other pioneer organizations. This will be followed by field work in which he will investigate names not found on maps but used by local residents.

"Many of these are imaginative and appropriate," he said. "But all too often they are simply called Baldy if they are high or Red if that is the color of the earth."

The Colorado College professor made it clear that he would not be naming the mountains. He will make suggestions, based on his research, to the Colorado Mountain Club, of which he is a member, and the club will pass along the suggestions to state and federal agencies.

Professor Ormes hopes the work will result in a book which "would make it possible for motorists to identify the mountains as they drive through them and camp in them."

He said criterion or suggesting names for mountains includes physical attributes, and pertinent historical facts with emphasis on Indian tribes and explorers.

Carson Names Three for Inauguration

Three Ft. Carson soldiers have been nominated by the command to take part in the Presidential inauguration next month in Washington.

They are Sgt. Maj. Frances E. Dowling and M. Sgt. Robert Black of the 4th Squadron 12th Cavalry and M. Sgt. Albert L. Hlavaty, 1st Battalion 10th Infantry.

They will be part of the cordon to join the Presidential party on the reviewing stand.

All three are combat-decorated infantrymen. The six-footers are all three outstanding soldiers with security clearances who have recently been reviewed by promotion boards on which general officers served.

Student-Prof Co-Author Science Paper

A Colorado College senior and a zoology professor will deliver papers at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Montreal, Canada, Dec. 28.

The paper will be presented before members of the Ecological Society of America, one of several scientific organizations meeting in Montreal with the AAS.

The senior is Peter N. Spangler, of 2030 W. Cheyenne Rd., in Colorado Springs. A zoology major, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Spangler.

Spangler and Prof. Richard G. Beidleman are co-authors of a paper on The Peck Order Among Winter Finches and Juncos. Each will deliver alternate parts of the paper. They also will play tape recordings and show color motion pictures of the birds.

The Colorado College senior worked on the research project with Professor Beidleman under ohe National Science Foundation undergraduate science education research program. Professor Beidleman has been studying the peck order of various birds for years.

Later the same day, Professor Beidleman will deliver another paper, A Demonstration of an Ecological Food Web, before members of the National Association of Biology Teachers. He is national program chairman of the biology teachers association.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION—CWO Carter Dean, chief of Academic Support, receives a USAF outstanding supply officer award from Air Force Academy Chief of Staff, Col. Ralph J. Hallenbeck. The awards are given each year to officers who have demonstrated outstanding proficiency in fulfilling supply responsibilities. Two other Academy officers, Capt. Glenn L. Moore and Maj. Kenneth Ramey, also received recognition for their outstanding performance in supply positions.

Ft. Carson Major Will Retire Soon

A charter member of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Maj. Ernest Tucker, will retire Dec. 31 at Ft. Carson and continue making his home with his family at Little Ranches of Fountain.

The major is joining the staff of Financial Programs which underwrites and serves as general distributor for Financial Industrial Fund and American National Life Insurance in the Pikes Peak region.

His assignment to Ft Carson Army Training Center which preceded the division activation was the culmination of 10 years of trying for a Colorado assignment. Now that the major has traveled from the Carolinas to California and Washington with the "Red Devils," he still considers Colorado as best.

He has been supply officer for the 3d Brigade ever since the 5th Division was activated but his biggest job in this field was at the Army Air Defense School, Fort Bliss, Tex. where he was property officer responsible for missiles valued at $60 million.

His Army career began in 1943. He earned two awards of the Bronze Star for Valor in World War II in Europe with the 517th Parachute Regiment.

Maj. Tucker left the Army to enter the University of Missouri reenlisting in 1947 for recruiting duty in Missouri.

In 1949 he was given a direct commission and assigned to the 11th Airborne Division. With the 11th, he took part in the first atomic bomb test in 1952.

The Tucker family went overseas next for the major's Austrian assignment and returned for three years at New Cumberland, Penn.

While serving with the 7th Division in Korea in 1958 and 1959, Maj. Tucker earned the Army Commendation Medal with the 2d Battle Group, 3d Infantry.

He also wears the Combat Infantryman's Badge and parachutists wings.

Parents Search For Children; Are Arrested

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—A Cheyenne couple went to the Laramie County sheriff's office in a search for their eight children Friday. Officers arrested the couple.

Mack and Hattie Johnson were charged with child neglect for allegedly abandoning the children, ranging in age from seven months to 11 years, in an unheated house.

Mrs. Gloria Werner, welfare caseworker, said the children were found huddled in one bed to try to keep warm. She said they were living in "filth" and apparently had not eaten in two days.

"The children were glad we came to get them," she said.

The parents were held in Laramie County Jail in lieu of $500 bond each.

The children were taken into temporary custody by the welfare department and placed in foster homes. They are aged seven months, three years, four, six, seven, eight, nine and 11 years.

Mrs. Werner said the parents had refused help although the welfare department had first offered it in 1958.

NOT MENTIONED

MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev, the man who replaced Nikita Khrushchev as chief of the Soviet Communist party, was 58 years old Sat., but his birthday went unmentioned in the Soviet press.

The new Sovit regime has denounced what it calls a "cult of personality." It has been standard Soviet practice, however, to omit fanfare over birthdays in the past.

Film Makers Lose Another Court Fight

NEW YORK (UPI) — The makers of the film "John Goldfarb Please Come Home" have lost another court fight.

New York Appellate Judge Bernard Botein refused Friday to stay an injunction granted against the movie to allow it to open on schedule, in time for the Christmas holidays.

He set Jan. 5 for a hearing by the appellate division on an appeal filed by the 20th Century Fox Film Corporation, makers of the movie.

State Supreme Court Justice Henry Clay Greenberg had earlier issued a temporary injunction holding that the movie represented an illegal use of Notre Dame University's name and prestige.

Greenberg ruled Thursday that the $4 million movie defamed the good name of the university by depicting its football team as "undisciplined gluttons and drunks."

CC Prof Seeking to Give Mountains Official Names

"Half of the mountains in Colorado tend to have the same few names, such as Bear, Red, Deer, Baldy, Elk, etc.," says a Colorado College professor who is researching the history of the state's mountains in a step toward giving them appropriate names.

* * *

The research is being conducted by Prof. Robert M. Ormes of the English department at Colorado College, and an experienced mountain man. He is doing the work under a research grant from the college.

Professor Omes says there probably are more than 200 mountain summits in Colorado which should receive official names.

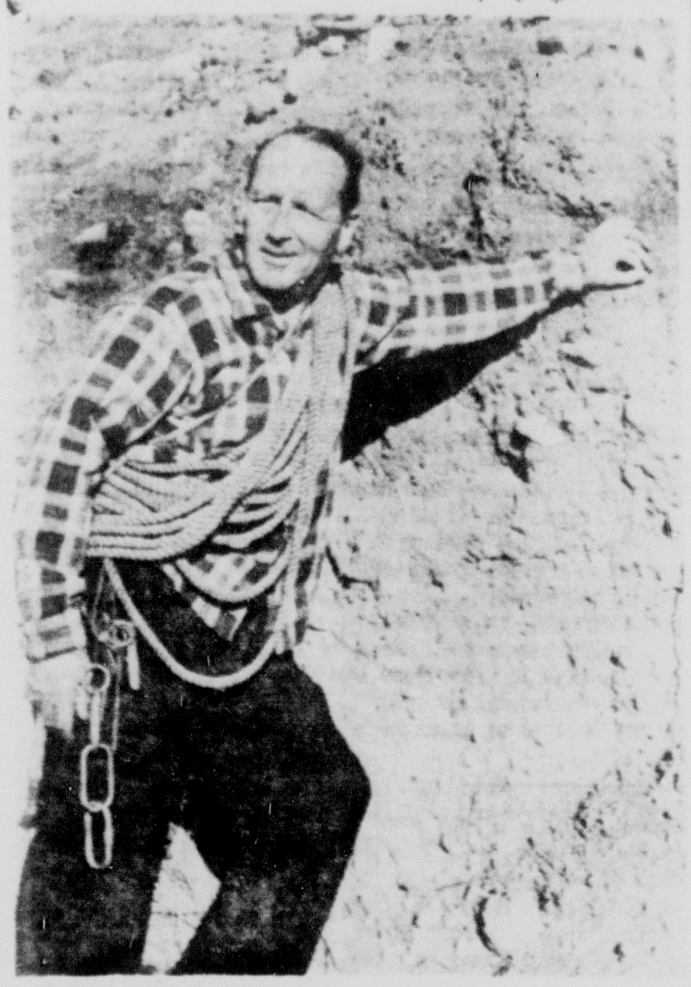
In order to make recommendations for mountain names, Professor Ormes will work first in libraries and with historical associations and other pioneer organizations. This will be followed by field work in which he will investigate names not found on maps but used by local residents.

"Many of these are imaginative and appropriate," he said. "But all too often they are simply called Baldy if they are high or Red if that is the color of the earth."

The Colorado College professor made it clear that he would not be naming the mountains. He will make suggestions, based on his research, to the Colorado Mountain Club, of which he is a member, and the club will pass along the suggestions to state and federal agencies.

Professor Ormes hopes the work will result in a book which "would make it possible for motorists to identify the mountains as they drive through them and camp in them."

He said criterion or suggesting names for mountains includes physical attributes, and pertinent historical facts with emphasis on Indian tribes and explorers.



ON THE JOB—Prof. Robert M. Ormes of the Colorado College English Department is shown here in the field working on his project to determine the proper names for Colorado's un-named peaks.

Carson Names Three for Inauguration

Three Ft. Carson soldiers have been nominated by the command to take part in the Presidential inauguration next month in Washington.

They are Sgt. Maj. Frances E. Dowling and M. Sgt. Robert Black of the 4th Squadron 12th Cavalry and M. Sgt. Albert L. Hlavaty, 1st Battalion 10th Infantry.

They will be part of the cordon to join the Presidential party on the reviewing stand.

All three are combat-decorated infantrymen. The six-footers are all three outstanding soldiers with security clearances who have recently been reviewed by promotion boards on which general officers served.

Student-Prof Co-Author Science Paper

A Colorado College senior and a zoology professor will deliver papers at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Montreal, Canada, Dec. 28.

The paper will be presented before members of the Ecological Society of America, one of several scientific organizations meeting in Montreal with the AAS.

The senior is Peter N. Spangler, of 2030 W. Cheyenne Rd. in Colorado Springs. A zoology major, he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Spangler.

Spangler and Prof. Richard G. Beidleman are co-authors of a paper on The Peck Order Among Winter Finches and Juncos. Each will deliver alternate parts of the paper. They also will play tape recordings and show color motion pictures of the birds.

The Colorado College senior worked on the research project with Professor Beidleman under ohe National Science Foundation undergraduate science education research program. Professor Beidleman has been studying the peck order of various birds for years.

Later the same day, Professor Beidleman will deliver another paper, A Demonstration of an Ecological Food Web, before members of the National Association of Biology Teachers. He is national program chairman of the biology teachers association.

SPECIAL RECOGNITION—CWO Carter Dean, chief of Academic Support, receives a USAF outstanding supply officer award from Air Force Academy Chief of Staff, Col. Ralph J. Hallenbeck. The awards are given each year to officers who have demonstrated outstanding proficiency in fulfilling supply responsibilities. Two other Academy officers, Capt. Glenn L. Moore and Maj. Kenneth Ramey, also received recognition for their outstanding performance in supply positions. (Air Force Photo)

Ft. Carson Major Will Retire Soon

A charter member of the 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized), Maj. Ernest Tucker, will retire Dec. 31 at Ft. Carson and continue making his home with his family at Little Ranches of Fountain.

The major is joining the staff of Financial Programs which underwrites and serves as general distributor for Financial Industrial Fund and American National Life Insurance in the Pikes Peak region.

His assignment to Ft Carson Army Training Center which preceded the division activation was the culmination of 10 years of trying for a Colorado assignment. Now that the major has traveled from the Carolinas to California and Washington with the "Red Devils," he still considers Colorado as best.

He has been supply officer for the 3d Brigade ever since the 5th Division was activated but his biggest job in this field was at the Army Air Defense School, Fort Bliss, Tex. where he was property officer responsible for missiles valued at $60 million.

His Army career began in 1943. He earned two awards of the Bronze Star for Valor in World War II in Europe with the 517th Parachute Regiment.

Maj. Tucker left the Army to enter the University of Missouri reenlisting in 1947 for recruiting duty in Missouri.

In 1949 he was given a direct commission and assigned to the 11th Airborne Division. With the 11th, he took part in the first atomic bomb test in 1952.

The Tucker family went overseas next for the major's Austrian assignment and returned for three years at New Cumberland, Penn.

While serving with the 7th Division in Korea in 1958 and 1959, Maj. Tucker earned the Army Commendation Medal with the 2d Battle Group, 3d Infantry.

He also wears the Combat Infantryman's Badge and parachutists wings.

Parents Search For Children; Are Arrested

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (UPI)—A Cheyenne couple went to the Laramie County sheriff's office in a search for their eight children Friday. Officers arrested the couple.

Mack and Hattie Johnson were charged with child neglect for allegedly abandoning the children, ranging in age from seven months to 11 years, in an unheated house.

Mrs. Gloria Werner, welfare caseworker, said the children were found huddled in one bed to try to keep warm. She said they were living in "filth" and apparently had not eaten in two days.

"The children were glad we came to get them," she said.

The parents were held in Laramie County Jail in lieu of $500 bond each.

The children were taken into temporary custody by the welfare department and placed in foster homes. They are aged seven months, three years, four, six, seven, eight, nine and 11 years.

Mrs. Werner said the parents had refused help although the welfare department had first offered it in 1958.

NOT MENTIONED

MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid I. Brezhnev, the man who replaced Nikita Khrushchev as chief of the Soviet Communist party, was 58 years old Sat., but his birthday went unmentioned in the Soviet press.

The new Sovit regime has denounced what it calls a "cult of personality." It has been standard Soviet practice, however, to omit fanfare over birthdays in the past.

Nearly one-fifth of America's college students are majoring in business courses.

THESE ARE ALL THE ACCESSORIES YOU WILL NEED FOR YOUR SONY TV
SONY

If someone loves you enough, and you get a Sony TV for Christmas, we will furnish the chain and padlock so you can keep it tied down.

If you don't, you probably will never get to see it as it will end up on the kitchen sink with mother, or, up in the kids' room on the floor.

Sony has so many uses around the house it can be hard to find.

It even works on batteries, or in your car. So take it anywhere.

It's there when you need it and out of sight when you don't. When you've suffered a massive overdose of TV you can stick it in the drawer.

The Sony isn't a console with a handle. It weights only 8 pounds. If you must have TV for dinner, you can just plop it right next to the mashed potatoes.

The Sony portable makes watching easier. Who knows? Someday it might even replace the portable dinner.

Duty to Individual Seen by Press Chief

HOUSTON (UPI) — A wire service executive warned American newspapermen Friday night that the press will lose its initiative in safeguarding fair trial if it ignores its duty to individuals caught in the legal processes.

Roger Tatarian, executive editor of United Press International, made the warning in a speech before the annual meeting of the Texas UPI Editors Association.

Tatarian said newsmen must ask themselves constantly if they are showing "exactly the same regard, the same solicitude for the rights and feelings of individuals that the press demands that individuals be shown by others."

TOKYO — Communist China has made a loan to Pakistan.

A Flexible Spine Can Mean Trouble If It's Misused

By The Colorado Chiropractic Society

Wrestlers demonstrate in the ring that all joints of the body are not made to bend any which way.

But there is one series of bones which will do marvelous things by way of bending — the spinal bones will even stretch to an extent. They will swivel when a football player turns to snag a pass on the run, and conpress when an acrobat bends to touch the back of her head to her heels. Ballet dancers combine with beauty the toughness and flexibility of all these physically adept professionals.

There is one thing, however, position for a long period of men do not do: keep in one position for a long time.

This, the Doctor of Chiropractic says, is where the trouble comes in. When the spinal vertebrae are held out of natural position for a long period of time, they become stiff and their ability to return to normal position lessens.

Just as an experiment, one young woman tried crossing her fingers for a few minutes—pain and stiffness were soon felt.

The same thing happens to the spinal bones when children slump for hours a day in school; motorists slump for long periods at the wheels of their cars; and babies sleep on their stomachs with heads turned hard to one side.

Too much of one position and the bones tend to stay that way — the muscles holding them in place adjust to one side, and that side is pulled more firmly than the other.

This means that nerves emitting from between the vertebrae are constantly pinched, and nerve energy doesn't reach its destination. The skin, the throat, the leg muscles, the lymph glands and any other part of the body may be affected.

Athletes and dancers show that the spinal column is very tough and flexible — but it should be remembered that these people are the most physically erect and best postured people in the world.

"Stand straight, sit straight, sleep straight," says the Doctor of Chiropractic. The spine should be examined at once when any disease or pain occurs.

Civil Rights Troubleshooter Resigns Post

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Burke Marshall, the administration's top civil rights troubleshooter, is resigning his Justice Department post. He will be replaced by his chief aide, John Doar.

President Johnson Friday announced Marshall's resignation as assistant attorney general in charge of the department's civil rights division and Doar's appointment to the post.

Marshall, one of the architects of the new civil rights law, has been a key figure in nearly every rights crisis since he joined the Justice Department in 1961. In a letter to Johnson he said "compelling personal reasons" prompted him to resign his post.

Doar, like the man he will replace, has been in the front line of the civil rights fight assistant in February, 1961.

Last June, Johnson conferred on him the President's award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service — the highest honor which can be accorded a career government employe.

In an exchange of letters, Johnson told Marshall: "I believe that your contribution to the progress that we have seen in the civil rights field in the past four years has been of the first magnitude."

The President said he would accept Marshall's resignation reluctantly because "in 33 years of service with the federal government I have never known any person who rendered a better quality of public service."

He said he would "accept your (Marshall's) judgment" that the office should be turned over to someone who would bring to the demanding duties "a fresh view and a new mind."

Marshall said his resignation was in keeping with an understanding he had with the late President John F. Kennedy and his brother, former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Steelworkers President Has Competition

CHICAGO (UPI) — I. W. Abel opened his campaign today to become president of the United Steelworkers of America by promising to return more bargaining power to USW locals.

Abel's aides contended the present president, David J. McDonald, preferred to arrange one contract for the whole steel industry. They said McDonald has overlooked the individual steelworker.

The aides said Abel favored a nationwide agreement, with provisions for local modifications, in much the same form as recent auto worker contracts.

Abel scheduled a news conference today at his campaign headquarters in Chicago's loop. He said he would outline his reasons for opposing McDonald.

Abel, 56, said 14 of 29 district directors support him.

The USW's 1.2 million members will vote Feb. 9 by referendum for the $50,000 a year post of president. McDonald, who succeeded the late Philip Murray in 1952, is seeking his fourth four-year term.

Abel, a union official for more than 25 years, now is secretary-treasurer of the USW and earns $35,000 annually.

Civil Rights Troubleshooter Resigns Post

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Burke Marshall, the administration's top civil rights troubleshooter, is resigning his Justice Department post. He will be replaced by his chief aide, John Doar.

President Johnson Friday announced Marshall's resignation as assistant attorney general in charge of the department's civil rights division and Doar's appointment to the post.

Marshall, one of the architects of the new civil rights law, has been a key figure in nearly every rights crisis since he joined the Justice Department in 1961. In a letter to Johnson he said "compelling personal reasons" prompted him to resign his post.

Doar, like the man he will replace, has been in the front line of the civil rights fight assistant in February, 1961.

Last June, Johnson conferred on him the President's award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service — the highest honor which can be accorded a career government employe.

In an exchange of letters, Johnson told Marshall: "I believe that your contribution to the progress that we have seen in the civil rights field in the past four years has been of the first magnitude."

The President said he would accept Marshall's resignation reluctantly because "in 33 years of service with the federal government I have never known any person who rendered a better quality of public service."

He said he would "accept your (Marshall's) judgment" that the office should be turned over to someone who would bring to the demanding duties "a fresh view and a new mind."

Marshall said his resignation was in keeping with an understanding he had with the late President John F. Kennedy and his brother, former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Steelworkers President Has Competition

CHICAGO (UPI) — I. W. Abel opened his campaign today to become president of the United Steelworkers of America by promising to return more bargaining power to USW locals.

Abel's aides contended the present president, David J. McDonald, preferred to arrange one contract for the whole steel industry. They said McDonald has overlooked the individual steelworker.

The aides said Abel favored a nationwide agreement, with provisions for local modifications, in much the same form as recent auto worker contracts.

Abel scheduled a news conference today at his campaign headquarters in Chicago's loop. He said he would outline his reasons for opposing McDonald.

Abel, 56, said 14 of 29 district directors support him.

The USW's 1.2 million members will vote Feb. 9 by referendum for the $50,000 a year post of president. McDonald, who succeeded the late Philip Murray in 1952, is seeking his fourth four-year term.

Abel, a union official for more than 25 years, now is secretary-treasurer of the USW and earns $35,000 annually.

U.S. Casualties in Laos Not Forgotten

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — The 49 members of the Army's Special Forces killed in Viet Nam and Laos since 1957 are not forgotten.

Their widows and children joined 150 persons in a small interfaith chapel at Ft. Bragg Friday to hear Chaplain Thomas Waldie eulogize them as "saviors."

"Can we ever forget that the victory is not won with colorful parades?" he asked the congregation, which included many green-uniformed soldiers who have returned from Viet Nam.

"Rather the victory is won in the clod and wet and hunger and anxiety and mud and blood and anguish of combat," he said.

The John F. Kennedy Special Forces Center at Ft. Bragg, which has sent thousands of advisors to Viet Nam and Laos since 1957, lists 49 of its members dead and nine missing.

Rep. Ford Seeks Leadership of GOP in House

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — Proclaiming himself a "new era" candidate, Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan jumped Saturday into a seemingly uphill effort to wrest the House Republican leadership from Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana.

Ford, 51, chairman of the House Republican Conference, challenged Halleck, 64, in a contest to be decided by the 140 Republican members at a Jan. 4 caucus.

Ford told a news conference he is confident "a good majority will be on our side." But the general feeling among influential GOP members is that Halleck now has the votes to retain his job if he can keep them.

Asked why he is taking on the veteran Indiana representative who has served as House minority leader since 1959, Ford replied that "we are entering a new era in American politics."

He said in a statement read to reporters he is confident Republicans want their party to become "dynamic and positive" in the wake of its crushing defeat in the November election.

Halleck was out of town and could not be reached for comment but an administrative assistant said "of course he will run again." The aide added Halleck plans to return from Florida Sunday and be in his office Monday.

"We have in our Republican ranks a great wealth of talent, energy and dedication," Ford said.

"When properly channeled and utilized to the fullest, this talent will promote and communicate the image of a fighting, forward-looking Republican party seeking responsible and constructive solutions to national problems."

In this connection, Ford said he wants to "make all 140 Republicans in the House first-team players," which he implied Halleck has not done. Ford said he wants each to be "a 60-minute man" in opposing the Democrats.

Disclaiming any major policy differences with Halleck, Ford said the issue is whether his party is going to have the "new, dynamic, bold, innovating leadership" he said he could offer.

Ford described himself as a "high-middle-of-the-road man" on domestic issues and an advocate of a "more aggressive role for America" in foreign affairs.

He generally is regarded as being just about as conservative as Halleck.

Supporters of Halleck and GOP National Chairman Dean Burch have been reported forming and informal alliance to work against the ouster of either. Ford said his challenge to Halleck has nothing to do with the current controversy over whether Burch shall be retained.

Five Republican congressmen showed up at Ford's announcement conference.

They were Reps. Silvio O. Conte of Massachusetts, William S. Broomfield and Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, Donald Rumsfeld of Illinois and Charles Goodell of New York.

Six New U.S. Stamps Are Being Planned

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Stamp collectors will get another bonanza next year.

Postmaster General John A. Gronouski announced Saturday that six more new stamps will be issued. They will include one commemorating the late fromer President Hebrert Clark Hoover. The others will be commemorative issues for traffic safety, the Salvation Army, the Magna Carta, the great Italian poet, Dante Alighieri, and another in the John Singleton Copley painting series.

There also will be a commemorative postal card marking the 175th anniversary of the founding of the U. S. Coast Guard.

The stamps will bring to 11 the number of commemorative issues planned for 1965, four short of normal.

"We gave thoughtful consideration to the great number of requests for new stamps," Gronouski said, "and have selected what we think will contribute to a well-rounded program."

Hoffa Lawyers Claim New Evidence

CHATTANOOGA (AP) — James Hoffa's lawyers say they have uncovered new evidence to justify a retrial since the teamsters president was convicted last March of jury tampering.

The attorneys made the contention in federal court in a bid to gain Hoffa a new trial. They filed a revised motion Friday, replacing a motion filed Monday.

The new motion contains the same charge as the old one: that the government intruded into relationships between Hoffa and his lawyers, thus denying him his constitutional rights of due process.

In the latest motion, however, the attorneys stressed what they termed new evidence.

The new material includes an affidavit by Hoffa's Nashville attorney, Z. T. Osborn Jr., who contends that a Nashville policeman he hired as a private investigator was actually a government "spy".

Hoffa was convicted in Chattanooga on charges of trying to fix the jury which heard his 1963 conspiracy case in Nashville. His appeal of that conviction is being considered by the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals.

MONTREAL — A Canadian sporting goods firm will soon export hockey gloves and pads to the American market.

Guard Premier's Home

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — Police guarded the home of Premier Hendrick Verwoerd Saturday following a bombing in Capetown and a telephoned warning.

The bomb exploded in an empty post office Friday night. No one was hurt. Later someone called the Cape Town newspaper Cape Times and claimed Verwoerd's home would be bombed unless Nelson Mandela, an African jailed for sabotage, was released. No bomb was found in the premier's home when it was searched.

DISPLAYS DIPLOMACY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Lyndon Johnson gave an example Friday of the quick political reflexes she has developed during years of campaign diplomacy.

Mrs. Johnson was at the Smithsonian Institution to present one of her gowns to the museum's First Lady collection. As she left, she found two elevators waiting with both operators eager to take her down to the ground floor.

The First Lady hesitated barely a moment. She headed for one, then turned and gave a cordial handshake to the second elevator operator before getting in the first car.

DISPLAYS DIPLOMACY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Lyndon Johnson gave an example Friday of the quick political reflexes she has developed during years of campaign diplomacy.

Mrs. Johnson was at the Smithsonian Institution to present one of her gowns to the museum's First Lady collection. As she left, she found two elevators waiting with both operators eager to take her down to the ground floor.

The First Lady hesitated barely a moment. She headed for one, then turned and gave a cordial handshake to the second elevator operator before getting in the first car.

Venetuccis Find Dust-Covered Reminders of Past in the Attic

By BYRON AKERS

When Nick and Tony Venetucci climbed into the attic the other day to do some repair work on the old ranch house in Fountain Valley, seven miles south of Colorado Springs, they found tucked in the dust-covered rafters some reminders of early days.

From pioneer times the ranch was known as the Hall place, so called because Benjamin S. Hall settled there in 1861. Some old timers still call it the Hall ranch, although the Venetucci family acquired it in 1936.

One momento of the past was a dance program of the first annual ball of the Colorado Cattle Growers Assn., held in Turner Hall, Denver, on Jan. 15, 1879. Col. W. T. Holt of Colorado Springs was on the reception committee.

Mrs. Hall, Lucretia, apparently was a popular lady. Her program was filled with the names of dance partners from the grand march through the 25 quadrilles, waltzes, schottisches, lanciers, polkas and caledonians.

Other items included bills from such old establishments as G. S. Barnes & Sons, 17 S. Tejon St., a pioneer hardware store; Robert McKune, Fountain lumber dealer, and notices of milk delivered to Sinton Bros.' Dairy, operated by George H. Sinton and Melvin M. Sinton at El Paso and Cimarron Streets, the deliveries were made in the late '90's.

Among the papers were a number of checks drawn on the First National Bank of Colorado Springs, by Lucretia Hall, and a few by her son, David C. Hall. The checks were written over a period of two decades from 1891.

Tax notices, a pasture lease agreement, calling cards, notice of a ditch company meeting, wedding announcement without names or date and several business and personal letters were among the papers.

As a contrast with present-day prices, perhaps the most interesting paper was the year-end report and quotations from a South Omaha, Neb. commission house, dated Dec. 31, 1908. The company reported:

"The year 1908 closes with the market for all classes of livestock in a healthy condition and prices advancing. Merchants have had a big holiday trade, all lines of manufacturing picking up, and railroad announce many extensions. All this with our big crops and high prices being realized, make prospects favorable for the coming year."

Prices quoted on cattle on Dec. 31, 1908 were: good and choice corn-fed steers, $6.75-7.25 per hundred. The current 1964 price for the same grade steers is $23.85-24.00.

In 1908, hog prices ranged, according to grade, from $4 to $5.-50. Today's spread is from $11.-50 to $16.50. Similarly, lambs sold for $7 in 1908 and bring around $21 in today's market.

Of course, the dollar in 1908 was worth 100 cents. Today's dollar, since the politicians wrecked it, is worth only a fraction of 100 cents.

Records at the Pioneers Museum show Benjamin S. Hall, founder of the ranch, came west in 1861 from his native Meadsville, Pa., where he was born Jan. 27, 1829. From Council Bluffs his westward trek was made with a mule team, taking 24 days to reach Denver.

Hall, as many in that day, was lured by the golf fever. He went to the Blue River country to engage in mining and also a sawmill venture.

Both fortune-hunting efforts were failures. He had started west with $1,800, a quite sizeable sum in those days. When he left the Blue River area he had $37 the Blue River area he had $37 left.

His ancestors had been Pennsylvania farmers, so he turned to the soil to gain the prosperity that mining and sawmilling had denied him. Hall bought 160 acres in the fertile Fountain Valley for $175, going into debt for the purchase. That became the nucleus of the pioneer Hall ranch.

The first year's plantings yielded 1600 bushels of corn and 400 bushels of wheat. The corn brought 10 cents a bushel for 1100 bushels and 500 for five cents. The wheat was sold for seven cents a bushel.

Today corn prices are in the $1.23-1.27 range on the Chicago Board of Trade and wheat brings from $1.49 to $1.53 a bushel.

The Hall ranch has always been noted for its corn. The Ventuccis boast "We grow the finest sweet corn in the world."

In 1863, Hall went back to bring out his family. They made the trip from St. Joseph, Mo., in Colorado Springs by mule team in 14 days, a record for that time.

The pioneer rancher installed an irrigation system. The ranch today has such an abundance of underground water resources that Colorado Springs and adjoining metropolitan areas have utilized them to supplement their supply.

During the 31 years Hall ranched in the Fountain Valley moved nearer Colorado Springs acres. He retired in 1893 and he expanded his holdings to 1400 tie. Three other children died the Halls had a daughter, Ka- while David, one of four sons, of years. Besides the four sons, operated the ranch for a number in infancy.

Councilmen Are Determined to Get Fire Truck

Florence city councilmen will again attempt to get bids on a fire truck estimated to cost the community about $14,000 when they meet Monday night in regular session.

At last week's meeting, the council rejected bids submitted by two local auto dealers on the grounds that the specifications needed revamping. At that time both dealers, Felix Lukezic of Luke's Motor company, and Gus Vendetti Jr., of Vendetti Chevrolet, declared they would not re-submit bids. However, new bids were expected to be presented to both dealers in hopes they would again seek to negotiate with the city.

Also on the agenda Monday night is council action on a request by James Camerlo seeking a water line extension on his property immediately north of the city limits.

Rio Grande Opposes Railroad Merger

DENVER (UPI)— Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad Co. plans to oppose the merger of Union Pacific and Rock Island Railroads, Rio Grande President G. B. Aydelott said Friday.

Aydelott said Rio Grande will file a petition against the merger plans with the Interstate two to three weeks.

Aydelott said his line would rather have Rock Island merge with Chicago & North Western Railway than with UP.

He said company officers think a merger with North Western would divert less business from Rio Grande than would a merger with UP.

Other railroads also are reportedly raising questions about

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Plato once poked sly fun at democracy by defining it as "a charming form of government, dispensing a sort of equality to equals and unequals alike."

As a practical matter, "a sort of equality" is all that democracy can hope to offer. The equal treatment demanded by the Constitution does not mean that there shall be no discrimination at all. Discrimination is not only legal, it is essential to law itself.

Suppose, for instance, that a city ordinance fixes 5' 8" as the minimum height for policemen. Clearly, this is discrimination against short men. Yet is discrimination based on a sensible distinction, for a worthy purpose: to provide a better police force for the community. The Constitution has no quarrel with such discrimination.

But suppose the ordinance also fixes 5' 8" as the minimum height for voters. Then the discrimination would have no reasonable basis. No doubt, such an ordinance would be held unconstitutional.

What kinds of discrimination are lawful? Very often it is a close question, a matter of degree. Consider two cases involving discrimination against women:

1) A state law forbade the serving of liquor to women unless they were seated at tables. Although the law was challenged, a court decided this was lawful discrimination. The court said it made sense, in the interest of morality, to discourage the too-easy mingling of the sexes.

2) A city ordinance forbade women to stand within 50 feet of any place where liquor was sold. This time, the ordinance was held invalid. The court said the relationship to morality was too remote to justify the discrimination. Such a law, noted the court, could even punish a woman who — in all innocence —paused on the sidewalk to chat with a friend.

In this manner, case by case, the law puts specific meaning into general concepts. It seeks not equality pure and simple, but equality tempered by differences that are real and purposes that are proper. Democracy can do no more. It should do no less.

Hospital Drive Gets Big Boost From State

The drive to build a new St. Joseph hospital in Florence was given a tremendous boost this week with the announcement from Denver that the long anticipated Hill-Burton assistance has been assured for Florence to the tune of $400,000.

Sister Mary Miriam, supervisor of St. Joseph hospital, received the word by telephone Tuesday morning from Clarence R. Horton, chief of the hospital service section of the state department of public health for Colorado. She indicated that a formal letter will be received later this week confirming the good news.

The announcement that federal assistance has been granted to the board of St. Joseph hospital was hailed by Barto Babitz, president of the hospital board, as a sure sign that a new hospital will be constructed in Florence by the end of 1966.

The present St. Joseph hospital, which will be converted to a nursing home, has not been able to meet accredited hospital standards and was endangered as an operating institution. However, with federal aid, the local board now is able to count nearly $650,000 in available monies. The recent local drive netted nearly $28,000, according to Chairman Jerry Sandell, who reported that several large contributions may still be made by local industrial concerns.

Babitz declared that the next stop is to make formal contact with the Boettcher Foundation and other agencies in the area with the updated financial statement of the hospital in order to launch the final drive for funds.

The President of Lebanon is elected for a 6-year term by the parliament. He appoints the premier and cabinet, with the latter responsible to the parliament for its actions.

Holiday Peril Pointed Out By Society

A Christmas memo to Colorado parents on trees and toys: Don't let a needless eye accident wreck your family's holiday happiness.

The Colorado Society for the Prevention of Blindness cautions that accidents around the Christmas tree and from unsafe children's toys will be the principal causes of eye injuries during the Yule season. The Society's warning came as part of its annual "Safe Gifts from Santa" campaign.

The traditional family Christmas tree with its fragile decorations has damaged many eyes in recent years, reported Mrs. J. Burris Perrin, president of the Colorado Society. A sharp pine needle punctured the eye of a West Coast woman as she bent over to unplug the tree lights. A two-year-old was hospitalized after broken ornament fragments got into her left eye. An exploding Christmas tree light bulb cut the eye of a young Western boy.

"Throughout the holidays, remind all the family members, young and old alike, about the hazards of shattered ornaments and lights, the pointed needles on wreaths and trees, the keen edges of wrapping material and the threat of fire," Mrs. Perrin said. "A good measure of common sense will keep the holidays happy."

The National Security for the Prevention of Blindness estimates that eye accidents will strike nearly 12,800 American youngsters during the Christmas period. Wise toy purchases would do much to reduce this total, according to this health agency.

"Youngsters often ask for Christmas toys that are too advanced for them," said Mrs. Perrin. "A normally-safe toy such as a chemistry set or tool kit can cost an eye if mishandled in small or inexperienced hands. Make sure your child is capable of handling safely every plaything he gets from Santa."

Missile-type toys like darts and archery sets are particularly dangerous to eyesight. Check with local authorities if your child wants an air rifle or pellet gun; such instruments are illegal in some communities, she said. Above all, if any of these gifts are on your Christmas list, make sure that the child is well grounded in rules of safety before he uses them, she added.

Other toy-buying hints from the Colorado Society include:

— Look for sturdy construction with shatter-resistant and non-flammable materials.

— Toys should have no detachable parts, springs or gears that can fly into the eyes.

— Edges should be smooth, corners rounded and mechanisms enclosed.

AF Recruiter Says Standards Were Higher

The year of 1964, was a year of many changes for the Air Force Recruiting Service, said T. Sgt. Bruce S. Adams, the local Air Force Recruiter. All of these changes were aimed at strict quality recruiting in all phases of operation.

Requirements for enlistment were upgraded, new pre-requisite requirements were imposed, and for the first time since 1958, quotas could not be exceeded. During the first five months of this year, only four non-prior service men could enlist through the local Air Force Recruiting office each month.

With these restrictions, Sgt. Adams garnered a total of 95 top quality persons in six categories for the Air Force this year.

The six categories were: 72 young men enlisted in the non-prior service program; 13 college graduates entered Air Force Officer Training School;, missions in the AF Nurse Corps; one waman entered the WAF; four men enlisted under the Prior Service program; and one woman gained a direct commission in the AF Medical Specialists Corps as a Dietician.

Sgt. Adams, the only AF Recruiter in this area, is responsible for all Air Force Recruiting activities in six Colorado counties.

"The year of 1965 should separate the men from the boys in the AF Recruiting business", said Sgt. Adams. "Recruiting funds will be tighter, the same emphasis on high quality will remain in effect and quotas will be higher. The Air Force demands a minimum o 10 per cent production from its recruiters and spreads its recruiting force mighty thin", said Sgt. Adams.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Plato once poked sly fun at democracy by defining it as "a charming form of government, dispensing a sort of equality to equals and unequals alike."

As a practical matter, "a sort of equality" is all that democracy can hope to offer. The equal treatment demanded by the Constitution does not mean that there shall be no discrimination at all. Discrimination is not only legal, it is essential to law itself.

Suppose, for instance, that a city ordinance fixes 5' 8" as the minimum height for policemen. Clearly, this is discrimination against short men. Yet is discrimination based on a sensible distinction, for a worthy purpose: to provide a better police force for the community. The Constitution has no quarrel with such discrimination.

But suppose the ordinance also fixes 5' 8" as the minimum height for voters. Then the discrimination would have no reasonable basis. No doubt, such an ordinance would be held unconstitutional.

What kinds of discrimination are lawful? Very often it is a close question, a matter of degree. Consider two cases involving discrimination against women:

1) A state law forbade the serving of liquor to women unless they were seated at tables. Although the law was challenged, a court decided this was lawful discrimination. The court said it made sense, in the interest of morality, to discourage the too-easy mingling of the sexes.

2) A city ordinance forbade women to stand within 50 feet of any place where liquor was sold. This time, the ordinance was held invalid. The court said the relationship to morality was too remote to justify the discrimination. Such a law, noed the court, could even punish a woman who — in all innocence —paused on the sidewalk to chat with a friend.

In this manner, case by case, the law puts specific meaning into general concepts. It seeks not equality pure and simple, but equality tempered by differences that are real and purposes that are proper. Democracy can do no more. It should do no less.

Hospital Drive Gets Big Boost From State

The drive to build a new St. Joseph hospital in Florence was given a tremendous boost this week with the announcement from Denver that the long anticipated Hill-Burton assistance has been assured for Florence to the tune of $400,000.

Sister Mary Miriam, supervisor of St. Joseph hospital, received the word by telephone Tuesday morning from Clarence R. Horton, chief of the hospital service section of the state department of public health for Colorado. She indicated that a formal letter will be received later this week confirming the good news.

The announcement that federal assistance has been granted to the board of St. Joseph hospital was hailed by Barto Babitz, president of the hospital board, as a sure sign that a new hospital will be constructed in Florence by the end of 1966.

The present St. Joseph hospital, which will be converted to a nursing home, has not been able to meet accredited hospital standards and was endangered as an operating institution. However, with federal aid, the local board now is able to count nearly $650,000 in available monies. The recent local drive netted nearly $28,000, according to Chairman Jerry Sandell, who reported that several large contributions may still be made by local industrial concerns.

Babitz declared that the next stop is to make formal contact with the Boettcher Foundation and other agencies in the area with the updated financial statement of the hospital in order to launch the final drive for funds.

The President of Lebanon is elected for a 6-year term by the parliament. He appoints the premier and cabinet, with the latter responsible to the parliament for its actions.

Steel Industry Bargainers Encouraged

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Bargainers for the nation's basic steel industry and the United Steelworkers Union (USW) were encouraged today by the progress of their first round of talks. Friday for the holidays and will resume here Jan. 5. The union's contract with the industry runs out next April 30. If no agreement is reached by that time the rank-and-file of the nation's third largest union is free to strike the next day.

Both David J. McDonald, USW president, and R. Conrad Cooper, chief bargainer for the "Big 11" steel firms, expressed the spirit of good will when they met with newsmen after the adjournment.

"From our point of view, these meetings have been extremely useful," Cooper said. "The discussions were carried out in good humor mostly."

McDonald nodded in agreement.

"The reports from the meetings have been encouraging," the silver-haired labor leader said.

Negotiations opened last Tuesday and were conducted on a plant level basis.

"We did a lot of hard work this week," McDonald said. "The negotiations went pretty much as in the past. Both sides made arguments, then we had discussions. It was standard operating procedure because of the work done by the Human Relations Committee (HRC)."

The HRC is composed of union and management representatives who meet throughout the year to thrash out differences.

"It seems to me we had more freedom of exchange of viewpoints," Cooper said.

McDonald announced that extensions had been granted on certain "experimental agreements" set up when the current contract was signed in 1962. These discussions were scheduled to expire Dec. 31 but will remain effective until the current contract expires in about four and a half months.

These agreements pertain to such items as overtime pay, the duties of foremen and the contracting out of certain work.

At the same time McDonald said he plans to call a series of meetings in mid-January to meet with presidents of union locals in the aluminum and fabricating industries and independent basic steel producers not taking part in current negotiations.

McDonald said Chicago likely will be the site of these talks with the time to be announced later.

Asked if he cared to predict when a new contract would be signed, Cooper replied:

"We predict we'll meet Jan. 5 in Pittsburgh."

Carson Set As Home of CMMI Team

Ft. Carson will be the home of Fifth Army's third Command Maintenance Management Inspection (CMMI) team, it was announced today by Lt. Col. Brian B. O'Neill.

Chief will be Major Douglas H. McClinton. His team will include one enlisted man and four civilians, three of whom will be equipment specialists and one a record specialist. They will work out of Ft. Carson, responsible for a regional territory that will reach from Pueblo and Denver into Wyoming. It is expected to be operational early next year.

Similar teams are being organized at Forts Riley in ansas and Sheridan in Illinois.

Capt. Harrison L. Franke has replaced Major McClinton as chief of the Fort Carson CMMI team.

Organization of the Fifth Army team at Ft. Carson is part of the sustained emphasis on materiel readiness. All units, are required to undergo a CMMI inspection every fiscal year. Re-inspections are scheduled within 60 days for any unit which fails to pass this test.

Loveland-Estes Park Toll Road Proposed

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP) — Directors of the U.S. Highway 34 Association considered at a meeting here proposals for a toll road linking Loveland and Estes Park and a year-round highway through Rocky Mountain National Park.

President Lou Pettyjohn told the directors that the National Park Service had agreed to study the suggestions. Trail Ridge Road through the park is now closed from early fall to late spring.

Steel Industry Bargainers Encouraged

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Bargainers for the nation's basic steel industry and the United Steelworkers Union (USW) were encouraged today by the progress of their first round of talks. Friday for the holidays and will resume here Jan. 5. The union's contract with the industry runs out next April 30. If no agreement is reached by that time the rank-and-file of the nation's third largest union is free to strike the next day.

Both David J. McDonald, USW president, and R. Conrad Cooper, chief bargainer for the "Big 11" steel firms, expressed the spirit of good will when they met with newsmen after the adjournment.

"From our point of view, these meetings have been extremely useful," Cooper said. "The discussions were carried out in good humor mostly."

McDonald nodded in agreement.

"The reports from the meetings have been encouraging," the silver-haired labor leader said.

Negotiations opened last Tuesday and were conducted on a plant level basis.

"We did a lot of hard work this week," McDonald said. "The negotiations went pretty much as in the past. Both sides made arguments, then we had discussions. It was standard operating procedure because of the work done by the Human Relations Committee (HRC)."

The HRC is composed of union and management representatives who meet throughout the year to thrash out differences.

"It seems to me we had more freedom of exchange of viewpoints," Cooper said.

McDonald announced that extensions had been granted on certain "experimental agreements" set up when the current contract was signed in 1962. These discussions were scheduled to expire Dec. 31 but will remain effective until the current contract expires in about four and a half months.

These agreements pertain to such items as overtime pay, the duties of foremen and the contracting out of certain work.

At the same time McDonald said he plans to call a series of meetings in mid-January to meet with presidents of union locals in the aluminum and fabricating industries and independent basic steel producers not taking part in current negotiations.

McDonald said Chicago likely will be the site of these talks with the time to be announced later.

Asked if he cared to predict when a new contract would be signed, Cooper replied:

"We predict we'll meet Jan. 5 in Pittsburgh."

Carson Set As Home of CMMI Team

Ft. Carson will be the home of Fifth Army's third Command Maintenance Management Inspection (CMMI) team, it was announced today by Lt. Col. Brian B. O'Neill.

Chief will be Major Douglas H. McClinton. His team will include one enlisted man and four civilians, three of whom will be equipment specialists and one a record specialist. They will work out of Ft. Carson, responsible for a regional territory that will reach from Pueblo and Denver into Wyoming. It is expected to be operational early next year.

Similar teams are being organized at Forts Riley in ansas and Sheridan in Illinois.

Capt. Harrison L. Franke has replaced Major McClinton as chief of the Fort Carson CMMI team.

Organization of the Fifth Army team at Ft. Carson is part of the sustained emphasis on materiel readiness. All units, are required to undergo a CMMI inspection every fiscal year. Re-inspections are scheduled within 60 days for any unit which fails to pass this test.

Loveland-Estes Park Toll Road Proposed

ESTES PARK, Colo. (AP) — Directors of the U.S. Highway 34 Association considered at a meeting here proposals for a toll road linking Loveland and Estes Park and a year-round highway through Rocky Mountain National Park.

President Lou Pettyjohn told the directors that the National Park Service had agreed to study the suggestions. Trail Ridge Road through the park is now closed from early fall to late spring.

"A Gentleman of Broadway," by Edwin P. Hoyt. (Little, Brown $6.95): "A Gentleman of Broadway" seems a fair enough title for this biography of Damon Runyon, even though his subject was neither a native New Yorker nor a continuous resident of the city for any great length of time.

Alfred Damon Rynyan, (he changed the spelling later) was born in Manhattan, to be sure; but it was Manhattan, Kan., and he lived there only until he was about 2. He grew up in Pueblo, Colo., and made his name as a newspaperman in Denver before he ever set eyes on the Great White Way.

Runyon probably will be remembered best for his Broadway short stories and the films that were made from them, but he occupies a special place in the hearts of journalists of his generation as one of the best all-round newspapermen.

Sports writer, feature writer, columnist, reporter — you name it and he did it, usually better than just about anybody else around at the time. If gee-whiz journalism seemed indicated, he was the gee-whizziest even though he was at heart something of a cynic.

There is a remarkable obscurity about the facts of Runyon's life, when you consider how recent (he died in 1946) and prominent a figure he was.

Hoyt has done a creditable job of digging out the facts from official records, from the memories of people who knew Runyon and above all from the files of the newspapers for which he worked.

"Fear On Trial," by John Henry Faulk (Simon & Schuster $6.50) Faulk has written an accounted of the trial which awarded him an unprecedented $3.5 million in his suit against AWARE, Inc., for causing him to be blacklisted in the entertainment industry. As a broadcasting performer he was required to belong to the American Federation of Television and Rado Artists (AFTRA), but during his career of spinning Texan folklore on radio he had only been a dues-paying member and had never been very active in the affairs of the union. However, in 1955 he and other members became dissatisfied with the influence which AWARE had over AFTRA and they ran for office on a platform in opposition to the AWARE - supported faction. Faulk was elected second vice president. AWARE issued a bhlletin attacking him for pro-Commrnist activities and Faulk subsequently found himself without a job. With Louis Nizer as counsel, Faulk launshed a six-year legal battle. The book lontains much of the transcript of the trial in which many prominent broadcasting and theater stars testified.

"Cowboy," by Ross Santee :Hastings House $4.95) This is a resissue of Santee's 1928 classic, with new sketches by the author, who has been describing the West in word and picture since the start of his own cowboy days nearly half a century ago. The gunfights and rustlers that fill television screens are not to be found here; Santee's cowboy is a working man, concerned with rounding up and branding calves, wrangling horses, and doing such mundane chores as hauling in firewood and washing dishes. But there is romance aplenty nevertheless. There has to be to compensate for the cold nights out on the range, the sleepless hours spend rounding up scattered cattle or horses, and the jolts of bronc busting. Santee tells his story through the eyes of a 15-year old boy who leaves his farm in East Texas and heads west. He has only a cow pony and farmer's overalls, and jobs are hard to find for raw hands. But at every ranch there was a bed, food, and kindly advice. Working his way up from cook's helper to wrangler to real cowpuncher, our hero, Button, pauses along the way long enough to describe in detail the chores he did, and in the process give us the real flavor of the West.

"Gideon's Lot," by J. J. Marric (Harper & Row $3.95): The latest entry in the absorbing series of police-procedure novels produced by John Creasey over the past 10 years under the pseudonym "J. J. Marric."

There is by now a ready audience for any book with the word Gideon in the title (one wonders how many of them were misled by "Gideon's Trumpet," which was something else altogether). Admirers of Marric's Gideon will not be disappointed by this book.

For those who came in late, George Gideon is the commander of Scotland Yard's Criminal Investigation Division, the well-known C.I.D. As such, he always has at least half a dozen cases under consideration and the skill with which Marric interweaves these problems is no small part of the charm of his Gideon books.

In "Gideon's Lot," the commander is chiefly troubled by foreign invaders — a kidnapper and a murderer-raptist from the United States, a counterfeit ring from continental Europe, and an international watch-theft ring.

On top of all this, Gideon is confronted by a decision—shall he continue as C.I.D. commander or take a promotion to Assistant Commissioner for Crime, a job with considerable financial and prestige advantages that would take him out of active contact with police problems?

"Gideon's Lot" is a top-flight detective novel which should delight both Gideon fans and those who discover the Scotland Yard man for the first time in this book.

"The Fall of Eagles," by Zinaida Schakovskoy (Harcourt, Brace & World $6.95): A slice of Russian history that throws a new light on Tsar Peter I (the Great), who is commonly credited with opening the "window to the west" which made Russia a world power.

Princess Zinaida Schakovskoy argues, on what appears to be excellent authority, that Peter's accomplishments were in fact merely an extension and a distortion of the policies of his predecessors, notably Princess Regent Sophia, who goverened Russia during Peter's minority.

The princess argues that the westernization of Russia was begun by Tsars Alexis and Theodore III, father and half-brother respectively of Peter. They were men of good will but of relatively modest practical ability.

Sophia, Russia's first emancipated woman, gave practical effect to their liberal policies during her seven years as regent for the co-Tsars Ivan V, her semi-imbecile brother, and her half-brother Peter.

"The Fall of Eagles" is a persuasive account that sharply revises the general view of a crucial period of Russia's past. It is unfortunately difficult to read because of a complex literary style superimposed on the inevitable complexities of any Russian situation.

"Astrology," by Louis MacNeice (Doubleday, $9.95): The dictionary calls it a pseudo-science. Its practitioners often call it a true science. It was inseparable from the true science of astronomy in its beginning in ancient Babylonia, writes MacNeice in his beautifully illustrated, comprehensive volume.

True or pseudo, astrology seldom is dull. The chief reason for its continuing popularity may lie in the author's theory about its popularity with ancient man. To him, it was "an antidote to the precariousness of life."

MacNeice, the late poet-playwright-scholar, doesn't take sides in the continuing controversy, but manages to be both entertaining and scholarly in describing the history and practice of astrology. Historical tidbits include mention of a famous 13th century Italian astrologer who claimed that he could read menus in the stars—a service highly prized by persons undecided about accepting dinner invitations.

Many astrologers, ancient and modern, claimed o be expert advisors on marriage, health, careers and education.

Along with many beautiful illustrations, the book also contains charts and text to enable the reader to cas his own horoscope.

"The MacMillan Book of Boating," by William N. Wallace: (MacMillan $12.50 until Jan. 31 then $14.95): There are more old sailor's yarns in this exciting chronicle than you'd find in a coil of Manila hemp. But they are all well documented and woven together they give ample coverage to the history of American yachting over the past 150 years.

Yachting, writes the author who is boating correspondent for the New York Times, "is essentially a story of. . .the interplay between men capable of designing fine boats and men capable of paying for them."

The story begins in Salem, Mass., where eccentric shipowner George Crowninshield paid "a cool $50,000 in 1812 dollars" for the luxurious schooner Cleopatra's Barge. It continues through the America's Cup races, the era of giant steam yachts and speedy sandbaggers, to today's fiberglass sloops and cabin cruisers.

In 1964, more than 2 million Amercan yachtsmen are on record as having scraped together the funds to own pleasure craft ranging from 12-foot Sailfish up to 70-foot ocean racers. Boating has developed from a rich man's whim into a major summer sport.

Wallace's text is lively and authoritative. There are more than 200 illustrations, many in fullpage color and all salty in feeling. With the historical text, they add up to a well written, beautiful book.

"A New Analysis of the Election Returns" — There have been many attempts to explain the landslide defeat of the 1964 conservative presidential candidate. Most of the opinions assert that "a little more of this" or "a little more of that" was needed.

Just prior to the election, however, a 6-page analysis of conservatism was published by a man very much interested in the protection of private property. His message could be summed up thusly: "We who favor captalism have wrongly succumbed to the lure of conservatism, and conservatism can never win."

Written by Andrew J. Galambos, the pamphlet is entitled "Conservatism is not Capitalism; Capitalism is not Conservatism" (published by Liberal Publishing Company, Inc. P. O. Box 22189, Los Angeles 22, Calif.; 25 cents each, 100 for $5.00).

Galambos points out that the American Republic was the closest thing to true capitalism the world has ever seen; but that the Republic had within it the seeds of our present-day welfare state. The true capitalist, then, does not seek to "restore the Republic" — but instead to build upon it toward a society of even greater freedom.

He states that the goal is total capitalism — "the societal structure that produces freedom by ensuring that each individual is fully (100 per cent) in control of his own property . . . Either each individual controls his own lif and all of its derivatives — or he does not." Th egoal of capitalism is not impossible; but the social technology to acquire it has not been known in the past. Hence, it requires new ideas, new innovations to be achieved.

Political action is shown to be a futile mechanism for obtaining freedom. The conservative is held up to ridicule for "marching into the Dark Ages" because he promises fewer "goodies" than his opponent. Eventually, to win elections, the conservative is forced to compromise his principles to the point that his election is meaningless.

"The conservative believes that if more enlightened men are appointed or elected to high office and if the present restrictive laws are repealed then we will achieve freedom. What is wrong with this argument is that the trouble is not with men, but with a system that can do nothing but coerce. Regardless of who holds the reins of power, the individual is still at the mercy of the state authority. It is not true that good men will reform the state. It is true that the state will corrupt the best of men."

This pamphlet, published prior to the election, provides an insight to the frustration that inevitably accompanies conservative efforts to hold back the tide of socialism. — Brown.

Government Planning Versus Economic Growth

By HENRY HAZLITT

(Reprinted from a pamphlet by permission of International Freedom Academy, Zurich, Switzerland)

When we discuss "economic planning", we must be clear concerning what it is we are talking about. The real question being raised is not: plan or no plan? but whose plan?

Each of us, in his private capacity, is constantly planning for the future: what he will do the rest of today, the rest of the week, or on the weekend; what he will do this month or next year. Some of us are planning, though in a more general way, 10 or 20 years ahead.

We are making these plans both in our capacity as consumers and as producers. Employees are either planning to stay where they are, or to shift from one job to another, or from one company to another, or from one city to another, or even from one career to another. Entrepreneurs are either planning to stay in one location or to move to another, to expand or contract their operations, to stop making a product for which they think demand is dying and to start making one for which they think demand is going to grow.

Now the people who call themselves "Economic Planners" either ignore or by implication deny all this. They talk as if the world of private enterprise, the free market, supply, demand, and competition, were a world of chaos and anarchy, in which nobody ever planned ahead but merely drifted or staggered along. I once engaged in a television debate with an eminent Planner in a high official position who implied that without his forecasts and guidance American business would be "flying blind". At best, the Planners imply, the world of private enterprise is one in which everybody works or plans at cross purposes or makes his plans solely in his "private" interest rather than in the "public" interest.

Now the Planner wants to substitute his own plan for the plans of everybody else. At best, he wants the government to lay down a Master Plan to which everybody else's plan must be subordinated.

Planning Means Compulsion

It is this aspect of Planning to which our attention should be directed: Planning always involves compulsion. This may be disguised in various ways. The government Planners will, of course, try to persuade people that the Master Plan has been drawn up for their own good, and that the only persons who are going to be coerced are those whose plans are "not in the public interest".

The Planners will say, in the newly fashionable phraseology, that their plans are not "imperative", but merely "Indicative". They will make a great parade of "democracy", freedom, cooperation, and noncompulsion by "consulting all groups" — "Labor", "Industry", the Government, even "Consumers Representatives" — in drawing up the Master Plan and the specific "goals" or "targets". Of course, if they could really succeed in giving weight and voice and freedom of choice, if everybody were allowed to pursue the plan of production or consumption of specific goods and services that he had intended to pursue or would have pursued anyway, then the whole Plan would be useless and pointless, a complete waste of energy and time. The Plan would be meaningful only if it forced the production and consumption of different things than a free market would have provided. In short, it would be meaningful only insofar as it put compulsion on somebody and forced some change in the pattern of production and consumption. There are two excuses for this coercion. One is that the free market produces the wrong goods, and that only government planning and direction could assure the production of the "right" ones. This is the thesis popularized by J. K. Galbraith. The other excuse is that the free market does not produce enough goods, and that only government Planning could speed things up. This is the thesis of the apostles of "economic growth".

The Galbraith Thesis

Let us take up the "Galbraith" thesis first. I put his name in quotation marks because the thesis long antedates his presentation of it. It is the basis of all the communist "Five - Year Plans" which are now aped by a score of socialist nations. While these Plans may consist in setting out some general "overall" percentage of production increase, their characteristic feature is rather a whole network of specific "targets" for specific industries: there is to be a 25 per cent increase in steel capacity, a 15 per cent increase in cement production, a 12 per cent increase in butter and milk output, and so forth.

There is always a strong bias in these Plans, especially in the communist countries, in favor of heavy industry, because it gives increased power to make war. In all the Plans, however, even in noncommunist countries, there is a strong bias in favor of industrialization, of heavy industry as against agriculture, in the belief that this necessarily increases real income faster and leads to greater national self - sufficiency. It is not an accident that such countries are constantly running into agricultural crises and food famines.

But the Plans also reflect either the implied or explicit moral judgments of the government Planners. The latter seldom plan for an increased production of cigarettes or whisky, or, in fact, of any so - called "luxury" item. The standards are always grim and puritanical. The word "austerity" makes a chronic appearance. Consumers are told they must "tighten their belts" for a little longer. Sometimes, if the last Plan has not been too unsuccessful, there is a little relaxation: consumers can, perhaps, have a few more motor cars and hospitals and playgrounds. But there is almost never any provision for, say, more golf courses or even bowling alleys. In general, no form of expenditure is approved that cannot be universalized, or at least "majoritized". And such so - called luxury expenditure is discouraged, even in a so-called 'indicative" Plan, by not allowing access by promotors of such projects to bank credit or to the capital markets. At some point government coercion or compulsion comes into play.

This disapproval and coercion may rest on several grounds. Nearly all "austerity" programs stem from the belief, not that the person who wants to make a "luxury" expenditure cannot afford it, but that "the nation" cannot afford it. This involves the assumption that, if I set up a bowling alley or patronize one, I am somehow depriving my fellow citizens of more necessary goods or services. This would be true only on the assumption that the proper thing to do is to tax my so-called surplus income away from me and turn it over to others in the form of money, goods, or services. But if I am allowed to keep my "surplus" income, and am forbidden to spend it on bowling alleys or on imported wine and cheese, I will spend it on something else that is not forbidden. Thus when the British austerity program after World World II prevented an Englishman from consuming imported luxuries, on the ground that "the nation" could not afford the "foreign exchange" or the "unfavorable balance of payments", officials were shocked to find that the money was being squandered on football pools or dog races. And there is no reason to suppose, in any case, that the "dollar shortage" or the "unfavorable balance of payments" was helped in the least. The austerity program, insofar as it was not enforced by higher income taxes, probably cut down potential exports as much as it did potential imports: and insofar as it was enforced by higher income taxes, it discouraged exports by restricting and discouraging production.

But we come now to the specific Galbraith thesis, growing out of the age - long bureaucratic suspicion of luxury spending, that consumers generally do not know how to spend the income they have earned; that they buy whatever advertisers tell them to buy; that consumers are, in short, boobs and suckers, chronically wasting their money on trivialities, if not on absolute trash. The bulk of consumers also, if left to themselves, show atrocious taste, and crave cerise automobiles with ridiculous tailfins.

The natural conclusion from all this — and Galbraith does not hesitate to draw it — is that consumers ought to be deprived of freedom of choice, and that government bureaucrats, full of wisdom — of course, of a very unconventional wisdom — should make their consumptive choices for them. The consumers should be supplied, not with what they themselves want, but with what bureaucrats of exquisite taste and culture think is good for them. And the way to do this is to tax away from people all the income they have been foolish enough to earn above that requirement to meet their bare necessities and turn it over to the bureaucrats to be spent in ways which the latter think would really do people the most good — more and better roads and parks and playgrounds and schools and television programs — all supplied, of course, by government.

"Private" Vs. "Public" Sector

And here Galbraith resorts to a neat semantic trick. The goods and services for which people voluntarily spend their own money make up, in his vocabulary, the "private sector" of the economy, while the goods and services supplied to them by the government, out of the income it has seized from them in taxes, make up the "public sector". Now the adjective "private" carries an aura of the selfish and exclusive, the inward - looking, whereas the adjective "public" carries an aura of the democratic, the shared, the generous, the patriotic, the outward - looking —in brief, the public - spirited. And as the tendency of the expanding welfare state has been in fact, to take out of private hands and more and more take into its own hands provision of the goods and services that are considered to be most essential and most edifying — roads and water supply, schools and hospitals and scientific research, education, old - age insurance and medical care — the tendency must be increasingly to associate the word "public" with everything that is really necessary and laudable leaving the "private sector" to be associated merely with the superfluities and capricious wants and vices that are left over after everything that is really important has been taken care of.

If the distinction between the two "sectors" were put in more neutral terms — say, the "private sector" versus the "governmental sector", the scales would not be so heavily weighted in favor of the latter. In fact, this more neutral vocabulary would raise in the mind of the hearer the question whether certain activities now assumed by the modern welfare state do legitimately or appropriately come within the governmental province. For Galbraith's use of the word "sector", "private" or "public" cleverly carries the implication that the public "sector" is legitimately not only whatever the government has already taken over but a great deal besides. Galbraith's whole point is that the "public sector" is "starved" in favor of a "private sector" overstuffed with superfluties and trash.

The true distinction, and the appropriate vocabulary, however, would throw an entirely different light on the matter. What Galbraith calls the "private sector" of the economy is, in fact, the voluntary sector; and what he calls the "public sector" is, in fact, the coercive sector. The voluntary sector is made up of the goods and services for which people voluntarily spend the money they have earned. The coercion sector is made up of the goods and services that are provided, regardless of the wishes of the individual, out of the taxes that are seized from him. And as this sector grows at the expense of the voluntary sector, we come to the essence of the welfare state. In this state nobody pays for the education of his own children but everybody pays for the education of everybody else's children. Nobody pays his own medical bills, but everybody pays everybody else's medical bills. Nobody helps his own old parents, but everybody else's old parents. Nobody provides for the contingency of his own unemployment, his own sickness, his own old age, but everybody provides for the unemployment, sickness, or old age of everybody else. The welfare state, as Bastiat put it with uncanny clairvoyance more than a century ago, is the great fiction by which everybody tries to live at the expense of everybody else.

This is not only a fiction; it is bound to be a failure. This is sure to be the outcome whenever effort is separated from reward. When people who earn more than the average have their "surplus", or the greater part of it, seized from them in taxes, and when people who earn less than the average have the deficiency, or the greater part of it, turned over to them in handouts and doles, the production of all must sharply decline; for the energetic and able lose their incentive to produce more than the average, and the slothful and unskilled lose their incentive to improve their condition.

The Growth Planners

I have spent so much time in analyzing the fallacies of the Galbraithian school of economic Planners that I have left myself little space in which to analyze the Growth Planners Many of their fallacies are the same; but there are some important differences.

The chief difference is that the Galbraithians believe that a free market economy produces too much (though, of course, they are the "wrong" goods) whereas the Growthmen believe that a free market economy does not produce nearly enough. I will postpone for the moment discussion of some of the statistical errors, gaps, and fallacies in their arguments. Here I want to concentrate on their idea that some form of government direction or coercion can by some strange magic increase production above the level that can be achieved when everybody enjoys economic freedom.

For it seems to me self - evident that when people are free, production tends to be, if not maximized, at least optimized. This is because, in a system of free markets and private property, everybody's reward tends to equal the value of his production. What he gets for his production (and is allowed to keep) is in fact what it is worth in the market. If he wants to double his income in a single year, he is free to try — and may succeed if he is able to double his contribution to production in a single year. If he is content with the income he has — or if he feels that he can only get more by excessive effort or risk — he is under no pressure to increase his output. In a free market everyone is free to maximize his satisfactions, whether these consist in more leisure or in more goods.

But along comes the Growth Planner. He finds by statistics (whose trustworthiness and accuracy he never doubts) that the economy has been growing, say, only 2.8 per cent a year. He concludes, in a flash of genius, that a growth rate of 5 per cent a year would be faster. How does he propose to achieve this?

There is among the Growth Planners a profound mystical belief in the power of words. They declare that they "are not satisfied" with a growth rate of a mere 2.8 per cent a year. And once having spoken, they act as if half the job had already been done. If they did not assume this, it would be impossible to explain the deep earnestness with which they argue among themselves whether the growth rate "ought" to be 4 or 5 or 6 per cent. (The only thing they always agree on is that it ought to be greater than whatever it actually is.) Having decided on this magic overall figure, they then proceed either to set specific targets for specific goods (and here they are at one with the Russian Five-Year Planners) or to announce some general recipe for reaching the overall rate.

But why do they assume that setting their magic target rate will increase the rate of production over the existing one? And how is their growth rate supposed to apply as far as the individual is concerned? Is the man who is already making $50,000 a year to be coerced into working for an income of $52,500 next year? Is the man who is making only $5,000 a year to be forbidden to make more than $5,250 next year? If not, what is gained by making a specific "annual growth rate" a governmental "target"? Why not just permit or encourage everybody to do his best, or make his own decision, and let the average "growth" be whatever it turns out to be?

Statistical Fallacies

Now let us get back to some of the statistical errors and fallacies that I mentioned a little while back.

One of them will be plain from what we have just been discussing. This is the fallacy of speaking of a "national" rate of growth. The ambiguity of this should be evident. A gross rate of growth of national income may appear in the official statistics accompanied by an increase in the population of a country. One can have a growth in national GNP accompanied by a fall in per capita incomes. Even aside from this, it should be obvious that an average increase in per capita incomes in a country does not necessarily tell us much regarding the fate of individuals. An average increase in per capita incomes may mask a fall in the incomes of some groups if this is more than offset by a rise in the incomes of others. For example, if the rich got richer and the poor got poorer, the average per capita figures might still conceivably show a rise.

Again, there are several pitfalls in dealing with percentage figures. The smaller the base from which we start, the less the absolute increase in the production of anything has to be in order to show a very large percentage increase. To begin with an extreme example, if only one family in a country has a bathtub, and the next year fifty families get one, the rate of growth is 5,000 percent. But once everybody in that country has a bathtub, net growth stops. This principle applies to houses, automobiles, radios, television sets, and everything else. From the day of his birth, a boy baby grows in weight an average of 195 per cent in his first year. He never even approaches this record thereafter.

It should not be surprising that there has been found to be a long - run tendency for industrial growth rates to slow down as the level of production in any country gets higher. This results partly from the enlargement of the base, and partly from a physical satiety point in human needs.

Let us take the history of a specific economic product — television. Output of television sets in the United States in 1946 was 7,000. In 1947 this output had risen to 200,000, making a growth rate of 2,757 per cent. In 1948 the U.S. produced 975-000 sets — making a growth rate of only 387 per cent. In 1949 output rose to 3,029,000 sets — but the growth rate was only 211 per cent. In 1950 production jumped to 7,464,000 sets; but the growth rate now was only 146 per cent. Though output was accelerating enormously in absolute amounts, percentage rates of growth were constantly falling. And since 1950 the rate of growth has stopped entirely. Yet the U.S. has continued to turn out from 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 sets a year — and of course, now has the highest total number of sets working, old and new, in its history. Certainly many other countries in the world must now be surpassing the U.S. rate of growth in this particular product. The more backward the country, probably the higher the present growth rate in production or purchase of television sets.

Not Volume But Value

Suppose we turn now to some of the more basic general problems raised in the compilation of total gross national output figures. The first thing we have to remember is that these are not and cannot be purely objective figures. What we are measuring is not physical volume or weight, but value. The statistician is forced to resort to his own arbitrary values. Shall he include, for example, in the national income figures the compensation of burglars, blackmailers, and drug peddlers? How is he to draw the line between what are usually called economic goods and such activities as washing, shaving, and playing for amusement on the piano? Yet such activities do not differ from the same activities carried on for money as services to other people — such as nursing, barbering, and giving concerts. The statistician is forced to include only items that are dealt in on the market. But this excludes all do - it - yourself activities, which in total are probably enormous, and it excludes all the products of the family economy, including all the activities of housewives. So we get the paradox, for example, that when a man marries his cook, the value of her work disappears from the national income accounts.

But there are further problems. How is the statistician to treat government activities? Official figures practically always do include these in making up the national income accounts. But there is no market test or gauge of their value. Most people would admit that policemen, firemen and judges make a contribution to the national income equivalent to the cost of their services. But how about a host of bureaucrats whose activities might merely redistribute income, or might actually restrain and disrupt production through imposition or enforcement of unwise regulations?

Again, how do we count government redistribution of income through subsidized housing, farm price supports, social security pensions, doles to the unemployed, subsidized medicine, etc? Most government statisticians count the income that is handed out to the recipients without deducting from the gross national product figures the income that is taxed away from those who are forced to contribute.

To illustrate, let us take an elementary example. Suppose, in a community of three persons, that two persons have an annual income of $3,000 each and the third has no income at all. The community income is $6,000. Now suppose the government levies a tax of a third, or 33 1-3 per cent, on the two persons who have the $3,000 income, and gives the $1,000 that it takes from each of them to the third person. Then these two people have left only an income of $2,000 each to match the income of $2,000 given, say, to the unemployed person. The amount of total income in that community is the same as it was before. The disposable income of each person is $2,000; and their total income is $6,000. But most government statisticians would still credit the first two persons with their original earned income of $3,000 each. So that, plus the $2,000 given to the unemployed person, the three of them would now be credited with a total income of $8,000 — an increase of 33 1-3 per cent. Thus redistribution of wealth and social welfare plans almost invariably increase the gross national product estimate.

Measuring Leisure And Liberty

But now we come to still another problem in the statistical measurement and comparison of national income or gross national product figures. All these figures measure national output multiplied by the monetary value of that output. But they do not measure leisure or the satisfactions of leisure. Yet these are primary concerns in individual welfare. In the U.S. there is, on the average, a forty-hour working week. A couple of generations ago, there was a sixty or seventy hour typical working week. Now a community that can turn out its national product in an average week of forty hours is obviously immensely better off in economic satisfactions than another community of equal numbers that turns out the same physical product but requires a seventy-hour average working week to do it. I will not elaborate upon this, but simply point out that it is only one of the considerations that make any precise comparison of national incomes of different countries invalid.

Of course all economic planning, as we have already seen, must necessarily involve compulsion and coercion — in other words, a loss of liberty on the part of the citizens. This loss of liberty is a substantial cost, which some of us would rank very high; but it is never counted by the economic planners. Again, like the loss of leisure, the loss of liberty is another factor which makes statistical comparisons between, say the GNP of the United States and Soviet Russia dubious and invalid.

All economic planning by a government involves problems of arbitrary allocation, arbitrary quotas for thousands of commodities and services, allocations of work, and allocations of income and consumption. And among the most serious of these, though the growth planners almost never mention it, are what we may call intertemporal problems and allocations. When the growth planners decide that we must grow economically 5 or 6 per cent a year, or whatever rate, they are arbitrarily deciding that we are entitled to consume only a certain percentage of our output in any one year, and must set aside the rest in order to have greater production in the future. But is it always and under all conditions desirable to sacrifice the present to the future? Is it always desirable for the present generation to consume less so that people still unborn (whom we do not even know) should consume more? I shall not try to answer this question. I wish merely to point out here that economic growth has a cost — that the higher we wish to make this rate of economic growth, the more we must restrain and constrict consumption in the present to make it possible. This cost is entirely ignored by most of the growth planners.

Finally, we have to ask, what is it that is measured by the gross national product figures? What is being measured is the marginal market value of thousands of goods and services, in terms of money, multiplied by the total quantities of such goods and services. (Of course any inflation of the currency will multiply this figure correspondingly without adding an iota to the economic satisfaction that anybody gets. I will come back to this in a moment). What I wish to point out here is that if we increase the supply of anything (with the money supply remaining constant), the marginal value of that commodity, and hence its price falls So if there is no inflation of the currency, an increase in production leads to a fall in prices And this fall in prices is likely to be much greater proportionately than the increase in production. It has been recognized for many years, for example, that a larger wheat crop will ordinarily have a smaller total dollar value than a smaller crop. This in fact, is the basis of all crop restriction schemes. But this merely illustrates a wider principle. It is not "value-in-use", but scarcity, that determines "value-in-exchange", or money price. Water is an indispensable commodity that ordinarily commands no price at all. If more and more things become plentiful (except dollars) the national income, as measured in dollars might begin to fall. And if we could imagine a situation in which everything we could wish for were in as adequate supply as air and water, we might have no (monetary) national income at all!

Inflation Vs. Growth

Most of the advocates of economic growth through government action in fact put their major faith in one overall policy — inflation.

This policy, however, is almost never recommended under that name. The growth planners simply argue (along Keynesian lines) that growth has been slow or business stagnant because of an "insufficiency of aggregate demand"; and they think this can be rectified by more government spending. Some of these planners are candid enough openly to advocate government deficits. For they recognize that if the increased government spending is paid for out of increased taxation, then the taxpayers lose exactly as much "purchasing power" as the government gains. They also recognize that if the increased government spending is financed by a bond issue bought by individuals out of real savings, the bondbuyers lose as much purchasing power for other things as the government gains

They recognize, finally, that if the government raises, say $10 billion in the investment market, this either leaves just that much less funds available for investment in private industry or pushes up interest rates. And high interest rates, other things being equal, discourage business expansion and investment.

So the only way to get the "increased purchasing power" is to increase the money supply. If a country is already frankly on a paper - money basis, it merely runs the printing presses a little faster. If, like the United States, it is on the semblance of a gold standard, it does this through the central bank. The usual process is for the bank to buy government securities in the open market and "monetize" them.

But does the increase in money supply necessarily promote economic growth? If there is already full employment and no substantial idle capacity the new money will simply lead to an increase in wages and prices. If there is less than full employment the new money, can, it is true, at least temporarily increase employment if it leads to an increased demand for products or to higher prices for products without also leading to correspondingly increased wage rates.

Those who propose the inflationary solution for unemployment always forget to ask themselves what has caused the unemployment. The long - run cause will always be found to be some discoordination of prices and wages. This can take many forms. Commonly wage - rates in some lines will be too high in relation to prices or to the demand for particular products. But wage-price coordination, in such cases, can be restored and maintained if there are free - market wages and free - market prices flexible in both directions. Inflation is not necessary to restore such coordination. Moreover, any price - wage adjustment brought about by inflation is likely to be only temporary. For labor unions, finding more demand for their services, or trying to "catch up" with rising living costs, demand still higher wages, with the result that the discoordination of wages and prices may be brought about all over again, and the situation can be cured once more only by a still further dose of inflation.

As long as the government authorities encourage or tolerate a system that makes it possible for unions constantly to demand and secure uneconomic wage rates, to which prices can be adjusted only by successive doses of inflation the authorities must encourage the continuance and perpetuation of such discoordination. This must retard economic growth.

Inflation Falsifies Calculation

Inflation is not only unnecessary for economic growth. As long as it exists it is the enemy of economic growth. It distorts and falsifies economic calculation. An economy grows and functions at its maximum rate when the relationship of prices and wages and profits, and the whole balance of production among thousands of different commodities and services are such as to lead to an equalization of profit margins because of correct anticipations of the relationship of supply and demand, of prices, production and costs.

But when inflation forces up prices, prices do not all rise in the same proportion and at the same rate. It becomes very difficult for business men to distinguish between what is lasting and what is merely temporary, or to know what the real demands of consumers will be or what the real costs of their own operations are. Depreciation and replacement allowances will be inadequate. Profits will be over-estimated and overstated. Businessmen everywhere will be deceived. They will be using up their real capital when they think they are increasing it. They will think they have profits or capital gains when they really have losses.

A vital function of the free market is to penalize inefficiency and misjudgment and to reward efficiency and good judgment. By distorting economic calculations and creating illusory profits, inflation will destroy this function. Because nearly everybody will seem to prosper, there will be all sorts of maladjustments and investments in the wrong lines Honest work and sound production will tend to give way to speculation and gambling. There will be a deterioration in the quality of goods and services and in the real standard of living.

The price and wage rises brought about by inflation will lead to public demands for price and wage controls. The government will be only too receptive to such demands because price and wage controls tacitly put the blame for the inflation on those who are getting the prices government's policies. But these price and wage controls will reduce, distort and disrupt production, and do far more harm even than the inflation itself.

What is likely even before price control is the institution of some sort of exchange control, to prevent the quotation of the home currency from falling in terms of other currencies. But the effect of such an exchange control, overvaluing the domestic currency, will be to bring about a deficit in the balance of payments. It will discourage imports, because they will be overpriced compared with foreign goods. It will encourage imports. The exchange authorities, to prevent this, will institute a quota and licensing system. But this will disrupt foreign trade.

I have yet to mention what many will consider the most important reason of all why inflation must in the long run retard rather than accelerate economic growth. Its effect must be to discourage monetary savings, and to encourage personal spending on immediate consumption. To this extent it must discourage and reduce capital formation, the principal cause of economic growth.

Of course inflation does temporarily stimulate investment in certain directions. When it is going on it makes nearly every venture look profitable in monetary terms. It therefore provides a strong incitement to reinvestment of profits and to the purchase of equity shares (though not of mortgages and bonds). But, as we have already seen, inflation falsifies all the signals and confuses and distorts economic calculation. What it tends to stimulate is malinvestment. By misdirecting investment into the wrong channels it leads to great waste and must retard

Federal Tax Tips

By ROGER E. WARD
Administrative Representative
Internal Revenue Service

CASUALTY, THEFT LOSSES—A "one hundred dollar deductible" provision on personal casualty and theft losses was part of the 1964 tax law. The first $100 of each personal casualty or theft loss will not be deductible on Federal income tax returns. A husband and wife filing a joint return will have to meet but one $100 deductible limit for each separate casulaty or theft in which they either jointly or separately suffer a loss. However if they file separate returns each will have to meet the $100 floor for each separate loss. All Business losses will continue to be fully deductible. In cases where there is damage to a car used for both business and pleasure, the $100 deductible will apply to that portion of the loss charged to personal use. Assume in such a case that the business use is fully deductible. However, the new law permits only $200 of the $300 personal part of the loss to be deducted on tax returns. The property losses arising from fire, storm, or other casualty or theft are covered by the law. Deductions may be taken only on that part of the loss not reimbursed by insurance or otherwise.

MEDICINES AND DRUGS—Medicine and drug expenses for taxpayers 65 years and older will be fully deductible on this year's Federal income tax returns. The full deductibility of these expenses under the 1964 Revenue Act. This will save elderly taxpayers about $10 million a year in taxes. Under previous law, expenses for medicines and drugs were included in medical expenses to the extent they exceeded one per cent of adjusted gross income. Elimination of the one per cent floor applies to the medicine and drug expenses of a taxpayer had his spouse if either is age 65 or over. It also applies to sllch expenses paid on behalf of dependent parents age 65 or over. There are no other changes in the provisions regarding the deductibility of medical expenses. These expenses are fully deductible, subject to certain maximum limitations, for taxpayers 65 and over but are not subject to the three per cent floor for taxpayers under 65. The one per cent floor on medicine and drug expenses for taxpayers under 65 continues in effect.

Holiday Hazard: Drivers Too Full Of 'Good Cheer'

Even though this is the season of good cheer, celebrators today were cautioned against getting too full of "good cheer" before climbing behind the wheel of an automobile.

In the next couple of weeks, suggested the Rocky Mountain AAA Club, streets and highways might be plagued with more drivers "who had been drinking" and more outright drunk drivers than in all the other weeks of the year combined.

It's bad enough, other seasons, having to share the highways with a certain number of drivers who had been drinking, commented an auto club spokesman, but the hazards are multiplied manyfold at this time of the year as inexperienced drinkers try to wend their way home from office parties and open houses.

Unfortunately, added the AAA official, not all of those drivers will make it home safely. Some will have celebrated the season of good cheer for the last time.

But, suggested the auto club, it's possible to celebrate and still get home safely if these few rules are followed:

—Don't stay all night at an alcoholic open house. More than likely, your host expects you to go home after a drink or two.

—If the party is too good to leave, concentrate on the hors d'oeuvres instead of the beverages.

—When you climb in the car to drive home, admit to yourself that you have an alcoholic handicap for which you must compensate, and drive with more-than-usual caution.

—And if you know you have imbibed beyond the point of being able to compensate, let someone else drive you home.

The South American installation will replace the present French testing grounds in the Sahara Desert, which France is pledged to dismantle by July, 1967.

Government Planning Versus Economic Growth

By HENRY HAZLITT

(Reprinted from a pamphlet by permission of International Freedom Academy, Zurich, Switzerland)

When we discuss "economic planning", we must be clear concerning what it is we are talking about. The real question being raised is not: plan or no plan? but whose plan?

Each of us, in his private capacity, is constantly planning for the future: what he will do the rest of today, the rest of the week, or on the weekend; what he will do this month or next year. Som. of us are planning, though in a more general way, 10 or 20 years ahead.

We are making these plans both in our capacity as consumers and as producers. Employees are either planning to stay where they are, or to shift from one job to another, or from one company to another, or from one city to another, or even from one career to another. Entrepreneurs are either planning to stay in one location or to move to another, to expand or contract their operations, to stop making a product for which they think demand is dying and to start making one for which they think demand is going to grow.

Now the people who call themselves "Economic Planners" either ignore or by implication deny all this. They talk as if the world of private enterprise, the free market, supply, demand, and competition, were a world of chaos and anarchy, in which nobody ever planned ahead but merely drifted or staggered along. I once engaged in a television debate with an eminent Planner in a high official position who implied that without his forecasts and guidance American business would be "flying blind". At best, the Planners imply, the world of private enterprise is one in which everybody works or plans at cross purposes or makes his plans solely in his "private" interest rather than in the "public" interest.

Now the Planner wants to substitute his own plan for the plans of everybody else. At best, he wants the government to lay down a Master Plan to which everybody else's plan must be subordinated.

Planning Means Compulsion

It is this aspect of Planning to which our attention should be directed: Planning always involves compulsion. This may be disguised in various ways. The government Planners will, of course, try to persuade people that the Master Plan has been drawn up for their own good, and that the only persons who are going to be coerced are those whose plans are "not in the public interest".

The Planners will say, in the newly fashionable phraseology, that their plans are not "imperative", but merely "Indicative". They will make a great parade of "democracy", freedom, cooperation, and noncompulsion by "consulting all groups" — "Labor", "Industry", the Government, even "Consumers Representatives" — in drawing up the Master Plan and the specific "goals" or "targets". Of course, if they could really succeed in giving weight and voice and freedom of choice, if everybody were allowed to pursue the plan of production or consumption of specific goods and services that he had intended to pursue or would have pursued anyway, then the whole Plan would be useless and pointless, a complete waste of energy and time. The Plan would be meaningful only if it forced the production and consumption of different things than a free market would have provided. In short, it would be meaningful only insofar as it put compulsion on somebody and forced some change in the pattern of production and consumption. There are two excuses for this coercion. One is that the free market produces the wrong goods, and that only government planning and direction could assure the production of the "right" ones. This is the thesis popularized by J. K. Galbraith. The other excuse is that the free market does not produce enough goods, and that only government Planning could speed things up. This is the thesis of the apostles of "economic growth".

The Galbraith Thesis

Let us take up the "Galbraith" thesis first. I put his name in quotation marks because the thesis long antedates his presentation of it. It is the basis of all the communist "Five - Year Plans" which are now aped by a score of socialist nations. While these Plans may consist in setting out some general "overall" percentage of production increase, their characteristic feature is rather a whole network of specific "targets" for specific industries: there is to be a 25 per cent increase in steel capacity, a 15 per cent increase in cement production, a 12 per cent increase in butter and milk output, and so forth.

There is always a strong bias in these Plans, especially in the communist countries, in favor of heavy industry, because it gives increased power to make war. In all the Plans, however, even in noncommunist countries, there is a strong bias in favor of industrialization, of heavy industry as against agriculture, in the belief that this necessarily increases real income faster and leads to greater national self - sufficiency. It is not an accident that such countries are constantly running into agricultural crises and food famines.

But the Plans also reflect either the implied or explicit moral judgments of the government Planners. The latter seldom plan for an increased production of cigarettes or whisky, or, in fact, of any so - called "luxury" item. The standards are always grim and puritanical. The word "austerity" makes a chronic appearance. Consumers are told they must "tighten their belts" for a little longer. Sometimes, if the last Plan has not been too unsuccessful, there is a little relaxation: consumers can, perhaps, have a few more motor cars and hospitals and playgrounds. But there is almost never any provision for, say, more golf courses or even bowling alleys. In general, no form of expenditure is approved that cannot be universalized, or at least "majoritized". And such so - called luxury expenditure is discouraged, even in a so-called 'indicative'' Plan, by not allowing access by promotors of such projects to bank credit or to the capital markets. At some point government coercion or compulsion comes into play.

This disapproval and coercion may rest on several grounds. Nearly all "austerity" programs stem from the belief, not that the person who wants to make a "luxury" expenditure cannot afford it, but that "the nation" cannot afford it. This involves the assumption that, if I set up a bowling alley or patronize one, I am somehow depriving my fellow citizens of more necessary goods or services. This would be true only on the assumption that the proper thing to do is to tax my so-called surplus income away from me and turn it over to others in the form of money, goods, or services. But if I am allowed to keep my "surplus" income, and am forbidden to spend it on bowling alleys or on imported wine and cheese, I will spend it on something else that is not forbidden. Thus when the British austerity program after World World II prevented an Englishman from consuming imported luxuries, on the ground that "the nation" could not afford the "foreign exchange" or the "unfavorable balance of payments", officials were shocked to find that the money was being squandered on football pools or dog races. And there is no reason to suppose, in any case, that the "dollar shortage" or the "unfavorable balance of payments" was helped in the least. The austerity program, insofar as it was not enforced by higher income taxes, probably cut down potential exports as much as it did potential imports: and insofar as it was enforced by higher income taxes, it discouraged exports by restricting and discouraging production.

But we come now to the specific Galbraith thesis, growing out of the age - long bureaucratic suspicion of luxury spending, that consumers generally do not know how to spend the income they have earned; that they buy whatever advertisers tell them to buy; that consumers are, in short, boobs and suckers, chronically wasting their money on trivialities, if not on absolute trash. The bulk of consumers also, if left to themselves, show atrocious taste, and crave cerise automobiles with ridiculous tailfins.

The natural conclusion from all this — and Galbraith does not hesitate to draw it — is that consumers ought to be deprived of freedom of choice, and that government bureaucrats, full of wisdom — of course, of a very unconventional wisdom — should make their consumptive choices for them. The consumers should be supplied, not with what they themselves want, but with what bureaucrats of exquisite taste and culture think is good for them. And the way to do this is to tax away from people all the income they have been foolish enough to earn above that requirement to meet their bare necessities and turn it over to the bureaucrats to be spent in ways which the latter think would really do people the most good — more and better roads and parks and playgrounds and schools and television programs — all supplied, of course, by government.

"Private" Vs. "Public" Sector

And here Galbraith resorts to a neat semantic trick. The goods and services for which people voluntarily spend their own money make up, in his vocabulary, the "private sector" of the economy, while the goods and services supplied to them by the government, out of the income it has seized from them in taxes, make up the "public sector". Now the adjective "private" carries an aura of the selfish and exclusive, the inward - looking, whereas the adjective "public" carries an aura of the democratic, the shared, the generous, the patriotic, the outward - looking —in brief, the public - spirited. And as the tendency of the expanding welfare state has been in fact, to take out of private hands and more and more take into its own hands provision of the goods and services that are considered to be most essential and most edifying — roads and water supply, schools and hospitals and scientific research, education, old - age insurance and medical care — the tendency must be increasingly to associate the word "public" with everything that is really necessary and laudable leaving the "private sector" to be associated merely with the superfluities and capricious wants and vices that are left over after everything that is really important has been taken care of.

If the distinction between the two "sectors" were put in more neutral terms — say, the "private sector" versus the "governmental sector", the scales would not be so heavily weighted in favor of the latter. In fact, this more neutral vocabulary would raise in the mind of the hearer the question whether certain activities now assumed by the modern welfare state do legitimately or appropriately come within the governmental province. For Galbraith's use of the word "sector", "private" or "public" cleverly carries the implication that the public "sector" is legitimately not only whatever the government has already taken over but a great deal besides. Galbraith's whole point is that the "public sector" is "starved" in favor of a "private sector" overstuffed with superfluities and trash.

The true distinction, and the appropriate vocabulary, however, would throw an entirely different light on the matter. What Galbraith calls the "private sector" of the economy is, in fact, the voluntary sector; and what he calls the "public sector" is, in fact, the coercive sector. The voluntary sector is made up of the goods and services for which people voluntarily spend the money they have earned. The coercion sector is made up of the goods and services that are provided, regardless of the wishes of the individual, out of the taxes that are seized from him. And as this sector grows at the expense of the voluntary sector, we come to the essence of the welfare state. In this state nobody pays for the education of his own children but everybody pays for the education of everybody else's children. Nobody pays his own medical bills, but everybody pays everybody else's medical bills. Nobody helps his own old parents, but everybody else's old parents. Nobody provides for the contingency of his own unemployment, his own sickness, his own old age, but everybody provides for the unemployment, sickness, or old age of everybody else. The welfare state, as Bastiat put it with uncanny clairvoyance more than a century ago, is the great fiction by which everybody tries to live at the expense of everybody else.

This is not only a fiction; it is bound to be a failure. This is sure to be the outcome whenever effort is separated from reward. When people who earn more than the average have their "surplus", or the greater part of it, seized from them in taxes, and when people who earn less than the average have the deficiency, or the greater part of it, turned over to them in handouts and doles, the production of all must sharply decline; for the energetic and able lose their incentive to produce more than the average, and the slothful and unskilled lose their incentive to improve their condition.

The Growth Planners

I have spent so much time in analyzing the fallacies of the Galbraithian school of economic Planners that I have left myself little space in which to analyze the Growth Planners. Many of their fallacies are the same; but there are some important differences.

The chief difference is that the Galbraithians believe that a free market economy produces too much (though, of course, they are the "wrong" goods) whereas the Growthmen believe that a free market economy does not produce nearly enough. I will postpone for the moment discussion of some of the statistical errors, gaps, and fallacies in their arguments. Here I want to concentrate on their idea that some form of government direction or coercion can by some strange magic increase production above the level that can be achieved when everybody enjoys economic freedom.

For it seems to me self - evident that when people are free, production tends to be, if not maximized, at least optimized. This is because, in a system of free markets and private property, everybody's reward tends to equal the value of his production. What he gets for his production (and is allowed to keep) is in fact what it is worth in the market. If he wants to double his income in a single year, he is free to try — and may succeed if he is able to double his contribution to production in a single year. If he is content with the income he has — or if he feels that he can only get more by excessive effort or risk — he is under no pressure to increase his output. In a free market everyone is free to maximize his satisfactions, whether these consist in more leisure or in more goods.

But along comes the Growth Planner. He finds by statistics (whose trustworthiness and accuracy he never doubts) that the economy has been growing, say, only 2.8 per cent a year. He concludes, in a flash of genius, that a growth rate of 5 per cent a year would be faster. How does he propose to achieve this?

There is among the Growth Planners a profound mystical belief in the power of words. They declare that they "are not satisfied" with a growth rate of a mere 2.8 per cent a year. And once having spoken, they act as if half the job had already been done. If they did not assume this, it would be impossible to explain the deep earnestness with which they argue among themselves whether the growth rate "ought" to be 4 or 5 or 6 per cent. (The only thing they always agree on is that it ought to be greater than whatever it actually is.) Having decided on this magic overall figure, they then proceed either to set specific targets for specific goods (and here they are at one with the Russian Five-Year Planners) or to announce some general recipe for reaching the overall rate.

But why do they assume that setting their magic target rate will increase the rate of production over the existing one? And how is their growth rate supposed to apply as far as the individual is concerned? Is the man who is already making $50,000 a year to be coerced into working for an income of $52,500 next year? Is the man who is making only $5,000 a year to be forbidden to make more than $5,250 next year? If not, what is gained by making a specific "annual growth rate" a governmental "target"? Why not just permit or encourage everybody to do his best, or make his own decision, and let the average "growth" be whatever it turns out to be?

Statistical Fallacies

Now let us get back to some of the statistical errors and fallacies that I mentioned a little while back.

One of them will be plain from what we have just been discussing. This is the fallacy of speaking of a "national" rate of growth. The ambiguity of this should be evident. A gross rate of growth of national income may appear in the official statistics accompanied by an increase in the population of a country. One can have a growth in national GNP accompanied by a fall in per capita incomes. Even aside from this, it should be obvious that an average increase in per capita incomes in a country does not necessarily tell us much regarding the fate of individuals. An average increase in per capita incomes may mask a fall in the incomes of some groups if this is more than offset by a rise in the incomes of others. For example, if the rich got richer and the poor got poorer, the average per capita figures might still conceivably show a rise.

Again, there are several pitfalls in dealing with percentage figures. The smaller the base from which we start, the less the absolute increase in the production of anything has to be in order to show a very large percentage increase. To begin with an extreme example, if only one family in a country has a bathtub, and the next year fifty families get one, the rate of growth is 5,000 percent. But once everybody in that country has a bathtub, net growth stops. This principle applies to houses, automobiles, radios, television sets, and everything else. From the day of his birth, a boy baby grows in weight an average of 195 per cent in his first year. He never even approaches this record thereafter.

It should not be surprising that there has been found to be a long - run tendency for industrial growth rates to slow down as the level of production in any country gets higher. This results partly from the enlargement of the base, and partly from a physical satiety point in human needs.

Let us take the history of a specific economic product — television. Output of television sets in the United States in 1946 was 7,000. In 1947 this output had risen to 200,000, making a growth rate of 2,757 per cent. In 1948 the U.S. produced 975-000 sets — making a growth rate of only 387 per cent. In 1949 output rose to 3,029,000 sets — but the growth rate was only 211 per cent. In 1950 production jumped to 7,464,000 sets; but the growth rate now was only 146 per cent. Though output was accelerating enormously in absolute amounts, percentage rates of growth were constantly falling. And since 1950 the rate of growth has stopped entirely. Yet the U.S. has continued to turn out from 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 sets a year — and of course, now has the highest total number of sets working, old and new, in its history. Certainly many other countries in the world must now be surpassing the U.S. rate of growth in this particular product. The more backward the country, probably the higher the present growth rate in production or purchase of television sets.

Not Volume But Value

Suppose we turn now to some of the more basic general problems raised in the compilation of total gross national output figures. The first thing we have to remember is that these are not and cannot be purely objective figures. What we are measuring is not physical volume or weight, but value. The statistician is forced to resort to his own arbitrary values. Shall he include, for example, in the national income figures the compensation of burglars, blackmailers, and drug peddlers? How is he to draw the line between what are usually called economic goods and such activities as washing, shaving, and playing for amusement on the piano? Yet such activities do not differ from the same activities carried on for money as services to other people — such as nursing, barbering, and giving concerts. The statistician is forced to include only items that are dealt in on the market. But this excludes all do - it - yourself activities, which in total are probably enormous, and it excludes all the products of the family economy, including all the activities of housewives. So we get the paradox, for example, that when a man marries his cook, the value of her work disappears from the national income accounts.

But there are further problems. How is the statistician to treat government activities? Official figures practically always do include these in making up the national income accounts. But there is no market test or gauge of their value. Most people would admit that policemen, firemen and judges make a contribution to the national income equivalent to the cost of their services. But how about a host of bureaucrats whose activities might merely redistribute income, or might actually restrain and disrupt production through imposition or enforcement of unwise regulations?

Again, how do we count government redistribution of income through subsidized housing, farm price supports, social security pensions, doles to the unemployed, subsidized medicine, etc? Most government statisticians count the income that is handed out to the recipients without deducting from the gross national product figures the income that is taxed away from those who are forced to contribute.

To illustrate, let us take an elementary example. Suppose, in a community of three persons, that two persons have an annual income of $3,000 each and the third has no income at all. The community income is $6,000. Now suppose the government levies a tax of a third, or 33 1-3 per cent, on the two persons who have the $3,000 income, and gives the $1,000 that it takes from each of them to the third person. Then these two people have left only an income of $2,000 each to match the income of $2,000 given, say, to the unemployed person. The amount of total income in that community is the same as it was before. The disposable income of each person is $2,000; and their total income is $6,000. But most government statisticians would still credit the first two persons with their original earned income of $3,000 each. So that, plus the $2,000 given to the unemployed person, the three of them would now be credited with a total income of $8,000 — an increase of 33 1-3 per cent. Thus redistribution of wealth and social welfare plans almost invariably increase the gross national product estimate.

Measuring Leisure And Liberty

But now we come to still another problem in the statistical measurement and comparison of national income or gross national product figures. All these figures measure national output multiplied by the monetary value of that output. But they do not measure leisure or the satisfactions of leisure. Yet these are primary concerns in individual welfare. In the U.S. there is, on the average, a forty-hour working week. A couple of generations ago, there was a sixty or seventy hour typical working week. Now a community that can turn out its national product in an average week of forty hours is obviously immensely better off in economic satisfactions than another community of equal numbers that turns out the same physical product but requires a seventy-hour average working week to do it. I will not elaborate upon this, but simply point out that it is only one of the considerations that make any precise comparison of national incomes of different countries invalid.

Of course all economic planning, as we have already seen, must necessarily involve compulsion and coercion — in other words, a loss of liberty on the part of the citizens. This loss of liberty is a substantial cost, which some of us would rank very high; but it is never counted by the economic planners. Again, like the loss of leisure, the loss of liberty is another factor which makes statistical comparisons between, say the GNP of the United States and Soviet Russia dubious and invalid.

All economic planning by a government involves problems of arbitrary allocation, arbitrary quotas for thousands of commodities and services, allocations of work, and allocations of income and consumption. And among the most serious of these, though the growth planners almost never mention it, are what we may call intertemporal problems and allocations. When the growth planners decide that we must grow economically 5 or 6 per cent a year, or whatever rate, they are arbitrarily deciding that we are entitled to consume only a certain percentage of our output in any one year, and must set aside the rest in order to have greater production in the future. But is it always and under all conditions desirable to sacrifice the present to the future? Is it always desirable for the present generation to consume less so that people still unborn (whom we do not even know) should consume more? I shall not try to answer this question. I wish merely to point out here that economic growth has a cost — that the higher we wish to make this rate of economic growth, the more we must restrain and constrict consumption in the present to make it possible. This cost is entirely ignored by most of the growth planners.

Finally, we have to ask, what is it that is measured by the gross national product figures? What is being measured is the marginal market value of thousands of goods and services, in terms of money, multiplied by the total quantities of such goods and services. (Of course any inflation of the currency will multiply this figure correspondingly without adding an iota to the economic satisfaction that anybody gets. I will come back to this in a moment). What I wish to point out here is that if we increase the supply of anything (with the money supply remaining constant), the marginal value of that commodity, and hence its price falls. So if there is no inflation of the currency, an increase in production leads to a fall in prices. And this fall in prices is likely to be much greater proportionately than the increase in production. It has been recognized for many years, for example, that a larger wheat crop will ordinarily have a smaller total dollar value than a smaller crop. This in fact, is the basis of all crop restriction schemes. But this merely illustrates a wider principle. It is not "value-in-use", but scarcity, that determines "value-in-exchange", or money price. Water is an indispensable commodity that ordinarily commands no price at all. If more and more things become plentiful (except dollars) the national income, as measured in dollars might begin to fall. And if we could imagine a situation in which everything we could wish for were in as adequate supply as air and water, we might have no (monetary) national income at all!

Inflation Vs. Growth

Most of the advocates of economic growth through government action in fact put their major faith in one overall policy — inflation.

This policy, however, is almost never recommended under that name. The growth planners simply argue (along Keynesian lines) that growth has been slow or business stagnant because of an "insufficiency of aggregate demand"; and they think this can be rectified by more government spending. Some of these planners are candid enough openly to advocate government deficits. For they recognize that if the increased government spending is paid for out of increased taxation, then the taxpayers lose exactly as much "purchasing power" as the government gains. They also recognize that if the increased government spending is financed by a bond issue bought by individuals out of real savings, the bondbuyers lose as much purchasing power for other things as the government gains

They recognize, finally, that if the government raises, say $10 billion in the investment market, this either leaves just that much less funds available for investment in private industry or pushes up interest rates. And high interest rates, other things being equal, discourage business expansion and investment.

So the only way to get the "increased purchasing power" is to increase the money supply. If a country is already frankly on a paper - money basis, it merely runs the printing presses a little faster. If, like the United States, it is on the semblance of a gold standard, it does this through the central bank. The usual process is for the bank to buy government securities in the open market and "monetize" them.

But does the increase in money supply necessarily promote economic growth? If there is already full employment and no substantial idle capacity the new money will simply lead to an increase in wages and prices. If there is less than full employment the new money, can, it is true, at least temporarily increase employment if it leads to an increased demand for products or to higher prices for products without also leading to correspondingly increased wage rates.

Those who propose the inflationary solution for unemployment always forget to ask themselves what has caused the unemployment. The long - run cause will always be found to be some discoordination of prices and wages. This can take many forms. Commonly wage - rates in some lines will be too high in relation to prices or to the demand for particular products. But wage-price coordination, in such cases, can be restored and maintained if there are free-market wages and free - market prices flexible in both directions. Inflation is not necessary to restore such coordination. Moreover, any price - wage adjustment brought about by inflation is likely to be only temporary. For labor unions, finding more demand for their services, or trying to "catch up" with rising living costs, deman. still higher wages, with the result that the discoordination of wages and prices may be brought about all over again, and the situation can be cured once more only by a still further dose of inflation.

As long as the government authorities encourage or tolerate a system that makes it possible for unions constantly to demand and secure uneconomic wage rates, to which prices can be adjusted only by successive doses of inflation the authorities must encourage the continuance and perpetuation of such discoordination. This must retard economic growth.

Inflation Falsifies Calculation

Inflation is not only unnecessary for economic growth. As long as it exists it is the enemy of economic growth. It distorts and falsifies economic calculation. An economy grows and functions at its maximum rate when the relationship of prices and wages and profits, and the whole balance of production among thousands of different commodities and services are such as to lead to an equalization of profit margins because of correct anticipations of the relationship of supply and demand, of prices, production and costs.

But when inflation forces up prices, prices do not all rise in the same proportion and at the same rate. It becomes very difficult for business men to distinguish between what is lasting and what is merely temporary, or to know what the real demands of consumers will be or what the real costs of their own operations are. Depreciation and replacement allowances will be inadequate. Profits will be over-estimated and overstated. Businessmen everywhere will be deceived. They will be using up their real capital when they think they are increasing it. They will think they have profits or capital gains when they really have losses.

A vital function of the free market is to penalize inefficiency and misjudgment and to reward efficiency and good judgment. By distorting economic calculations and creating illusory profits, inflation will destroy this function. Because nearly everybody will seem to prosper, there will be all sorts of maladjustments and investments in the wrong lines. Honest work and sound production will tend to give way to speculation and gambling. There will be a deterioration in the quality of goods and services and in the real standard of living.

The price and wage rises brought about by inflation will lead to public demands for price and wage controls. The government will be only too receptive to such demands because price and wage controls tacitly put the blame for the inflation on those who are getting the prices government's policies. But these price and wage controls will reduce, distort and disrupt production, and do far more harm even than the inflation itself.

What is likely even before price control is the institution of some sort of exchange control, to prevent the quotation of the home currency from falling in terms of other currencies. But the effect of such an exchange control, overvaluing the domestic currency, will be to bring about a deficit in the balance of payments. It will discourage imports, because they will be overpriced compared with foreign goods. It will encourage imports. The exchange authorities, to prevent this, will institute a quota and licensing system. But this will disrupt foreign trade.

I have yet to mention what many will consider the most important reason of all why inflation must in the long run retard rather than accelerate economic growth. Its effect must be to discourage monetary savings, and to encourage personal spending on immediate consumption. To this extent it must discourage and reduce capital formation, the principal cause of economic growth.

Of course inflation does temporarily stimulate investment in certain directions. When it is going on it makes nearly every venture look profitable in monetary terms. It therefore provides a strong incitement to reinvestment of profits and to the purchase of equity shares (though not of mortgages and bonds). But, as we have already seen, inflation falsifies all the signals and confuses and distorts economic calculation. What it tends to stimulate is malinvestment. By misdirecting investment into the wrong channels it leads to great waste and must retard

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Polytechnic of Denver

A new school has been opened in Denver which has our admiration. It is the PolyTechnic College, located at 500 Lincoln Street in the mile-high city. And its purpose is to assist our free enterprise system by providing qualified personnel for various types of work in industry and business.

The school began last fall. It offered courses in application engineering design, electronics training, art and jewelry design and distributive and communicative arts in the selling field.

But what is more exciting about the school is the philosophy employed as expressed by its president, M. C. Coffman.

We quote from a school publication:

"A question, pertinent to America's future is — can a luxury-based economy, warring on poverty by teaching more people to be job holders, expect to develop the Fords and Edisons of the future? If your answer is 'NO,' then we believe you will be very interested in the purposes of Colorado PolyTechnic College. It is a pilot school to lead in a crusade for a NEW kind of advanced education to develop practicing free enterprisers. Specifically, it was founded to develop a five-year program to turn out industrial leaders who can become successful independent manufacturers, capable of creating new products, tooling up for their production, and marketing them at a profit, thus providing full employment.

"You will be interested for two reasons: first, its philosophy is the furtherance of free enterprise at a time when there is an insidious campaign against the profit incentive. Second, new leaders of industry are needed to increase jobs and eliminate unemployment."

This is certainly an auspicious approach and we are delighted to know of the effort.

Take, too, this quotation from Robert H. Rines of the MIT faculty.

"How many industries today are living off the brains of just one man, Thomas A. Edison? Could Edison even get past your personnel people today? Recent, but unpublished, statistics show that nine out of every ten new jobs created in the last decade have been directly or indirectly supported by local, state and federal governments."

This shocking condition has led to an appalling dearth of persons who understand the market system and who are interested in careers in free enterprise. Obviously if free enterprise is to endure, it will only endure on the strength of its own growth, independent of government and in spite of all the government may do to regulate or curtail or tax it out of existence.

America is going to have to develop, not one, but hundreds of institutions of this character. And we are encouraged to see that certain forward-looking persons in Denver have gone ahead to make this school an operating reality.

According to President Coffman, "Polytechnic is seeking to pioneer in that untaught area of education between schools of liberal arts and of engineering, the former concentrating on the humanities and the latter on calculative abilities." And since this school is going into the market place as it should and seeking to justify its existence on the support to come from the market, we can only applaud the effort and most sincerely wish it well.

Obviously, in addition to this splendid concept, other schools in other areas of intellectual pursuit are going to have to be formed which will concentrate on free enterprise ideas and orient their programs to the realities of economics.

With increased leisure time and increasing demands for more and more knowledge and skill, the role of the private and independent school of the future could hardly be overemphasized at this point.

We wish to congratulate Mr. Coffman and the other splendid men and women who are now concentrating on their task in Denver.

Happy By-Product

Evil causation produces evil results. But there is always a chance that a bit of serendipity will encourage a beneficial side-effect. This happens when we discover the cause and effect relationship and stop trying to reach good ends by using bad means.

Ad for Maid May Be Illegal

Beginning next summer the art of discriminating is going to become illegal. Discrimination — the cultured ability to distinguish among dissimilar things — is one of the marks of the human race; it sets us off (oh, —discrimination!) from the apes and marsupials.

Men discriminate against other men, generally speaking, in choosing a wife. We trust this practice will not become illegal. We'd hate to have a marriage of some years invalidated because we had discriminated in favor of some female.

The publishers of newspapers, being skittish fellows, are worried about one aspect of this anti - discrimination legislation. They wonder if Female Help Wanted and Male Help Wanted columns in the classified page are going to become contraband.

The law is not too clear on this weighty matter.

Let us take, for example, the lady who wants household help.

She places one of those hard-working classified ads:

"Wanted: Maid to live in. English preferred."

Next scene: The federal court, where she and the publisher sit in the prisoner's box, facing a jury of their peers. Charges: Discriminating.

For, indeed, here is clear-cut discrimination. A maid is a woman; and if some man presents himself as a washer of dishes and maker of beds, the dear lady is violating a federal law by refusing him the job on the basis of his sex.

And the publisher may be guilty of a federal violation for publishing such an ad.

Furthermore, the lady may have to explain why she would give preference to an English-speaking applicant. This, most certainly, can be prima facie evidence of discrimination, and the kind of case an ambitious young politico could run 100 yards with, right over the goal line.

The act countenances certain discriminatory practices. Presumably you may advertise for a wet nurse of the female sex — but that is an untested presumption, perhaps to be settled by Earl Warren and the Hootenanny Band some day.

If the employer must prove that he did not discriminate unlawfully — and did you ever try to prove a negative? — we are indeed bound for some sort of bureaucratic limbo.

A federal attorney of our acquaintance, grown long in tooth in government work, has come round to some sort of political philosophy lately. Without trying for any philosophical depth, he said sadly:

"It's getting so I'm sort of embarrassed about the laws people are charged with violating."

He plans to think on that as he sits on the porch rocking chair enjoying his government pension.

Which Road Do You Travel?

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

For one reason or another, I thought the results of the late election would bring an end to what might be called propaganda mail, at least for a few months. I was mistaken.

During the last month, six or seven newsletter - type publications have arrived and one magazine. In every instance, brave claims are made about the slant or direction of the publication but while the claims may be brave, the direction always appears to be vague.

I spent a lot of time, a few years back, attempting to find out exactly and specifically which political candidates and political parties were following what road. I also worked hard at trying to find out the policies of certain publications and ended up with absolutely no feeling of accomplishment, for very good reasons. I don't blame a politician for trying to make sure he never sticks his neck out, but I become a bit confused when publications make strong reading statements which mean a little less than nothing.

For instance, one publication I've just finished reading seems to be for what it calls limited government. Now, if I were to become an advocate of limited government, I am sure I would be able to write down exactly what I meant and for how much. The publication coyly mentions something called "protection" but since government can classify anything it does as a protective device, this doesn't help matters.

From time to time, I have stated my own case definitely. I believe private enterprise can do anything better than government and I am willing to take a chance on the market place, without government controls, and on the ultimately rational actions of individual human beings. You'll have to work mighty hard to misunderstand that statement. It seems to me that anybody who wants something, knows what they want. On the other hand, I suppose there are people who wander around wanting something without any ideas about the nature or character of their desires. They're in trouble.

Just the other day, I received a copy of a publication which apparently wishes to influence the thinking of people who are concerned with political action. In a covering letter, however, the editor told me his publication is not concerned with political action, except as it may influence legislation planned by the lawmakers. If this seems a bit confusing to you, imagine my predicament. The editor informed me he was sure I would be happy and pleased with his publication.

Well, let's face the facts. A good many people use the word freedom without having the slightest idea of what they're talking about. Others use such words as conservative or libertarian and seem to find it impossible to define exactly and specifically what they mean, in which case confusion is the certain result if they attempt to publish views which are absent in the first place.

It was almost 20 years ago when a magazine editor told me that most of the articles which appeared on his desk were written by people who really had nothing to say. He told me he preferred to receive opinions from people like me who generally have something to say even about things with which I am totally unfamiliar. It seemed obvious to me, and I continue to feel the same way, that if I have no opinion, I just sit quietly and stare at this infernal typewriter. The former editor has the same problem even today, although he is a photographer's agent. He receives too many photographs from photographers who have nothing to say but they say nothing with photographs, instead of words.

A few weeks ago I mentioned the Millionaire Magazine. It has direction. It insists that to be a millionaire is a fine ambition and that thinking like a millionaire is the next best thing to being a millionaire, in fact. I suggest that people who have something to say about political action or conservatism or libertarianism or whatever might be happy and successful if they too find a direction, explain or describe their direction and then go to work to say what they have to say. Too simple?

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

The Local Scene

Some Christmases Past

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Christmas always comes on December 25, but the Christmas spirit is where you find it. And it has been found in some unlikely places and in hearts you would never guess could be touched by its magic.

There was "Texas" Guinan, dance hall and honky-tonk girl of the gay '90s in the now ghost town of Anaconda, Cripple Creek-Victor district. Texas was later known as the "Hello Sucker" girl in New York, where she conducted a swank speak-easy during the prohibition era. She greeted each customer with "Hello, Sucker" and they came prepared to pay through the nose.

But in Anaconda, she conducted and played the piano for the first Sunday school, and staged the first Christmas celebration for the kids and grownups in the combination saloon and dance hall where she was employed. No matter what "they" said of Texas in later years in other places, the old timers in the mining district always said, "She has a heart of gold."

And one year Bob Womack, the gold camp's discoverer, who by that time was down on his luck, stood by the door of Nolan's Saloon on the corner of Bennett and Third on Christmas Eve and handed out several hundred silver dollars, one at a time, and with a hearty "Merry Christmas" to kids passing by on the sidewalk. Some said afterward that Bob was drunk. But he claimed he was only filled with the Christmas spirit. In any event, he did make Christmas a merry one for many a ragged urchin.

And Winfield Scott Stratton, Cripple Creek's first millionaire, who then owned the street car lines in Colorado Springs, once gave every "laundry girl" in town a bicycle for Christmas so they wouldn't have to pay out a part of their meager salaries for street-car fare when traveling from home to work and back. Yet some will tell you that Stratton was a hard man.

And General William Jackson Palmer, founder of Colorado Springs, and his wife Queen always held gay Christmas parties in the great hall of their Glen Eyrie Castle for poor (we call them underprivileged) children, the general furnishing the transportation.

The Christmas spirit is no respector of caste or creed, or color or national origin. As in the case of "Old Scrooge," it can enter any heart — and it generally does before the last carol is sung on Christmas Eve.

I have spent Christmas in a lumber camp, a mining camp, a construction camp and two or three times in hobo jungles. And the Christmas spirit shone brightly in all of them. We generally think of the Christmas holiday as more for women and children than for men. But many men in large or small groups, and far removed from home and women and children, grow just as sentimental and just as full of the spirit of Christmas as the gals and kids ever do. Men celebrate Christmas in war time, even in the heat of battle.

But I want to tell you about a mining camp. I went to work on the Liberty Bell mine some three miles above Telluride, Colorado, the day before Christmas. I had in one shift and Christmas was a holiday. I was staying at the company boarding house (the one where the snow slide occurred that I told of in a previous column). As usual, I was nearly broke. I had to be in those days before I rustled a job. I was looking forward to a dull and lonely Christmas. I had never had such a Christmas, for all my wanderings, but I was worried.

But that evening after supper the super, John Anderson, came by and handed me a $10 gold piece. "What's this for?" I asked.

"It's for your Christmas," he said.

"But I've only worked here for one day," I said.

"You're still entitled to a Merry Christmas," he said, and went on handing out gold pieces to other members of the crew. Men who had been there a year received a $100 gift, in gold.

Besides that, the company boarding house took on the look of Christmas, with festive decorations and a feast that might have been equalled, but not beaten, in the Brown Palace in Denver.

I was going to hoof it to town to spend my ten bucks, but the boarding house had a commissary and a club room and I was having so much fun with new-found friends, playing cards and shooting pool and singing Christmas carols, that I forgot to go to town. Instead, I spent a dollar on a punch board in the commissary and won a fine leather traveling bag that later accompanied me on many thousands of miles of travel. My dull Christmas turned out to be a merry one, after all. That ten dollars was my first Christmas gift I ever received from an employer.

I was going to tell about a Christmas in the hobo jungles, but I'm out of space. It'll keep till next Christmas.

To The Point

Anti-Public Discussion

By RUSSELL KIRK

America, in this day of great decisions, needs healthy and intelligent controversy. But some of the people who ought to be most interested in the discussion of ideas seem bent upon stupidly suppressing any lively forum. This is especially, and lamentably, true of discussion concerning the problems of public education.

For instance, the speakers' committee of the Parent-Teachers Association of a school in Wilmette, Illinois, recently commenced a series of discussions of the relationship between schooling and mental health, under the title "Pressures in Wilmette." This intelligent committee soon found that pressures exist in Wilmette, right enough — serious pressures against any public consideration of such questions.

Your servant this commentator was the first speaker in the series; I talked about "The Recovery of Norms" in public education, arguing that basic education should have an ethical aim — for the mental health of the rising generation suffers gravely when no norms or standards of private and public conduct are recognized. I was followed on the platform, some days later, by Mr. James Evans, who discoursed upon the idea of liberty as related to education, arguing that a free mind is a healthy mind. Subsequent speakers were to be Mr. William Smeeth, director of the Academy of Basic Education, and Professor Philip Crane.

But no sooner had the second talk been given, than the president of the P.T.A. abruptly cancelled the series — to the dismay of the committee on speakers — in part because of pressure from certain school administrators and (wondrous to relate) from some members of the local chapter of the League of Women Voters. These worthies declared that such meetings were "stirring up the people" — which curious charge, as a parent remarked, is reminiscent of the attack upon Jesus of Nazareth and his disciples, as mentioned in Luke 23:5. The P.T.A. meetings, said the censors, were supposed to be quiet, friendly social affairs that shouldn't excite anybody. Let boredom reign forever!

The complaints from some well-meaning but sadly ignorant members of the League of Women Voters (an organization nominally dedicated to free discussion) were still more interesting. They declared that the whole series must be the work of the John Birch Society! Since this commentator is one of the most frequently quoted critics of Mr. Robert Welch & Company, this accusation was about as absurd as the celebrated declaration that President Eisenhower was an agent of the Communist conspiracy. In plain fact, though doubtless a considerable range of views exists among the backers of the speakers' series, probably there was not a single member of the Birch Society in the audiences, and certainly none among the sponsors or the speakers. So the League ladies fell into the very vice of which they accuse the Birch Society — viz., repressing free discussion, by false charges.

Yes, there's a happy ending to this tale: the sponsors of the speakers' series, though banned from school premises, have hired their own hall, and the public will hear Mr. Smeeth and Dr. Crane, after all — indeed, the audiences will be bigger than formerly. This is free speech in more ways than one, incidentally, since the lecturers participate without fee. Tolerant folk, the sponsors trust that the school hierarchy and the P.T.A. hierarchy will come to perceive the error of their censorial ways. The sponsors have adopted the name "Parents for Responsible Education."

True responsibility, indeed, the American public educational system needs urgently. Order and justice and freedom cannot endure without public questions and answers. It is sufficiently melancholy that some of the very people who give much lip-service to discussion in the abstract are quick to prevent discussion in the concrete.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 629: If government is supposed to protect us from fraud, among other things, does this not mean and include fraud in all fields — merchandise, stocks, etc., drugs? If the government is to protect us against inaccurate, fraudulent weighing equipment, does this not then include deceptive packaging?

If government is supposed to protect us, the consumers, are not we, the consumers, entitled to representation?

How far should and can government go in "protecting" and can it be prevented from going farther — too far — and how? This question is suggested by the current argument over Krebiozen. To phrase the question differently, can government bureaucracy be confined to protective regulation to prevent it becoming destructive harassment and persecution?

My last question: Can these various regulatory bureaus we now have be eliminated and the subject matter in their respective jurisdictions be handled entirely in duly constituted courts?

Answer: In theory, government is supposed to provide for the "common defense." Just what constitutes "common defense" has never been decided. In point of fact, government cannot and does not protect us from fraud or from other dangers. What it does do is to invade the market place, place unreasonable demands upon producers, and this invariably provides two results: 1) The illusion that we are protected if only we pay our taxes, which illusion tends to make us the most gullible of people; 2) The discovery of legal loopholes (nothing is fool-proof) by means of which all manner of evil can be accomplished. Thus, by discovering where the legal boundaries are established, a man can stay within the law and circumvent morality.

Relying on law as a constant remedy causes us to make decisions in legalistic manner rather than within a moral framework. Additionally, under the supposition that we are "protected" by the government, the government actually defrauds us in all manner of ways — remember the recent disclosures concerning Wink, Texas, not to mention the so-called "reserve fund" of Social Security, etc. — and yet creates the impression that if something is "government inspected" or "government approved," we are safe.

Our "representative" government already represents everyone. All of us are consumers. We certainly will gain nothing by further representation, whether voluntary by means of lobbies or by adding consumer studies or bureaus to our already top-heavy bureaucracy.

When government men are granted the power to make law, to amend law, to interpret law and to enforce it, there is no earthly power that is above such men and their ambitions. There is no way to limit the scope of government, protective or otherwise.

Government bureaucracy cannot be confined and at the same time remain what it is. All "protection" in any field is bound to be regulatory elsewhere. Since government contains within itself the necessary apparatus for expansion and since there is no counter apparatus extant, nor can one be provided, government protection cannot be limited.

Further, where is the principle in which a line can be found which states that government can protect up to here. . .and no further?

No established court can undertake to preside in matters that are not covered by law. All laws must be implemented and administered. To implement and administer a law requires a bureau of interpretation and enforcement. Courts can only review and determine on the basis of law; they do not operate in a vacuum. To set up a court that would have the power of arbitrary decision with no law to guide it, would be to place in the hands of a court an arbitrary and total power.

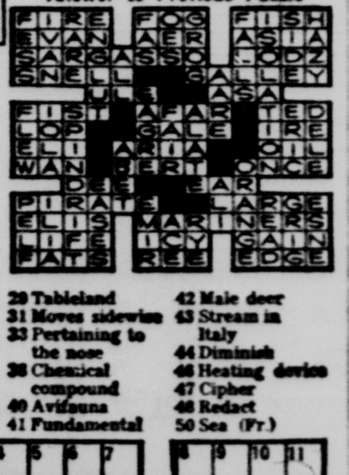
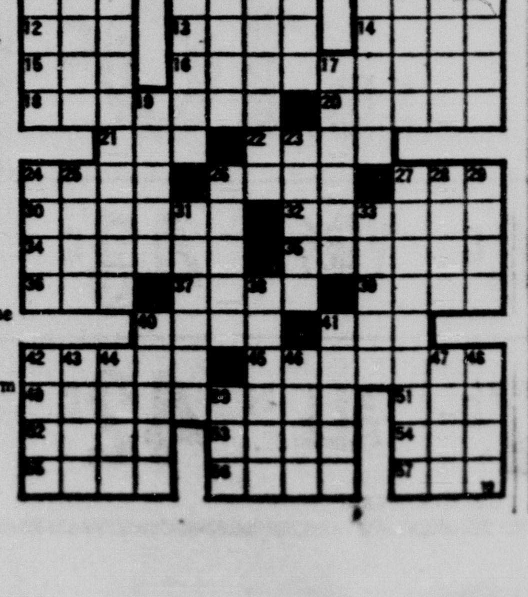
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Government Planning Economic Growth

properly balanced growth over the long run.

The long - run effect of inflation, in sum, can only be to reduce and distort production and to retard economic growth. Of course this effect can be concealed from many people, perhaps a majority, for a long time. For prices, wages and incomes will all be constantly going higher in monetary terms. The official gross national product figures will be constantly soaring. The euphoria can temporarily lull all misgivings. But eventually the bitter moment of truth must arrive.

Summary

The way to get a maximum rate of "economic growth"—assuming this to be our aim—is to give maximum encouragement to production, employment, saving, and investment. And the way to do this is to maintain a free market and a sound currency. It is to encourage profits, which must in turn encourage both investment and employment. It is to refrain from oppressive taxation that siphons away the funds that would otherwise be available for investment. It is to allow free wage rates that permit and encourage full employment. It is to allow free interest rates, which would tend to maximize saving and investment.

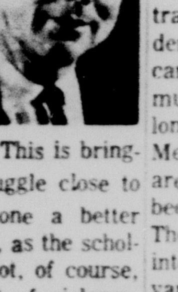
The way to slow down the rate of economic growth is, of course, precisely the opposite of this. It is to discourage production, employment, saving, and investment by incessant interventions, controls, threats, and harassment. It is to frown upon profits, to declare that they are excessive, to file constant anti-trust suits, to control prices by law or by threats, to levy confiscatory taxes that discourage new investment and siphon off the funds that make investment possible, to hold down interest rates artificially to the point where real saving is discouraged and malinvestment encouraged, to deprive employers of genuine freedom of bargaining, to grant excessive immunities and privileges to labor unions so that their demands are chronically excessive and chronically threaten unemployment— and then to try to offset all these policies by government spending deficits, and monetary inflation. But I have just described precisely the policies that most of the fanatical Growthmen advocate.

Their recipe for inducing growth always turns out to be—inflation. This does lead to the illusion of growth, which is measured in their statistics in monetary terms. What the Growthmen do not realize is that the magic of inflation is always a short-run magic, and quickly played out. It can work temporarily and under special conditions — when it causes prices to rise faster than wages and so restores or expands profit margins. But this can happen only in the early stages of an inflation which is not expected to continue. And it can happen even then only because of the temporary acquiescence or passivity of the labor union leaders. The consequences of this short-lived paradise are malinvestment, waste, a wanton r distribution of wealth and income, the growth of speculation and gambling, immorality and corruption, social resentment, discontent and upheaval, disillusion, bankruptcy, increased governmental controls, and eventual collapse. This year's euphoria becomes next year's hangover. Sound long - run growth is always retarded.

Ultimately we must fall back upon an a priori conclusion, yet a conclusion that is confirmed by the whole range of human experience: that when each of us is free to work out his own economic destiny, within the framework of the market economy the institution of private property, and the general rule of law, we will all improve our economic condition much faster than when we are ordered around by bureaucrats.

Che Guevara at the U.N.

BY JOHN CHAMBERLAIN



That bazooka-launched rocket which the anti-Castro Cubans fired at the U.N. building in Manhattan in hopes of interrupting the speech of their mortal enemy Che Guevara, fell in the East River not too far away from the King Features office whence this column emanates. This is bringing the Cuban struggle close to home and gives one a better frame of reference, as the scholars say. One cannot, of course, commend this sort of violence. Nevertheless, the anger of the anti-Castro Cubans is thoroughly justified. The only thing that Che Guevara understands is the language of direct action.

If the rocket had landed on Guevara's head, it would have given him a bit of the medicine which he has been prescribing in large doses for practically every non-Communist individual in Latin America. Speaking before the U.N. general assembly, in what can only be called the Hall of The Innocents, Guevara had the unmitigated gall to say that Cuba's support of the Communist underground in Caribbean countries is purely "moral." But even as Guevara was lying through his teeth the Castroite Committee for Solidarity With Venezuela was busy pushing its own grenade and bazooka campaign to overturn the Venezuelan government. Terrorist tactics, supported from Havana, have been disturbing the peace all autumn in Venezuela. Here is a partial list of "incidents":

DESTRUCTION

On October 8, four high-voltage towers were wrecked in the Venezuelan state of Trujillo, at a loss of millions of dollars. On October 13, an oil pipeline east of Caracas, belonging to Socony Mobiloil, was blown up. On October 15, fourteen hand grenades were tossed into the home of Eliashiv Ben Hurin, the Israeli ambassador to Venezuela. On October 21, a U.S. tire factory was burned in Caracas by terrorists. On October 23, a Coca Cola factory was burned. On October 28, saboteurs set fire to $111,000 worth of oil belonging to the U.S.-owned Mene Grande Oil Company. On October 31, FALN guerillas (who have been getting arms from Cuba either directly or by way of British Guiana) attacked the town of Guacio in the state of Lara, stole arms and clothing, and escaped to the mountains. Two days later, on November 2, the guerillas struck the town of La Aparicion in Lara. The attack was identical to the one on Guacio.

The Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba, which keeps close track of Havana-provoked incidents all over Latin America, can supply long lists of Communist terrorist activities in Colombia, Guatemala, and even in Mexico and Puerto Rico, that are very similar to what has been happening in Venezuela. The anti-Castro rocket that fell into the East River a hundred yards short of its U.N. target pales into insignificance when it is set up against some of the incendiarism that the ineffable Che Guevara has inspired and materially supported.

The Castroite "moral support" of Latin America subversion begins with the training of native Colombian, Venezuelan, and Panamanian guerillas in instruction camps at Las Mercedes, Minas Del Frio, and San Lorenzo in Cuba itself. In late October and early November, 250 of the underground operators trained in these camps were taken by Soviet trucks to the ports of Mariel and La Fe and shipped in "fishing vessels" to points off the coasts of Central and South America. Fast launches took them ashore. The "fishing vessels" used in the business belong to the fleet that is supposedly making "peaceful oceanographic studies" of the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico. A Costa Rican, Carlos Perez, who was trained in Cuba, defected and spilled the beans about the infiltration tactics of the saboteurs to a Costa Rican newspaper, Prensa Libre.

So how do you like it? Che Guevara is given the police protection of New York's finest while he is busy telling lies about Cuban policy toward the rest of Latin America. Meanwhile, in Venezuela, innocent men are dying because they happen to get in the way of the Cuban-supported FALN arsonists and bomb planters.

No, the anti-Castro Cubans should not be encouraged to fire rockets at the U.N. But we should be able to sympathize with them in their frustrations. And, in sympathizing, couldn't we contrive to look the other way when they use American soil to prepare attacks on Cuba itself?

Polytechnic of Denver

A new school has been opened in Denver which has our admiration. It is the PolyTechnic College, located at 500 Lincoln Street in the mile-high city. And its purpose is to assist our free enterprise system by providing qualified personnel for various types of work in industry and business.

The school began last fall. It offered courses in application engineering design, electronics training, art and jewelry design and distributive and communicative arts in the selling field.

But what is more exciting about the school is the philosophy employed as expressed by its president, M. C. Coffman.

We quote from a school publication:

"A question, pertinent to America's future is — can a luxury-based economy, warring on poverty by teaching more people to be job holders, expect to develop the Fords and Edisons of the future? If your answer is 'NO,' then we believe you will be very interested in the purposes of Colorado PolyTechnic College. It is a pilot school to lead in a crusade for a NEW kind of advanced education to develop practicing free enterprisers. Specifically, it was founded to develop a five-year program to turn out industrial leaders who can become successful independent manufacturers, capable of creating new products, tooling up for their production, and marketing them at a profit, thus providing full employment.

"You will be interested for two reasons: first, its philosophy is the furtherance of free enterprise at a time when there is an insidious campaign against the profit incentive. Second, new leaders of industry are needed to increase jobs and eliminate unemployment."

This is certainly an auspicious approach and we are delighted to know of the effort.

Take, too, this quotation from Robert H. Rines of the MIT faculty.

"How many industries today are living off the brains of just one man, Thomas A. Edison? Could Edison even get past your personnel people today? Recent, but unpublished, statistics show that nine out of every ten new jobs created in the last decade have been directly or indirectly supported by local, state and federal governments."

This shocking condition has led to an appalling dearth of persons who understand the market system and who are interested in careers in free enterprise. Obviously if free enterprise is to endure, it will only endure on the strength of its own growth, independent of government and in spite of all the government may do to regulate or curtail or tax it out of existence.

America is going to have to develop, not one, but hundreds of institutions of this character. And we are encouraged to see that certain forward-looking persons in Denver have gone ahead to make this school an operating reality.

According to President Coffman, "Polytechnic is seeking to pioneer in that untaught area of education between schools of liberal arts and of engineering, the former concentrating on the humanities and the latter on calculative abilities." And since this school is going into the market place as it should and seeking to justify its existence on the support to come from the market, we can only applaud the effort and most sincerely wish it well.

Obviously, in addition to this splendid concept, other schools in other areas of intellectual pursuit are going to have to be formed which will concentrate on free enterprise ideas and orient their programs to the realities of economics.

With increased leisure time and increasing demands for more and more knowledge and skill, the role of the private and independent school of the future could hardly be overemphasized at this point.

We wish to congratulate Mr. Coffman and the other splendid men and women who are now concentrating on their task in Denver.

Happy By-Product

Evil causation produces evil results. But there is always a chance that a bit of serendipity will encourage a beneficial side-effect. This happens when we discover the cause and effect relationship and stop trying to reach good ends by using bad means.

Ad for Maid May Be Illegal

Beginning next summer the art of discriminating is going to become illegal. Discrimination — the cultured ability to distinguish among dissimilar things — is one of the marks of the human race; it sets us off (oh, —discrimination!) from the apes and marsupials.

Men discriminate against other men, generally speaking, in choosing a wife. We trust this practice will not become illegal. We'd hate to have a marriage of some years invalidated because we had discriminated in favor of some female.

The publishers of newspapers, being skittish fellows, are worried about one aspect of this anti - discrimination legislation. They wonder if Female Help Wanted and Male Help Wanted columns in the classified page are going to become contraband.

The law is not too clear on this weighty matter.

Let us take, for example, the lady who wants household help.

She places one of those hard-working classified ads:

"Wanted: Maid to live in. English preferred."

Next scene: The federal court, where she and the publisher sit in the prisoner's box, facing a jury of their peers. Charges: Discriminating.

For, indeed, here is clear-cut discrimination. A maid is a woman; and if some man presents himself as a washer of dishes and maker of beds, the dear lady is violating a federal law by refusing him the job on the basis of his sex.

And the publisher may be guilty of a federal violation for publishing such an ad.

Furthermore, the lady may have to explain why she would give preference to an English-speaking applicant. This, most certainly, can be prima facie evidence of discrimination, and the kind of case an ambitious young politico could run 100 yards with, right over the goal line.

The act countenances certain discriminatory practices. Presumably you may advertise for a wet nurse of the female sex — but that is an untested presumption, perhaps to be settled by Earl Warren and the Hootenanny Band some day.

If the employer must prove that he did not discriminate unlawfully — and did you ever try to prove a negative? — we are indeed bound for some sort of bureaucratic limbo.

A federal attorney of our acquaintance, grown long in tooth in government work, has come round to some sort of political philosophy lately. Without trying for any philosophical depth, he said sadly:

"It's getting so I'm sort of embarrassed about the laws people are charged with violating."

He plans to think on that as he sits on the porch rocking chair enjoying his government pension.

Which Road Do You Travel?

By GEORGE BOARDMAN

For one reason or another, I thought the results of the late election would bring an end to what might be called propaganda mail, at least for a few months. I was mistaken.

During the last month, six or seven newsletter - type publications have arrived and one magazine. In every instance, brave claims are made about the slant or direction of the publication but while the claims may be brave, the direction always appears to be vague.

I spent a lot of time, a few years back, attempting to find out exactly and specifically which political candidates and political parties were following what road. I also worked hard at trying to find out the policies of certain publications and ended up with absolutely no feeling of accomplishment, for very good reasons. I don't blame a politician for trying to make sure he never sticks his neck out, but I become a bit confused when publications make strong reading statements which mean a little less than nothing.

For instance, one publication I've just finished reading seems to be for what it calls limited government. Now, if I were to become an advocate of limited government, I am sure I would be able to write down exactly what I meant and for how much. The publication coyly mentions something called "protection" but since government can classify anything it does as a protective device, this doesn't help matters.

From time to time, I have stated my own case definitely. I believe private enterprise can do anything better than government and I am willing to take a chance on the market place, without government controls, and on the ultimately rational actions of individual human beings. You'll have to work mighty hard to misunderstand that statement. It seems to me that anybody who wants something, knows what they want. On the other hand, I suppose there are people who wander around wanting something without any ideas about the nature or character of their desires. They're in trouble.

Just the other day, I received a copy of a publication which apparently wishes to influence the thinking of people who are concerned with political action. In a covering letter, however, the editor told me his publication is not concerned with political action, except as it may influence legislation planned by the lawmakers. If this seems a bit confusing to you, imagine my predicament. The editor informed me he was sure I would be happy and pleased with his publication.

Well, let's face the facts. A good many people use the word freedom without having the slightest idea of what they're talking about. Others use such words as conservative or libertarian and seem to find it impossible to define exactly and specifically what they mean, in which case confusion is the certain result if they attempt to publish views which are absent in the first place.

It was almost 20 years ago when a magazine editor told me that most of the articles which appeared on his desk were written by people who really had nothing to say. He told me he preferred to receive opinions from people like me who generally have something to say even about things with which I am totally unfamiliar. It seemed obvious to me, and I continue to feel the same way, that if I have no opinion, I just sit quietly and stare at this infernal typewriter. The former editor has the same problem even today, although he is a photographer's agent. He receives too many photographs from photographers who have nothing to say but they say nothing with photographs, instead of words.

A few weeks ago I mentioned the Millionaire Magazine. It has direction. It insists that to be a millionaire is a fine ambition and that thinking like a millionaire is the next best thing to being a millionaire, in fact. I suggest that people who have something to say about political action or conservatism or libertarianism or whatever might be happy and successful if they too find a direction, explain or describe their direction and then go to work to say what they have to say. Too simple?

Good luck and good health to you, in Freedom.

The Local Scene

Some Christmases Past

By RUFUS L. PORTER

Christmas always comes on December 25, but the Christmas spirit is where you find it. And it has been found in some unlikely places and in hearts you would never guess could be touched by its magic.

There was "Texas" Guinan, dance hall and honky-tonk girl of the gay '90s in the now ghost town of Anaconda, Cripple Creek-Victor district. Texas was later known as the "Hello Sucker" girl in New York, where she conducted a swank speak-easy during the prohibition era. She greeted each customer with "Hello, Sucker" and they came prepared to pay through the nose.

But in Anaconda, she conducted and played the piano for the first Sunday school, and staged the first Christmas celebration for the kids and grownups in the combination saloon and dance hall where she was employed. No matter what "they" said of Texas in later years in other places, the old timers in the mining district always said, "She has a heart of gold."

And one year Bob Womack, the gold camp's discoverer, who by that time was down on his luck, stood by the door of Nolan's Saloon on the corner of Bennett and Third on Christmas Eve and handed out several hundred silver dollars, one at a time, and with a hearty "Merry Christmas" to kids passing by on the sidewalk. Some said afterward that Bob was drunk. But he claimed he was only filled with the Christmas spirit. In any event, he did make Christmas a merry one for many a ragged urchin.

And Winfield Scott Stratton, Cripple Creek's first millionaire, who then owned the street car lines in Colorado Springs, once gave every "laundry girl" in town a bicycle for Christmas so they wouldn't have to pay out a part of their meager salaries for street-car fare when traveling from home to work and back. Yet some will tell you that Stratton was a hard man.

And General William Jackson Palmer, founder of Colorado Springs, and his wife Queen always held gay Christmas parties in the great hall of their Glen Eyrie Castle for poor (we call them underprivileged) children, the general furnishing the transportation.

The Christmas spirit is no respector of caste or creed, or color or national origin. As in the case of "Old Scrooge," it can enter any heart — and it generally does before the last carol is sung on Christmas Eve.

I have spent Christmas in a lumber camp, a mining camp, a construction camp and two or three times in hobo jungles. And the Christmas spirit shone brightly in all of them. We generally think of the Christmas holiday as more for women and children than for men. But many men in large or small groups, and far removed from home and women and children, grow just as sentimental and just as full of the spirit of Christmas as the gals and kids ever do. Men celebrate Christmas in war time, even in the heat of battle.

But I want to tell you about a mining camp. I went to work on the Liberty Bell mine some three miles above Telluride, Colorado, the day before Christmas. I had in one shift and Christmas was a holiday. I was staying at the company boarding house (the one where the snow slide occurred that I told of in a previous column). As usual, I was nearly broke. I had to be in those days before I rustled a job. I was looking forward to a dull and lonely Christmas. I had never had such a Christmas, for all my wanderings, but I was worried.

But that evening after supper the super, John Anderson, came by and handed me a $10 gold piece. "What's this for?" I asked.

"It's for your Christmas," he said.

"But I've only worked here for one day," I said.

"You're still entitled to a Merry Christmas," he said, and went on handing out gold pieces to other members of the crew. Men who had been there a year received a $100 gift, in gold.

Besides that, the company boarding house took on the look of Christmas, with festive decorations and a feast that might have been equalled, but not beaten, in the Brown Palace in Denver.

I was going to hoof it to town to spend my ten bucks, but the boarding house had a commissary and a club room and I was having so much fun with new-found friends, playing cards and shooting pool and singing Christmas carols, that I forgot to go to town. Instead, I spent a dollar on a punch board in the commissary and won a fine leather traveling bag that later accompanied me on many thousands of miles of travel. My dull Christmas turned out to be a merry one, after all. That ten dollars was my first Christmas gift I ever received from an employer.

I was going to tell about a Christmas in the hobo jungles, but I'm out of space. It'll keep till next Christmas.

To The Point

Anti-Public Discussion

By RUSSELL KIRK

America, in this day of great decisions, needs healthy and intelligent controversy. But some of the people who ought to be most interested in the discussion of ideas seem bent upon stupidly suppressing any lively forum. This is especially, and lamentably, true of discussion concerning the problems of public education.

For instance, the speakers' committee of the Parent-Teachers Association of a school in Wilmette, Illinois, recently commenced a series of discussions of the relationship between schooling and mental health, under the title "Pressures in Wilmette." This intelligent committee soon found that pressures exist in Wilmette, right enough — serious pressures against any public consideration of such questions.

Your servant this commentator was the first speaker in the series; I talked about "The Recovery of Norms" in public education, arguing that basic education should have an ethical aim — for the mental health of the rising generation suffers gravely when no norms or standards of private and public conduct are recognized. I was followed on the platform, some days later, by Mr. James Evans, who discoursed upon the idea of liberty as related to education, arguing that a free mind is a healthy mind. Subsequent speakers were to be Mr. William Smeeth, director of the Academy of Basic Education, and Professor Philip Crane.

But no sooner had the second talk been given, than the president of the P.T.A. abruptly cancelled the series — to the dismay of the committee on speakers — in part because of pressure from certain school administrators and (wondrous to relate) from some members of the local chapter of the League of Women Voters. These worthies declared that such meetings were "stirring up the people" — which curious charge, as a parent remarked, is reminiscent of the attack upon Jesus of Nazareth and his disciples, as mentioned in Luke 23:5. The P.T.A. meetings, said the censors, were supposed to be quiet, friendly social affairs that shouldn't excite anybody. Let boredom reign forever!

The complaints from some well-meaning but sadly ignorant members of the League of Women Voters (an organization nominally dedicated to free discussion) were still more interesting. They declared that the whole series must be the work of the John Birch Society! Since this commentator is one of the most frequently quoted critics of Mr. Robert Welch & Company, this accusation was about as absurd as the celebrated declaration that President Eisenhower was an agent of the Communist conspiracy. In plain fact, though doubtless a considerable range of views exists among the backers of the speakers' series, probably there was not a single member of the Birch Society in the audiences, and certainly none among the sponsors or the speakers. So the League ladies fell into the very vice of which they accuse the Birch Society — viz., repressing free discussion, by false charges.

Yes, there's a happy ending to this tale: the sponsors of the speakers' series, though banned from school premises, have hired their own hall, and the public will hear Mr. Smeeth and Dr. Crane, after all — indeed, the audiences will be bigger than formerly. This is free speech in more ways than one, incidentally, since the lecturers participate without fee. Tolerant folk, the sponsors trust that the school hierarchy and the P.T.A. hierarchy will come to perceive the error of their censorial ways. The sponsors have adopted the name "Parents for Responsible Education."

True responsibility, indeed, the American public educational system needs urgently. Order and justice and freedom cannot endure without public questions and answers. It is sufficiently melancholy that some of the very people who give much lip-service to discussion in the abstract are quick to prevent discussion in the concrete.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

Question No. 629: If government is supposed to protect us from fraud, among other things, does this not mean and include fraud in all fields — merchandise, stocks, etc., drugs? If the government is to protect us against inaccurate, fraudulent weighing equipment, does this not then include deceptive packaging?

If government is supposed to protect us, the consumers, are not we, the consumers, entitled to representation?

How far should and can government go in "protecting" and can it be prevented from going farther — too far — and how? This question is suggested by the current argument over Krebiozen. To phrase the question differently, can government bureaucracy be confined to protective regulation to prevent it becoming destructive harassment and persecution?

My last question: Can these various regulatory bureaus we now have be eliminated and the subject matter in their respective jurisdictions be handled entirely in duly constituted courts?

Answer: In theory, government is supposed to provide for the "common defense." Just what constitutes "common defense" has never been decided. In point of fact, government cannot and does not protect us from fraud or from other dangers. What it does do is to invade the market place, place unreasonable demands upon producers, and this invariably provides two results: 1) The illusion that we are protected if only we pay our taxes, which illusion tends to make us the most gullible of people; 2) The discovery of legal loopholes (nothing is fool-proof) by means of which all manner of evil can be accomplished. Thus, by discovering where the legal boundaries are established, a man can stay within the law and circumvent morality.

Relying on law as a constant remedy causes us to make decisions in legalistic manner rather than within a moral framework. Additionally, under the supposition that we are "protected" by the government, the government actually defrauds us in all manner of ways — remember the recent disclosures concerning Wink, Texas, not to mention the so-called "reserve fund" of Social Security, etc. — and yet creates the impression that if something is "government inspected" or "government approved," we are safe.

Our "representative" government already represents everyone. All of us are consumers. We certainly will gain nothing by further representation, whether voluntary by means of lobbies or by adding consumer studies or bureaus to our already top-heavy bureaucracy.

When government men are granted the power to make law, to amend law, to interpret law and to enforce it, there is no earthly power that is above such men and their ambitions. There is no way to limit the scope of government, protective or otherwise.

Government bureaucracy cannot be confined and at the same time remain what it is. All "protection" in any field is bound to be regulatory elsewhere. Since government contains within itself the necessary apparatus for expansion and since there is no counter apparatus extant, nor can one be provided, government protection cannot be limited.

Further, where is the principle in which a line can be found which states that government can protect up to here. . .and no further?

No established court can undertake to preside in matters that are not covered by law. All laws must be implemented and administered. To implement and administer a law requires a bureau of interpretation and enforcement. Courts can only review and determine on the basis of law; they do not operate in a vacuum. To set up a court that would have the power of arbitrary decision with no law to guide it, would be to place in the hands of a court an arbitrary and total power.

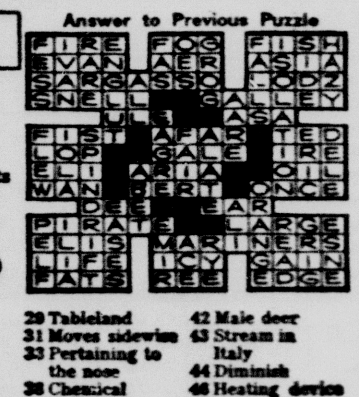
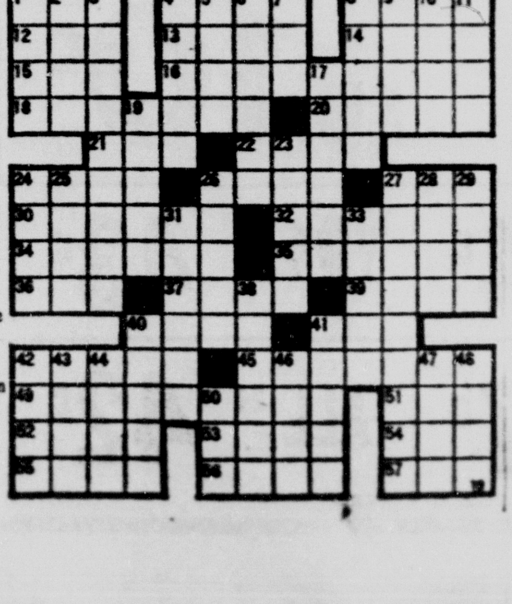
Answer to Previous Puzzle





Government Planning Economic Growth

properly balanced growth over the long run.

The long - run effect of inflation, in sum, can only be to reduce and distort production and to retard economic growth. Of course this effect can be concealed from many people, perhaps a majority, for a long time. For prices, wages and incomes will all be constantly going higher in monetary terms. The official gross national product figures will be constantly soaring. The euphoria can temporarily lull all misgivings. But eventually the bitter moment of truth must arrive.

Summary

The way to get a maximum rate of "economic growth"—assuming this to be our aim—is to give maximum encouragement to production, employment, saving, and investment. And the way to do this is to maintain a free market and a sound currency. It is to encourage profits, which must in turn encourage both investment and employment. It is to refrain from oppressive taxation that siphons away the funds that would otherwise be available for investment. It is to allow free wage rates that permit and encourage full employment. It is to allow free interest rates, which would tend to maximize saving and investment.

The way to slow down the rate of economic growth is, of course, precisely the opposite of this. It is to discourage production, employment, saving, and investment by incessant interventions, controls, threats, and harassment. It is to frown upon profits, to declare that they are excessive, to file constant anti-trust suits, to control prices by law or by threats, to levy confiscatory taxes that discourage new investment and siphon off the funds that make investment possible, to hold down interest rates artificially to the point where real saving is discouraged and malinvestment encouraged, to deprive employers of genuine freedom of bargaining, to grant excessive immunities and privileges to labor unions so that their demands are chronically excessive and chronically threaten unemployment— and then to try to offset all these policies by government spending deficits, and monetary inflation. But I have just described precisely the policies that most of the fanatical Growthmen advocate.

Their recipe for inducing growth always turns out to be—inflation. This does lead to the illusion of growth, which is measured in their statistics in monetary terms. What the Growthmen do not realize is that the magic of inflation is always a short-run magic, and quickly played out. It can work temporarily and under special conditions — when it causes prices to rise faster than wages and so restores or expands profit margins. But this can happen only in the early stages of an inflation which is not expected to continue. And it can happen even then only because of the temporary acquiescence or passivity of the labor union leaders. The consequences of this short-lived paradise are malinvestment, waste, a wanton r distribution of wealth and income, the growth of speculation and gambling, immorality and corruption, social resentment, discontent and upheaval, disillusion, bankruptcy, increased governmental controls, and eventual collapse. This year's euphoria becomes next year's hangover. Sound long - run growth is always retarded.

Ultimately we must fall back upon an a priori conclusion, yet a conclusion that is confirmed by the whole range of human experience: that when each of us is free to work out his own economic destiny, within the framework of the market economy the institution of private property, and the general rule of law, we will all improve our economic condition much faster than when we are ordered around by bureaucrats.

Che Guevara at the U.N.

BY JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

That bazooka-launched rocket which the anti-Castro Cubans fired at the U.N. building in Manhattan in hopes of interrupting the speech of their mortal enemy Che Guevara, fell in the East River not too far away from the King Features office whence this column emanates. This is bringing the Cuban struggle close to home and gives one a better frame of reference, as the scholars say. One cannot, of course, commend this sort of violence. Nevertheless, the anger of the anti-Castro Cubans is thoroughly justified. The only thing that Che Guevara understands is the language of direct action.

If the rocket had landed on Guevara's head, it would have given him a bit of the medicine which he has been prescribing in large doses for practically every non-Communist individual in Latin America. Speaking before the U.N. general assembly, in what can only be called the Hall of The Innocents, Guevara had the unmitigated gall to say that Cuba's support of the Communist underground in Caribbean countries is purely "moral." But even as Guevara was lying through his teeth the Castroite Committee for Solidarity With Venezuela was busy pushing its own grenade and bazooka campaign to overturn the Venezuelan government. Terrorist tactics, supported from Havana, have been disturbing the peace all autumn in Venezuela. Here is a partial list of "incidents":

DESTRUCTION

On October 8, four high-voltage towers were wrecked in the Venezuelan state of Trujillo, at a loss of millions of dollars. On October 13, an oil pipeline east of Caracas, belonging to Socony Mobiloil, was blown up. On October 15, fourteen hand grenades were tossed into the home of Eliashiv Ben Hurin, the Israeli ambassador to Venezuela. On October 21, a U.S. tire factory was burned in Caracas by terrorists. On October 23, a Coca Cola factory was burned. On October 28, saboteurs set fire to $111,000 worth of oil belonging to the U.S.-owned Mene Grande Oil Company. On October 31, FALN guerillas (who have been getting arms from Cuba either directly or by way of British Guiana) attacked the town of Guacio in the state of Lara, stole arms and clothing, and escaped to the mountains. Two days later, on November 2, the guerillas struck the town of La Aparicion in Lara. The attack was identical to the one on Guacio.

The Citizens Committee for a Free Cuba, which keeps close track of Havana-provoked incidents all over Latin America, can supply long lists of Communist terrorist activities in Colombia, Guatemala, and even in Mexico and Puerto Rico, that are very similar to what has been happening in Venezuela. The anti-Castro rocket that fell into the East River a hundred yards short of its U.N. target pales into insignificance when it is set up against some of the incendiarism that the ineffable Che Guevara has inspired and materially supported.

The Castroite "moral support" of Latin America subversion begins with the training of native Colombian, Venezuelan, and Panamanian guerillas in instruction camps at Las Mercedes, Minas Del Frio, and San Lorenzo in Cuba itself. In late October and early November, 250 of the underground operators trained in these camps were taken by Soviet trucks to the ports of Mariel and La Fe and shipped in "fishing vessels" to points off the coasts of Central and South America. Fast launches took them ashore. The "fishing vessels" used in the business belong to the fleet that is supposedly making "peaceful oceanographic studies" of the Caribbean and the Gulf of Mexico. A Costa Rican, Carlos Perez, who was trained in Cuba, defected and spilled the beans about the infiltration tactics of the saboteurs to a Costa Rican newspaper, Prensa Libre.

So how do you like it? Che Guevara is given the police protection of New York's finest while he is busy telling lies about Cuban policy toward the rest of Latin America. Meanwhile, in Venezuela, innocent men are dying because they happen to get in the way of the Cuban-supported FALN arsonists and bomb planters.

No, the anti-Castro Cubans should not be encouraged to fire rockets at the U.N. But we should be able to sympathize with them in their frustrations. And, in sympathizing, couldn't we contrive to look the other way when they use American soil to prepare attacks on Cuba itself?

Love, GOP Lawmakers Reach No Conclusion

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Republican lawmakers and Gov. John A. Love discussed Colorado legislative problems—including spending and taxes—for two and a half hours Saturday but apparently reached no conclusions.

The chief executive told a reporter after the statehouse meeting that no commitments were asked and none were given.

He described the session as "a full exchange of ideas."

The only topics mentioned by the governor as coming under discussion were a coordinating council for state colleges and universities and a freeport law, to permit storage of goods in the state without payment of property taxes.

Budget Director Con F. Shea, a civil service employe of the state, was called into the session to discuss revenues which likely will be available and probable appropriations. The three Republican members of the Joint Budget Committee—Sens. Harry Locke of Hartsel and Joe Shoemaker of Denver and Rep. Frank A. Kemp Jr. of Denver—also were present at the session.

Republican leaders are considering an increase in the state sales tax from 2 per cent to 3 per cent as a possible means of obtaining $30 million added revenue to meet some of the demands of public schools and colleges. Some of the money might go to help reduce property taxes.

One of the senators present—L. T. Skiffington of Manitou Springs—told reporters several days ago he intends to introduce a bill hiking the sales tax. Rep. Palmer Burch, R-Denver, is sponsoring a plan to enact a new, 2 per cent gross income tax for schools and to reduce the property tax. There also has been talk of renewing the state tax on property to finance new buildings—but leaders would like to avoid this.

Some Republicans are looking at the state's 3-cent a package tax on cigarettes as a possible way of increasing revenue. They point out that the vending machine price of cigarettes was raised a nickel when the 3-cent a package tax went into effect in July and they say it might be increased without hiking the price to consumers.

Republicans will control the Senate in the 45th General Assembly, which takes over Jan. 6, but Democrats will hold a heavy majority in the House of Representatives.

Love met with the Republican legislative leadership on two occasions prior to the general meeting. He met Friday with Democraic leaders.

The series of get-togethers apparently wound up legislative activity until after the holidays. The governor said he might ask the Republicans to come in a day or two early for further discussions.

Gromyko Calls On Rusk for Discussion

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

NEW YORK (AP) — East-West problems were spotlighted Saturday as Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko called on Secretary of State Dean Rusk, just back from a Paris planning meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Gromyko, arriving for lunch with Rusk at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, told reporters they probably would discuss several unspecified "matters of world character and...of European character." That could cover disarmament, a Nato nuclear force and and German reunification, all controversial.

The Soviet minister said he had no specific plans to talk about the Soviet-U.S. dispute over U.N. peacekeeping cost. U.S. sources said Rusk had none either.

Gromyko declined comment on the outcome of the session of the 15-nation Nato Ministerial Council that Rusk attended in Paris Tuesday through Thursday.

After reporting to President Johnson on the session Thursday night, Rusk discolsed that he had agreed there to meet with the British, French and West German foreign ministers in Washington next month to look into possibilities of "some further initiative" toward reunification of Germany. But he said the Russians had not been showing any interest in that.

This was the fourth meeting between Rusk and Gromyko. Others on the U.S. side were Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.N. delegate; Llewellyn Thompson, acting deputy undersecretary of state for political affairs, and an interpreter.

On the Soviet side were Vladimir S. Semenov, deputy foreign minister; Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Washington ambassador, and an interpreter.

LBJ's Health Is Watched Carefully

(Editor's Note: Because of his heart attack background, the health of President Johnson is a subject of continuing interest, especially as he heads into his first full term. In the following exclusive interview with AP Science Writer Frank Carey, one of the President's physicians assesses the outlook.)

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson approaches his inauguration in excellent health and with a very good chance of weathering the next four strenuous and demanding years, says one of his personal physicians.

"There is no health reason why he sould not continue an active, vigorous life for many years," Dr. James W. Cain said in an exclusive telephone interview with the Associated Press. Cain, who is with the Mayo Clinic of Rochester, Minn., added that he has examined Johnson in the White House within the past two weeks.

The President, now 56, not only shows no adverse effects from the recent, rigorous political campaign, but also "I think he's in better health than I've seen him in years," Cain said.

Cain is one of several physicians in various parts of the country who periodically see the President, in addition to Rear Adm. Geroge C. Burkley, personal physician to the President who has the Chief Executive under daily observation.

Asked especially about the health outlook for President Johnson during the next four years, Cain said of the man who suffered a severe heart attack in 1955:

"I see no reason why he should not stand it (the job) very well. His job is very demanding — physically and mentally — but I see no reason why it should be any more dangerous (to health) in his case than in that of anyone else, because his health is excellent."

As for the President's heart...

"His heart is doing very, very well. All signs of the old heart attack are gone. If you did not know he had that old attack, seeing him now and examining him now would give you no clue that he had had a previous heart attack."

Cain stressed he was not called to the White House to make the recent examination — but did so while he and his wife were visiting Washington.

Three Detroit Cops Suspended During Probe

DETROIT (UPI) — Three Detroit policemen were under suspension from their jobs today and 10 others were under investigation in the wake of charges of violence and shakedown.

Patrolman Joseph Michalski was suspended Friday pending completion of a full-scale investigation of charges he broke the nose and jaw of a Negro city cameraman and smashed his camera from the hands of Edgar Taylor, but denied striking the man. He was suspended on the basis of a formal charge brought by another Negro cameraman, Sidney Fields, a Wayne State University student, who said the patrolman smashed his camera and also threatened him.

A white patrolman and a Negro burglar suspect died in the shooting.

Police authorities said they were awaiting a formal complaint from Taylor, who was reported hospitalized.

In a separate case, patrolmen Rudy Roodbeen and Donald Gheysen were suspended by their superior, Inspector Richard Loftus, who said he personally watched the two load a case of whiskey into the trunk of their scout car Friday at the Madison Electric Co.

Loftus said it was reported Roodbeen and Gheysen and the 10 other officers at the Woodward police station may have accepted gifts of whiskey from persons in return for overlooking parking violations.

An investigation was launched into the charges.

Love, GOP Lawmakers Reach No Conclusion

By GORDON G. GAUSS

DENVER (AP) — Republican lawmakers and Gov. John A. Love discussed Colorado legislative problems—including spending and taxes—for two and a half hours Saturday but apparently reached no conclusions.

The chief executive told a reporter after the statehouse meeting that no commitments were asked and none were given.

He described the session as "a full exchange of ideas."

The only topics mentioned by the governor as coming under discussion were a coordinating council for state colleges and universities and a freeport law, to permit storage of goods in the state without payment of property taxes.

Budget Director Con F. Shea, a civil service employe of the state, was called into the session to discuss revenues which likely will be available and probable appropriations. The three Republican members of the Joint Budget Committee—Sens. Harry Locke of Hartsel and Joe Shoemaker of Denver and Rep. Frank A. Kemp Jr. of Denver—also were present at the session.

Republican leaders are considering an increase in the state sales tax from 2 per cent to 3 per cent as a possible means of obtaining $30 million added revenue to meet some of the demands of public schools and colleges. Some of the money might go to help reduce property taxes.

One of the senators present—L. T. Skiffington of Manitou Springs—told reporters several days ago he intends to introduce a bill hiking the sales tax. Rep. Palmer Burch, R-Denver, is sponsoring a plan to enact a new, 2 per cent gross income tax for schools and to reduce the property tax. There also has been talk of renewing the state tax on property to finance new buildings—but leaders would like to avoid this.

Some Republicans are looking at the state's 3-cent a package tax on cigarettes as a possible way of increasing revenue. They point out that the vending machine price of cigarettes was raised a nickel when the 3-cent a package tax went into effect in July and they say it might be increased without hiking the price to consumers.

Republicans will control the Senate in the 45th General Assembly, which takes over Jan. 6, but Democrats will hold a heavy majority in the House of Representatives.

Love met with the Republican legislative leadership on two occasions prior to the general meeting. He met Friday with Democraic leaders.

The series of get-togethers apparently wound up legislative activity until after the holidays. The governor said he might ask the Republicans to come in a day or two early for further discussions.

Gromyko Calls On Rusk for Discussion

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

NEW YORK (AP) — East-West problems were spotlighted Saturday as Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko called on Secretary of State Dean Rusk, just back from a Paris planning meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Gromyko, arriving for lunch with Rusk at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, told reporters they probably would discuss several unspecified "matters of world character and...of European character." That could cover disarmament, a Nato nuclear force and and German reunification, all controversial.

The Soviet minister said he had no specific plans to talk about the Soviet-U.S. dispute over U.N. peacekeeping cost. U.S. sources said Rusk had none either.

Gromyko declined comment on the outcome of the session of the 15-nation Nato Ministerial Council that Rusk attended in Paris Tuesday through Thursday.

After reporting to President Johnson on the session Thursday night, Rusk discolsed that he had agreed there to meet with the British, French and West German foreign ministers in Washington next month to look into possibilities of "some further initiative" toward reunification of Germany. But he said the Russians had not been showing any interest in that.

This was the fourth meeting between Rusk and Gromyko. Others on the U.S. side were Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson, chief U.N. delegate; Llewellyn Thompson, acting deputy undersecretary of state for political affairs, and an interpreter.

On the Soviet side were Vladimir S. Semenov, deputy foreign minister; Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Washington ambassador, and an interpreter.

LBJ's Health Is Watched Carefully

(Editor's Note: Because of his heart attack background, the health of President Johnson is a subject of continuing interest, especially as he heads into his first full term. In the following exclusive interview with AP Science Writer Frank Carey, one of the President's physicians assesses the outlook.)

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson approaches his inauguration in excellent health and with a very good chance of weathering the next four strenuous and demanding years, says one of his personal physicians.

"There is no health reason why he sould not continue an active, vigorous life for many years," Dr. James W. Cain said in an exclusive telephone interview with the Associated Press. Cain, who is with the Mayo Clinic of Rochester, Minn., added that he has examined Johnson in the White House within the past two weeks.

The President, now 56, not only shows no adverse effects from the recent, rigorous political campaign, but also "I think he's in better health than I've seen him in years," Cain said.

Cain stressed he was not called to the White House to make the recent examination — but did so while he and his wife were visiting Washington.

December has been designated as Youth Aliyah Month. In a statement to be presented to the membership, chapter chairman Mrs. Herman Bloom and co - chairman Mrs. Dorothy Koscove state that 'the world has known no parallel to Youth Aliyah, the rescue and rehabilitation movement that has saved Jewish children from spiritual and physical threat, and through training and understanding transformed them into well-adjusted, constructive citizens of their new homeland, Israel.

"Youth Aliyah has to date rescued, settled and rehabilitated in Israel over 112,000 Jewish children wrested from nearly 80 countries. Before the end of World War II, most of the children came from European countries. After statehood, the children flocked from Middle Eastern, North African and Oriental lands. Recently a new surge of refugees from Iron Curtain and Latin American countries swelled the ranks.

"Each wave of children and young people who came to Israel posed new problems of adjustment to Youth Aliyah educators. The young victims of Nazism, who spent a large part of their lives exposed to war, persecution and starvation in concentration camps or in flight, suffered from severe emotional strains. Their rehabilitation as happy, self - assured human beings has been a major accomplishment to Youth Aliyah. Newcomers from the Arab lands posed additional problems resulting from the need to bridge the gap between their medieval ways of life and the modern standards of living in Israel. Through them their parents are also being reached and taught modern customs and health standards in the shortest and most direct way. As they become fully integrated, these children emerge as a pioneering backbone in the new settlements and the new life in Israel.

The adolescent immigrant children in the maabarot (temporary villages) and immigrant settlements, who lacked vocational training and adquate education but could not leave their parents, presented another difficulty, which Youth Alyah has been meeting successfully with day training centers, conducted in cooperation with Israel Government ministries. The present wards, some 12,000 children, are training in 244 Youth Aliyah centers, agricultural settlements and institutions in Israel. There they receive psychological testing and treatment; training in agriculture, crafts and other vocational fields; and a full educational, recreational, and cultural program, with special assistance to talented youth.

On training completion they will become a dedicated corps building a cultural, social and educational bridge across the chasm spanning the primitive living standards of their parents and the twentieth - century civilization of Israel. Thus the impact of the 112,000 children directly affects a population many times their number.

Youth Aliyah is a member of the International Union for Child Welfare and the International Federation of Children Communities. Its publications have been subsidized by UNESCO. Colorado Springs Chapter of Hadassah is deeply aware of our solemn obligation to the Youth Aliyah boys and girls in Israel and to the thousands more who wait to be saved and rehabilitated. We are committed to our promise that we shall not deprive any child the opportunity for a new, constructive life through Youth Aliyah."

Pointed Gifts Score Write Way

NEW YORK (UPI) — The point of this story: gift pens for Christmas.

No one knows for sure how large is this holiday market, but John D. Sheaffer, marketing vice president of the Sheaffer firm estimates that sales of writing instruments in November-December run well over $27 million each year.

High on the list of products in the gift area are gold and chrome-finish ballpoint pen pencil sets, women's fountain pens with cases styled like lipstick holders, and personalized desk sets that can be equipped with clock barometer, thermometer or other decorative device.

Work minced red onion and minced anchovies into cream cheese for a cracker spread that men like.

Hadassah Women to Hear 'Convention Highlights'

The regular meeting of the Colorado Springs chapter of Hadassah will be held Tuesday at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. David Bram, 2215 Monteagle. Opening prayer will be given by Mrs. Herbert G. White.

The program will be "Convention. Highights" by the chapter's delegate, president Mrs. Herbert G. White, according to program chairman, Mrs. Andrew Nacht.

December has been designated as Youth Aliyah Month. In a statement to be presented to the membership, chapter chairman Mrs. Herman Bloom and co - chairman Mrs. Dorothy Koscove state that 'the world has known no parallel to Youth Aliyah, the rescue and rehabilitation movement that has saved Jewish children from spiritual and physical threat, and through training and understanding transformed them into well-adjusted, constructive citizens of their new homeland, Israel.

"Youth Aliyah has to date rescued, settled and rehabilitated in Israel over 112,000 Jewish children wrested from nearly 80 countries. Before the end of World War II, most of the children came from European countries. After statehood, the children flocked from Middle Eastern, North African and Oriental lands. Recently a new surge of refugees from Iron Curtain and Latin American countries swelled the ranks.

"Each wave of children and young people who came to Israel posed new problems of adjustment to Youth Aliyah educators. The young victims of Nazism, who spent a large part of their lives exposed to war, persecution and starvation in concentration camps or in flight, suffered from severe emotional strains. Their rehabilitation as happy, self - assured human beings has been a major accomplishment to Youth Aliyah. Newcomers from the Arab lands posed additional problems resulting from the need to bridge the gap between their medieval ways of life and the modern standards of living in Israel. Through them their parents are also being reached and taught modern customs and health standards in the shortest and most direct way. As they become fully integrated, these children emerge as a pioneering backbone in the new settlements and the new life in Israel.

The adolescent immigrant children in the maabarot (temporary villages) and immigrant settlements, who lacked vocational training and adquate education but could not leave their parents, presented another difficulty, which Youth Alyah has been meeting successfully with day training centers, conducted in cooperation with Israel Government ministries. The present wards, some 12,000 children, are training in 244 Youth Aliyah centers, agricultural settlements and institutions in Israel. There they receive psychological testing and treatment; training in agriculture, crafts and other vocational fields; and a full educational, recreational, and cultural program, with special assistance to talented youth.

On training completion they will become a dedicated corps building a cultural, social and educational bridge across the chasm spanning the primitive living standards of their parents and the twentieth - century civilization of Israel. Thus the impact of the 112,000 children directly affects a population many times their number.

Youth Aliyah is a member of the International Union for Child Welfare and the International Federation of Children Communities. Its publications have been subsidized by UNESCO. Colorado Springs Chapter of Hadassah is deeply aware of our solemn obligation to the Youth Aliyah boys and girls in Israel and to the thousands more who wait to be saved and rehabilitated. We are committed to our promise that we shall not deprive any child the opportunity for a new, constructive life through Youth Aliyah."

Moist Air In Homes Boosts Health

NEW YORK (UPI) — If the air in your house could talk, it might say—"How dry I am."

The overly dry air in homes during winter bears some part of the blame for the epidemic of nasal afflictions.

The heating systems drying the air do the same thing to nasal membranes and add excessive dust all around.

According to a survey by Space Conditioning Systems Inc., a subsidiary of the Electronic Specialty Co., winter humidity in most homes falls to 10 or 15 per cent.

The firm's scientists maintain that the relative humidity indoors should remain in the range of 20 to 40 per cent.

The lack of humidity also raises fuel bills, since you do not feel as much warmth from dry heat as you do from heat with the proper amount of moisture in the air.

One solution: a humidifying and air purifying unit that fits comfortably into your oil or gas fired heating system.

These put moisture into the air and can be regulated to keep the humidity at a medically healthful level.

Ever add a little minced celery and very finely grated carrot to ready - prepared cheese soup? Pleasant flavor change!

Beauty Advice

". . . I have never yet seen a finer method of improving the complexion. Wrinkles are smoothed, dryness is checked, blemishes vanish and the skin takes on a healthy, youthful look . . ." (Extract from a report by Margaret Merril suggesting the use of the moist tropical oil of olay as a powder base.) Most druggists are now able to obtain supplies of this oil which gives glorious loveliness to the skin.

Peak Gardeners Making Trees

Miniature Christmas trees for bedridden patients at Fort Carson Hospital were made by the Pikes Peak Garden Club at the meeting at noon Friday at the Moors.

A otal of 50 trees were made by the Pikes Peak Garden Club; the Fountain Valley Club, Security; and the Airline Club, Pueblo.

Coordinator for the project was Mrs. Dave Walker, Chipita Park. She and her husband assembled the wire forms for the trees.

Tree Tips For Safe Holiday

CHICAGO (UPI) — Your family will rally 'round a safe Christmas tree if you follow these tips from the American Academy of Pediatrics.

—Do not purchase a tree which is dry. Pick up the tree by the trunk and gently bump the trunk against the ground. If many of the needles fall off the tree probably is too dry. Also attempt to snap one of the smaller twigs. If the twig snaps easily, the tree is too dry. The point of all this: a dried tree burns easily.

—Try to buy a tree which has been sprayed with a fireproof mixture. If you cannot, then get fireproofing spray and treat the tree at home.

Keep the base of the tree moist by wrapping wet rags around it or standing it in a pail of water until decorating time. The water runs up the tree in the canals in which the sap rises.

—When the tree goes up, stand it in some type of water reservoir and check this reservoir supply frequently.

--Examine all electric light cords and sockets carefully for fraying, defective connections. Remember, a spark from a defective electric outlet causes many home fires starting in trees each Yuletide.

—Avoid placing the tree near radiators which would tend to dry it excessively.

—Use unbreakable Christmas tree decorations for the lower branches that can be reached by young children.

—Don't overload electrical circuits.

--Use non-combustible tree decorations.

Betas Plan Dinner, Gift Exchange

Turkey Likes Apples And You Will Too

Apple stuffing is delicious in turkey. Brown ½ cup each of chopped onion and canned mushroom pieces in ½ cup of butter. Add ¼ cup of seedless raisins, 12 cups of toasted bread cubes, 2 teaspoons of salt and 1 tablespoon of poultry seasoning. Mix well. Add 4 cups of canned apple sauce. Makes enough for 12-pound turkey.

Drug Sales Up, Headed Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — It figures, if you've noticed the corner druggist too busy to chat about the weather. He's never had busier times, in terms of dollars.

The Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association reports sales of ethical drugs — prescription and over-the-counter items advertised only to the health professions—exceeded $2 billion in the United States for the first time in 1963. All drug industry sales were $2.9 billion, five per cent above 1962. Indications are that the '64 figures will grow some more.

Moist Air In Homes Boosts Health

NEW YORK (UPI) — If the air in your house could talk, it might say—"How dry I am."

The overly dry air in homes during winter bears some part of the blame for the epidemic of nasal afflictions.

The heating systems drying the air do the same thing to nasal membranes and add excessive dust all around.

According to a survey by Space Conditioning Systems Inc., a subsidiary of the Electronic Specialty Co., winter humidity in most homes falls to 10 or 15 per cent.

The firm's scientists maintain that the relative humidity indoors should remain in the range of 20 to 40 per cent.

The lack of humidity also raises fuel bills, since you do not feel as much warmth from dry heat as you do from heat with the proper amount of moisture in the air.

One solution: a humidifying and air purifying unit that fits comfortably into your oil or gas fired heating system.

These put moisture into the air and can be regulated to keep the humidity at a medically healthful level.

Ever add a little minced celery and very finely grated carrot to ready - prepared cheese soup? Pleasant flavor change!

Beauty Advice

". . . I have never yet seen a finer method of improving the complexion. Wrinkles are smoothed, dryness is checked, blemishes vanish and the skin takes on a healthy, youthful look . . ." (Extract from a report by Margaret Merril suggesting the use of the moist tropical oil of olay as a powder base.) Most druggists are now able to obtain supplies of this oil which gives glorious loveliness to the skin.

Marion Thompson Weds Alice Kaye Linneman

Miss Alice Kaye Linneman became the bride of Marion E. Thompson in an afternoon wedding Dec. 5 in Lehmberg Chapel of The First Methodist Church.

The Rev. Dr. Ben F. Lehmberg performed the double ring ceremony. Miss Paula Salerno sang "The Wedding Prayer" and "One Hand, One Heart," accompanied by organist Mrs. Verda Lawrie.

Yuletide decorations of holly and red ribbons were used at the candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Maude Linneman, 1321 Wood Ave., and the late Mr. Charles Linneman Jr., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Thompson of Denver.

The bride's uncle, William C. Powers gave her in marriage.

The bride's cathedral length gown was designed in bridal satin and crepe. The skirt had deep pleats that fell from the side hipline and draped into a slight train. Hand embroidered pearls and crystals accented the neckline and long tapered sleeves of the fitted bodice.

The bride wore a veil of four tiers of imported silk illusion attached to a cluster of flowers and a spray of pearl droplets. She carried a cascade bouquet of red carnations and holly.

The maid of honor, Miss Linda Lancaster, wore a red organza dress fashioned with a bell skirt, fitted bodice and scooped neckline. She wore a matching headpiece and carried a crescent of red carnations and holly.

Miss Patricia Brown, bridesmaid, wore a green dress similar to Miss Lancaster's and carried red carnations and holly.

Gordon Cross attended the bridegroom as best man and the ushers were Gary Manuel and Dr. Hal Stauffer.

Gordon Cross attended the bridegroom as best man and the ushers were Gary Manuel and Dr. Hal Stauffer.

The bride's mother wore a burgundy velvet suit with a pink satin blouse, matching accessories, and a pink rose corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a magenta brocade dress and a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

Assisting at the recption held in the cabana at the Timbers Apartments were Mrs. Gary Manuel, Mrs. Vera Theobald, and Leigh Adams.

Guests included the bride's grandmother Mrs. Charles Linneman Sr. and her uncle Herbert Linneman of Quincy, Ill.; Miss Patricia Harland, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Griffin, Mr. and Mrs. Granville Seay, Mr. and Mrs. Merle Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Gordon, and Mr. and Mrs. James Keltner, all of Denver.

The bride's traveling costume to Las Vegas was a white knit wool suit, with which she wore cranberry accessories and a corsage of sweetheart roses. Following a week in Las Vegas, the newlyweds returned to Vail and Breckenridge for some skiing.

The couple is living at 24 E. Taylor St.

The bride is a graduate of Wasson High School and is a senior in the Seton School of Nursing at Penrose Hospital. The bridegroom attended the University of Colorado and is employed as an electronic engineer at Maytronic's Inc.

Peak Gardeners Making Trees

Miniature Christmas trees for bedridden patients at Fort Carson Hospital were made by the Pikes Peak Garden Club at the meeting at noon Friday at the Moors.

A otal of 50 trees were made by the Pikes Peak Garden Club; the Fountain Valley Club, Security; and the Airline Club, Pueblo.

Coordinator for the project was Mrs. Dave Walker, Chipita Park. She and her husband assembled the wire forms for the trees.

Tree Tips For Safe Holiday

CHICAGO (UPI) — Your family will rally 'round a safe Christmas tree if you follow these tips from the American Academy of Pediatrics.

—Do not purchase a tree which is dry. Pick up the tree by the trunk and gently bump the trunk against the ground. If many of the needles fall off the tree probably is too dry. Also attempt to snap one of the smaller twigs. If the twig snaps easily, the tree is too dry. The point of all this: a dried tree burns easily.

—Try to buy a tree which has been sprayed with a fireproof mixture. If you cannot, then get fireproofing spray and treat the tree at home.

Keep the base of the tree moist by wrapping wet rags around it or standing it in a pail of water until decorating time. The water runs up the tree in the canals in which the sap rises.

—When the tree goes up, stand it in some type of water reservoir and check this reservoir supply frequently.

—Examine all electric light cords and sockets carefully for fraying, defective connections. Remember, a spark from a defective electric outlet causes many home fires starting in trees each Yuletide.

—Avoid placing the tree near radiators which would tend to dry it excessively.

—Use unbreakable Christmas tree decorations for the lower branches that can be reached by young children.

—Don't overload electrical circuits.

—Use non-combustible tree decorations.

Turkey Likes Apples And You Will Too

Apple stuffing is delicious in turkey. Brown ½ cup each of chopped onion and canned mushroom pieces in ½ cup of butter. Add ¼ cup of seedless raisins, 12 cups of toasted bread cubes, 2 teaspoons of salt and 1 tablespoon of poultry seasoning. Mix well. Add 4 cups of canned apple sauce. Makes enough for 12-pound turkey.

Pet Owners Advised to Take It Easy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Take things easy with Fido (the dog) and Felicity (the cat).

Some dog and cat owners, it seems, are spraying or dusting their pets with pesticides that aren't strictly for the dogs—or cats. The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that a cat might lick off a dog flea powder—or vice versa. Avoid such fixes by checking the label to determine the animals upon which the pesticides can be used safely.

Apply an ice-cube to chewing gum stuck to a garment or upholstery for a few minutes. The ice will make the gum become brittle so that it can be scraped off.

Miss Kontny Becomes Bride of Robert Souza

Miss Arlene M. Kontny and Robert E. Souza were united in marriage Nov. 14 in a nuptial mass in Our Lady of the Woods Roman Catholic Church in Woodland Park.

During the ceremony, performed by the Rev. Michael Kavanagh, the couple received a Papal Blessing from Pope Paul VI.

Ed Elbert of Canon City sang the Ave Maria and "On This Day O Beautiful Mother." Church decorations included white mums and pom pons.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Kontny Jr. of Woodland Park and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Souza of Cambridge, Mass.

Mr. Kontny gave his daughter in marriage. The bride wore a chrystaline taffeta gown fashioned with appliques of Alencon lace flowers and beaded designs of pearls over the bodice and skirt. The bodice was styled with a sabrina neckline and long tapered sleeves and the skirt terminated in a chapel train. The bride's veil of silk illusion net fell from a crown of pearls and crystals and she carried a crescent arrangement of white roses and a white missal.

The bride's sister, Mrs. William C. Knauss of Reno, Nev., attended her as matron of honor wearing a Nile green slipper satin sheath with a floor length overskirt. She wore a moss green velvet bow hat and carried a cascade of tangerine carnations accented with moss green velvet loops.

John Kontny III, the bride's brother, attended the bridegroom as best man. Another brother, James Kontny, ushered along with James Shanks of Colorado Springs.

The bride's mother wore a sheath with matching jacket in a silver metallic cloth accented with green, earth accessories, and a cymbidium orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue brocade sheath with matching accessories, and a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

Of interest at the wedding reception held in the church was the silver service which is over a century old and belonged to the bride's maternal great grandmother. Assisting at the reception were Miss Regina Diercouff, Miss Joyce Kontny, Miss Pat Monett, and Mrs. John Kontny III.

Guests included Miss Gertrude Faber and Mrs. C. P. O'Brien of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. L. Wyatt and Mr. and Mrs. Al Hazle and family of Denver.

For their wedding trip to Santa Fe, N. M., the bride wore a blue plaid suit with a corsage of white roses.

The bride is a graduate of Manitou Springs High School and attended the Airline Personnel School in Omaha. She was formerly employed by the Gazette Telegraph. The bridegroom attended schools in Cambridge.

The couple is living in Woodland Park.

Non-alcoholic Cheer Gets a Welcome Nod

NEW YORK (UPI) — Try serving chocolate spice float to guests who want a holiday drink full of cheer but minus spirits. You need one quart chocolate milk for 4 to 6 servings. You make it this way:

Chill bowl and beaters in refrigerator 15 minutes. Then blend in chilled bowl 2-3 cup dry instant non-dairy coffee creamer, 1-3 cup cold milk, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice. Whip at high speed with electric mixer until soft peaks form (3 to 5 minutes). Pour chocolate milk into glasses. Top with whipped topping.

Food's a Bargain By This Method

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Figure your food bill fairly, suggests the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Deduct the non-food items you buy at the supermarket, they shouldn't be counted with the food tab. Samples of such items: light bulbs, paper towels, soap. Food costs, according to the department's economists, haven't risen nearly as much as most other items in the family budget. Today you pay only 19 per cent of your take-home pay for victuals, compared to 26 per cent in 1947-'49.

For a quick chutney to serve with a curry, add vinegar, brown sugar, instant minced onions, minced garlic and raisins to canned whole cranberry sauce; cook until flavors blend and mixture thickens somewhat.

Non-alcoholic Cheer Gets a Welcome Nod

NEW YORK (UPI) — Try serving chocolate spice float to guests who want a holiday drink full of cheer but minus spirits. You need one quart chocolate milk for 4 to 6 servings. You make it this way:

Chill bowl and beaters in refrigerator 15 minutes. Then blend in chilled bowl 2-3 cup dry instant non-dairy coffee creamer, 1-3 cup cold milk, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon pumpkin pie spice. Whip at high speed with electric mixer until soft peaks form (3 to 5 minutes). Pour chocolate milk into glasses. Top with whipped topping.

Food's a Bargain By This Method

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Figure your food bill fairly, suggests the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Deduct the non-food items you buy at the supermarket, they shouldn't be counted with the food tab. Samples of such items: light bulbs, paper towels, soap. Food costs, according to the department's economists, haven't risen nearly as much as most other items in the family budget. Today you pay only 19 per cent of your take-home pay for victuals, compared to 26 per cent in 1947-'49.

For a quick chutney to serve with a curry, add vinegar, brown sugar, instant minced onions, minced garlic and raisins to canned whole cranberry sauce; cook until flavors blend and mixture thickens somewhat.

Miss Wilson, Guerin Nuptials Repeated

Miss Lettye Jane Wilson and Paul Edward Guerin repeated their wedding vows Saturday in a nuptial mass in Our Lady of the Skies Chapel, U.S. Air Force Academy.

The Rev. C. H. Hesseldenz officiated at the double ring ceremony. The chapel was decorated with arrangements of white mums and poinsettias and red velvet bows with holly marked the pews.

Parents of the couple are Major and Mrs. James Marion Wilson of the Academy, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Guerin of Rochester, N.H.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of imported Italian silk peau de soie, fashioned with a slim bodice and waistline accented by a small, flat bow. The fitted sleeves extended into points over the hands and the long skirt fell into a brush train. The bride wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom. She wore a long mantilla of Chantilly lace with an illusion face veil and Watteau back falling into a chapel train. The bride's flowers were white orchids and feathered mums, backed with white ostrich plumes and entwined with a silver and crystal rosary, a gift of the bridegroom's family. She carried a handmade lace handkerchief carried by four generations of her family.

The bride's sisters, Miss Mimi Wilson and Jackie Wilson, attended her as maid of honor and junior bridesmaid. The bridesmaids were Mrs. D. C. Kimble and Mrs. W. A. Edleman, both of the Academy. The attendants were gowned alike in floor length costumes of velvet, accented with flat satin bows at the back waistline. They wore matching satin open-topped pillboxes with back bows and matching illusion tiers. The maid of honor wore green velvet and the other attendants wore red velvet. All carried bouquets of white poinsettias backed with ostrich tips matching their gowns.

Leslie Coats, the flowergirl, wore a red velvet dress accented with a large collar edged in white Irish lace. She carried a nosegay of tiny red carnations edged with white ostrich tips. Jimmie Walter carried a white satin pillow bearing the rings.

Robert Hoyt was best man and the ushers were the bridegroom's brother George Guerin, D. C. Kimble, W. A. Edleman and D. S. Kirkendall, all of the Academy.

A reception was held in the ballroom of the Academy Officers Club. Assisting were Mrs. J. C. Eichholz, Mrs. E. Lewis, Mrs. J. P. Marois, Mrs. G. L. Moore, Mrs. R. D. Lichtwardt, Mrs. J. W. Walter, Mrs. D. A. Calkins, and Lt. Genevieve Kamide.

The bride's mother wore a silk faced brocade suit of emerald green, with a floor length skirt, and gold accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue-green brocade floor length gown with matching accessories. Both wore gold cymbidium orchid corsages.

Following a wedding trip to a Colorado ski resort, the couple will be at home at the Academy. The bride's going-away outfit was a shocking pink mohair suit featuring a hip length cape worn with black fox collar and hat. She carried a black fox muff centered with pink cymbidium orchids.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Guerin and George Guerin of Rochester; Mrs. G. I. Teasley, Barnesville, Ga.; Robert Hoyt, Philadelphia, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. Z. Z. Poole of Denver.

We Need Some Fat Each Day

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Q—How can I avoid eating foods with fat in them? I want to cut all fat out of my diet because I'm told it is harmful.

A—You obviously misunderstand the part fat plays in keeping your body in good condition. You need some fat every day because fats play several roles in the body. They are a primary source of energy. Certain kinds furnish vitamin A or D, and some—fish-liver oils, for example — provide both. Moreover, fats help the body make use of these vitamins. Several fats and oils, specially those from plant sources, furnish essential fatty acids.

Although you do need some in your diet every day, keep the total amount moderate. Go easy on popular snack foods which are usually loaded with fats. Instead, use more nutritious meat, whole milk, cheese and other dairy products and egg yolk as sources of the fat you need. Also vegetable oils.

Q—Sometimes the broiler-fryer chickens on sale at my supermarket have dark bones. Does this make them unfit to eat?

A — The dark bones do not make them unfit to eat. Actually, dark bones are a sign of a young bird, poultry specialists of the U.S. Department of Agiculture say. They in no way fect the wholesomeness or flavor of poultry meat.

The reason you see more of them this days is because producers are marketing broiler-fryer chickens, fryer - roaster turkeys and ducklings at an earlier age.

Double Ring Ceremony in First Church

An afternoon ceremony in early November united in marriage Miss Viola Delain Peterson and John Scott Whisenant. The Rev. Warren Hile officiated at the double ring service in First Christian Church.

Decorations consisted of baskets and yellow mums and bronze pompons. John Buck, at the organ, accompanied Mrs. Gwendolyn Wacker who sang "The Wedding Prayer," "Ave Maria," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Clyde A. Peterson of 1510 N. Corona St., and Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Whisenant of Las Vegas, Nev.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a satin gown featuring lace appliques on the bodice and skirt. The gown was styled with a scooped neckline, long sleeves ending in points, and a cathedral train. The bride's veil of silk illusion cascaded from a pearl crown. She carried a blue handkerchief that belonged to her paternal great grandmother and a bouquet of white carnations arranged with a detachable corsage.

The bridegroom's sister, Miss Susan Whisenant, was maid of honor. She wore a Kelly green taffeta dress with a matching chiffon overskirt, matching accessories, and carried yellow carnations.

The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Jean Burton and Mrs. Robert Bailey Jr., wore apricot taffeta dresses with matching chiffon overskirts, matching accessories, and carried tangerine carnations.

Martha Lou Whisenant, the bridegroom's sister, lighted the candles. She wore apricot taffeta and a headband of tangerine carnations.

Best man was Maurice Rigdon; the groomsmen were Paul Sentena and the bride's brother Ron Peterson, and the ushers were Bill Smith and Richard MacCarthy.

The mother of the bride wore a mocha lace dress with tangerine accessories and the bridegroom's mother wore royall blue lace with jelly green accessories. Both wore white carnation corsages.

A reception was held in the church parlor. Assisting were Mrs. N. H. Peterson, Mrs. Don Burfiend, Mrs. L. K. Moser, Miss Donna Burfiend, Miss Kathy Burfiend, and Miss Noreen Meatheringham.

The bridegroom's parents were hosts at a rehearsal dinner Nov. 6 in the El Paso Club.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. L. K. Moser and Lindy of Fort Worth; Mr. and Mrs. James Parker, Jim and Elana of Denver; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Goldberry and family of Fort Collins, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Salladay of Calahan.

The couple spent their honeymoon in Las Vegas. The bride traveled in a royal blue wool suit with black accessories.

The bride attended Helen Key Beaute School and the bridegroom attended the University of Colorado. He is employed at Shepard Land Co. The couple is residing at 2009 E. Van Buren St.
